U.S. Tells Troops 'We're Behind You'

Veterans Day Takes On New Significance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veterans Day takes on added significance today as Americans take time to tell their fighting men in Viet Nam, "We're behind you."

In Main Street parades, on speaking platforms in blood drives and among the long rows of white crosses in military cemeteries, the nation pauses to remember, reflect and rededicate.

To the people of Audubon, Iowa, the war in Viet Nam suddenly comes close to home today. Donald D. Haskins, 22, a sailor fatally wounded at Da Nang last month, will be laid to rest.

The American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars in Hamilton, Ohio, put on an "Operation Boost" parade supporting American involvement in Viet Nam. Marchers have been asked to bring personal items to be sent to servicemen there.

Students at Alabama College at Montevallo have scheduled a blood drive for U.S. troops, plus a fund raising campaign to provide a special gift for the American forces. Other activities include a flag raising ceremony and a speech by Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala.

Dave Watson, commander of the VFW post in Muscatine, Iowa, said the hope behind the town's parade is that it "will offset some of the publicity being given to the demonstrations against U.S. policy in Viet Nam." Bremer County, Iowa, veterans are calling their parade a "walk for the men in Viet Nam."

The national headquarters of the American Legion distributed 10 million lapel pin flags for "Operation Show Your Colors." Each pin comes with a card saying "Americans are serving the cause of freedom in Viet Nam. I wear my country's flag to show that I support their efforts."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey laid a wreath for President Johnson on the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery across the Potomac River from the nation's capital.

In prepared remarks, the vice president said: "We are in Viet Nam to keep a commitment established by international treaty. We are there because, once again in history, it must be proved to aggressors that the price of their aggression comes far too high...

"We will remain in Viet Nam until a just and lasting peace can be established there."

Secretary of the Navy Paul H. Nitze, speaking at a Veterans Day ceremony in Welch, W.Va., said in a prepared address that veterans "keenly understand why we will not now abandon the Republic of Viet Nam. Our veterans...entertain no doubt that we will prevail in the cause of freedom."

Nitze said American veterans have "learned in the hardest of all schools that weakness is only an invitation to attack, and that retreat can bring in its wake even more deadly dangers."

The Anchorettes, Wichita State University's Navy women's drill team, who spent the week collecting signatures in support of U.S. servicemen, lead off a Veterans Day parade in Wichita, Kan.

Wichita Mayor William Tarrant has issued a proclamation dubbed "Operation Boost," calling for a moment of silent prayer at 11 a.m. for the success and safety of U. S. military forces everywhere.

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt leads the Veterans Day parade at Frankfort, Ky., then receives a petition in support of U.S. Viet Nam policy. The names were collected at the polls on election day last Tuesday.

NOT THE PROUDEST Veteran's Day symbol is the weathered and faded Flag at American Legion Hall. The pole leans.

Rhodesia Declares Independence

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) —Prime Minister Ian Smith declared Rhodesia independent today, the first such declaration against Britain since the American colonies broke away in 1776.

Britain retaliated swiftly, in effect outlawing Rhodesia. Prime Minister Harold Wilson declared in the House of Commons that Smith and his ministers had been fired—an action which will be ignored in Rhodesia. Wilson asserted his government will have no dealings with the Rhodesian regime.

Wilson expelled Rhodesia from the sterling area, banned exports, including British purchases of Rhodesia's $112 million a year tobacco crop, ended all British aid, suspended trading preferences.

Britain embargoed the shipment of all arms to this central African country, and asked for an urgent meeting of the U.N. Security Council.

Britain's allies, including the United States, and Commonwealth members are expected to join in ignoring the declaration and in imposing economic sanctions.

While Smith still was speaking on the radio, British Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs announced that Smith and all his ministers had been dismissed on orders of Queen Elizabeth for "an unconstitutional act of independence."

With his proclamation of independence, however, Smith had ceased to recognize the powers of the British governor and London has said it will not use force.

Smith and his Cabinet determined to go it alone after months of fruitless negotiations in which the British government demanded guarantees of eventual political power for the colony's 4 million Africans. Smith and his colleagues are insisting on preserving rule by Rhodesia's 225,000 white settlers.

In proclaiming independence, Smith rejected last-minute appeals from both Wilson and Queen Elizabeth II.

Bowman, Retired Mill Official, Dies

DEXTER -- Byron Bowman, 66, a retired executive of the Scott County Milling Company, died today at 7:30 a.m. in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

He was born in Sikeston, Feb. 27, 1899, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bowman.

He was educated in the elementary schools and high school in Sikeston, and attended Westminster College in Fulton, Marion Institute, Marion, Ala., and the U. S. Military Academy in West Point.

He then returned to Sikeston, where he became a salesman for the milling company. Later he became superintendent of mill A in Sikeston.

He became manager of the company's mill at Dexter, moving there in 1960, and retiring three years later because of ill health. He was a member of the Dexter Methodist church.

He married Ruby Evans, Dec. 18, 1934. Survivors are the wife, two daughters, Mrs. Edward Woehlecke, Taylorville, Ill., and Mrs. L. H. Moore, Florissant; two sisters, Mrs. Milem Limbaugh, Sikeston, and Mrs. L. P. Hulick, Menlo Park, Calif.; five brothers, Lyman Bowman, Joe Bowman, Sam Bowman, and Lee R. Bowman, all of Sikeston, and W. C. Bowman Jr., Montgomery, Ala.; and four grandchildren.

The body is at the Welsh Funeral Home in Sikeston.

Byrd Quits Senate

RICHMOND, Va. AP -- Sen. Harry F. Byrd, a strong voice for economy in Washington for the past 30 years and head of Virginia's dominant Democratic state organization, announced his retirement today.

Gov. Albertis S. Harrison Jr. made the disclosure at a hastily called news conference. He said the resignation was effective immediately and that he planned to name an interim successor until the next general election in November 1966.

Harrison gave no intimation of anyone he had in mind to succeed the 78-year-old Democratic chieftain but speculation was that the senator's son, Harry F. Byrd Jr., or Rep. William M. Tuck might be on the list.

Harrison disclosed that a letter from Byrd announcing his resignation was delivered to him at the executive mansion at 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Byrd said in the letter that the rigors of the last Congress had borne more heavily on him and that he found himself tiring easily.

"In looking toward the forthcoming session that starts in January and after consultations with my physicians concerning the pain I have been suffering as a result of arthritis I have reluctantly reached the conclusion that I must give up the heavy responsibilities entrusted to me by the people of Virginia," Byrd's letter said.

"I hereby submit my resignation as a member of the United States Senate to become effective upon receipt of this letter."

The governor praised Byrd for his contribution to the state and the nation, and called him one of our greatest Americans.

Byrd sought to step down from the Senate in 1958 but in the face of a projected Democratic organization split between backers of Tuck and John S. Battle, both former governors, Byrd agreed to run again.

The senior Virginia senator, whose previous rugged health had been exemplified by mountain climbing, had been less active in recent years and had been badly troubled with an arthritic knee.

He was elected to the Virginia Senate 50 years ago this month. He served as Virginia's governor 1926-30.

Byrd was named to the U. S. Senate in 1932.

The Missouri Delta Community Hospital had one patient admitted to the emergency room Wednesday: Jerry Michael Jones, Matthews, injured playing basketball.

Three Cancel Aluminum Price Raises

WASHINGTON AP -- Three of the nation's four big aluminum producers backed down today in the face of stern Johnson administration opposition and canceled price increases the government had called inflationary.

The Aluminum Co. of America-No. 1 in the industry -- called it quits Wednesday night by rescinding the increases announced Monday. Reynolds Metals followed two hours later.

Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp., third biggest, joined the procession midmorning today. That firm called the price rises "restorations" and said its action followed "similar cancellations by other major producers."

That left Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., as the one big holdout at the time.

Alcoa's decision to cancel the price increase was announced at a hastily called night press conference by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. He hailed it as "a patriotic act."

The defense secretary also said the government agreed to an immediate resumption of negotiations for the orderly disposal of a surplus of 1.4 million tons of aluminum now held in national stockpiles.

McNamara said he believed the government would be able to limit the amount of aluminum disposed of from the stockpile to less than 200,000 tons and thus "a void disruption" of prices.

Last Saturday when federal officials denounced the price increase, they also announced that the government was considering releasing 200,000 tons from the stockpile in 1966.

On Monday, officials of the Office of Emergency Planning announced they had begun making preparations for the immediate release of 100,000 tons of stockpile aluminum, raising to 300,000 tons the amount of aluminum the government planned to make available.

Nuclear Worker Missing

HEIDELBERG, Germany AP -- The U. S. Army reported today that a nuclear technician based in Germany disappeared on a trip to the United States after delivering classified material to an Army depot in New York State.

The man was identified as CWO Spencer D. Harris Jr. His hometown was not immediately available nor was the site of the depot to which he delivered the material.

The widely circulated newspaper Bild Zeitung said Harris was fully informed on the location and plans for all U.S. nuclear weapons stored in Germany. It said he also had knowledge of nuclear tactics to be used in case of emergency.

Bild Zeitung said American security agents around the world had been alerted to look for the missing man.

The Army said Harris left Germany Aug. 25 and went on leave after delivering his classified material.

Harris was last heard from Sept. 21 when he cabled for an extension of his leave.

The Overseas Weekly, a private newspaper published here for American forces in Europe, reported today that the disappearance of another American soldier, Sgt. 1.C. Glen R. Rohrer, 44, of West Allis, Wis., had set back Army espionage in Europe 5 to 10 years.

Rohrer left his intelligence unit in Frankfurt on Aug. 16. His car was found abandoned near Weiden, on the border between Czechoslovakia and West Germany, and bloodhounds followed his scent to the border.

The Overseas Weekly, quoting high intelligence sources, said Rohrer crossed into Cezhoslovakia with top secret information and the names of hundreds of Western agents and contacts operating in Communist countries. As a result, many operatives have been pulled back into the West, the weekly reported.

Recognition Refused by Great Britain

Princess Margaret Gets Old West's Stark Beauty

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Britain's Princess Margaret gets a look at the stark beauty of the old West today—and probably a kitchen refrigerator where an invitation to her wedding once was stored.

The princess and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, arrived Wednesday from Los Angeles for a 4½-day rest to break up their three-week tour of the United States.

No trace of the laryngitis that plagued her in smoggy Los Angeles was present when she made a planeside speech at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base.

Waiting at the plane along with Gov. Sam Goddard were her host, Lewis Douglas, and his wife. Their daughter, Sharman, and Princess Margaret became close friends when Douglas was ambassador to Great Britain in 1948-50.

Douglas invited 200 neighbors, business acquaintances and old friends to a cocktail party Wednesday night at the picturesque Arizona Inn to meet the royal pair.

"She's a darling," said a guest as the princess made the shortest social stop of her trip so far —45 minutes.

As Princess Margaret circulated among the guests, someone splashed a drink on her beige, chiffon dress.

"I got wet, did you?" she said with a smile.

After the party, the Snowdons returned to the Douglas home for a quiet dinner.

So close are the princess and the Douglases that when they did not reply to her wedding invitation, she sent them another cable.

"What happened," said a friend of the Douglases, "was that Lew and his wife were in New York and their Mexican help couldn't read the invitation when it arrived at the ranch.

"The help saw the big, red royal seal on the back and thought it might melt. So they put the invitation in the refrigerator."

The Douglases attended the wedding. They found the first invitation months later, still in the refrigerator.

Cyclist Dies, Rider Injured In Car Crash

IRONTON, Mo. AP -- Kenneth Michael Mayes, 17, of Ironton, was killed and another person was injured critically Wednesday night in a car-motorbike collision on M 72 about seven miles east of here.

The Highway Patrol said a motorbike driven by Mayes was struck by a car driven by George Winford Tripp, 46, of Ironton.

A passenger on the motorbike, Clardy Evans Newhouse, 7, of Ironton, was hospitalized at St. Louis in critical condition.

On highway 77, four and one-half miles south of Charleston at 8:15 a.m. Wednesday, a 1966 Mercury driven by Irene Brantley, 39, Charleston, skidded and ran into a ditch bank while braking to avoid collision with a truck ahead. She was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, in Sikeston, where she was treated for a back injury, cuts and bruises.

Dry Haul in School Breakin

Three soft drink machines were broken into last night in the number five building at the Airport School. The machines had been emptied of change yesterday at 3 p.m.

Lutheran Pastor Belsheim Heads Red Cross

Rev. Harold Belsheim, Concordia Lutheran church pastor, is the new chairman of Scott County branch of the American Red Cross this year. He succeeds the Rev. F. Edward Watson, former pastor of Hunter Memorial Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Mr. Belsheim announced that a meeting of the Red Cross will be held Monday in the basement of the church at 7 p.m.

The public is invited.

Vietnamese Unit Ambushed

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- A Viet Cong force ambushed a South Vietnamese unit on a main highway west of Saigon today, but 130 of the Communists were killed by combined ground and air action, a U. S. spokesman reported.

The spokesman said American and Vietnamese planes hammered the attacking Viet Cong and killed 100 of them. He had no information on government casualties or other details of the action 5 miles west of Baria.

A large force of U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops pressed an offensive in sandy, rolling coastal terrain 350 miles northeast of Saigon, but results were meager.

Governor Appeals for Foreign Policy Support

ST. LOUIS AP -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes appealed today for widespread public support of the nation's foreign policies.

"The men in Viet Nam have no choice and neither do we," he said in a speech prepared for an American Legion luncheon in observance of Veterans' Day.

"I have said before that I do not believe the voices of those who would turn their backs on nearly 150,000 Americans fighting in Viet Nam represent the thinking of most Missourians or Americans," Hearnes said.

"I am not here today as an expert on foreign policy, but I am certain that we are in Viet Nam for the same reason we were in Africa, England, France, Germany, the Philippines, Okinawa, Wake, Guam and Korea.

"We are engaged in the tragic necessity of war in Viet Nam because those whom we have elected, and others to whom authority has been delegated, believe we should be there in the best interests of our country.

"I do not say-and I am sure they do not say their judgment is infallible, because those you entrust with leadership are mortal too.

"But we are there. We have committed ourselves and there is only one clear cut solution now-- we must fight until we have won."

Marcos Wins InPhilippines

MANILA AP -- Sen. Ferdinand E. Marcos was virtually assured of the Philippine presidency Thursday night.

He had a commanding 530,971-vote lead and intimates of President Diosdado Macapagal privately conceded defeat.

The presidential palace called a press conference for 4 p.m. arousing speculation that the president would bow before the flow of votes.

One of Macapagla's closest political advisers conceded that the Marcos trend appeared irreversible.

Marcos claimed he had won by more than a million votes and told a news conference the result could be changed only by "massive and unthinkable fraud."

Marcos was carrying his vice presidential running mate, Fernando Lopez, along with him by a slim 40,936-vote margin.

Latest unofficial tabulations by the Philippine News Service gave Marcos of the Nacionalista party 2,609,441 votes and Macapagal 2,078,470.

Ike Described As Comfortable

FT. GORDON, Ga. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was reported in generally satisfactory condition today after a second attack of heart pains but his doctors raised at least a possible specter of "a full blown heart attack."

A medical bulletin from the team of doctors attending the 75-year-old five-star general said:

"It is not uncommon for patients with known coronary disease to experience repeated episodes of chest pains which may or may not progress to a full blown heart attack."

Eisenhower has a record of coronary disease. His major heart attack was in 1955.

His physicians said in a bulletin:

"General Eisenhower spent a good night without further pain or discomfort. He is comfortable this morning and his general condition is satisfactory."

In effect the physicians were renewing what they said Wednesday night after recurring heart pains forced his

The pains Wednesday were "more prolonged and of longer duration" than the mild attack of angina pectoris, or heart pains, which occurred just after midnight Monday night, doctors said.

Announcement of the sudden reversal in the condition of the 75-year-old five-star general came about an hour after the doctors had said he was making a good recovery and might be playing golf again in two weeks.

Late Wednesday night, Capt. Wallace Hitchcock, Ft. Gordon press officer, said Eisenhower had been "comfortable since 6 p.m."

Three Men Plead Innocent To Robbery-Kidnaping

NEW MADRID -- Three men charged with robbery from a person and the kidnaping of Dale Mott, 28, of Oklahoma City entered pleas of innocent this week in magistrate court as Judge Erle Wright of Portageville presided.

Roger Brooks, Junior Day, and Guyland Dean, all of East Prairie, were ordered held for trial in circuit court. Brooks was held on $500 bond on each count, while Day and Dean were held on $2,500 bonds on each count and subsequently were released.

Improper registration of a motor vehicle brought fines to five persons this week: David West, $23, Dan Chowning Botts, $25, and Donald P. Emrick, Bill McMabon, and Campbell 66 Express, $15 each.

Fines of $15 each for unlicensed operator offenses were assessed against Dewitt Wooten, Robert Lee Parnell, Jackie V. Whitson, and Elmer Ed Evans. Ruth Ella Banks was fined $25 for this offense.

Tom Lawson paid $45 for careless and reckless driving; George Fillmore Bennett paid $15 for careless and imprudent driving.

Exceeding legal speed limits brought fines to three: Jimmie Lee Macon, Jr., $40, Theo Eugene Pikey, $20, and David E. Clay, $15.

Others fined for misdemeanors were: Mc M. Truck Service and Cheery Growers, Inc., $110 for no PSC authority; Howard W. Kinsey, $11, no tail light; Roy F. Sherman and Charles R. Raglin, $15 each, overweight on license; Warren W. Towle, $11, expired vehicle license; Murphy Young, $22, disturbing the peace; Michael Lewis Heavener, $40, unlicensed operator and defective brakes; Hedrick Concrete, $220, exceeding legal load limits.

Three Chinese Airmen Defect

TAIPEI, Formosa AP -- Three Chinese Communist airmen defected to Nationalist China today and flew their Ilyushin 28 jet bomber to Formosa, the Chinese Nationalist Defense Ministry announced.

The three were identified as pilot Lee Hsien Ping, a native of Shantung Province; navigator Lee Tsai Wang, of Szechwan Province, and radio operator Lien Pao Shang, of Hopei. The navigator and the radio operator were injured, the navigator seriously.

No City Court Session Tonight

Judge E. R. Schrader announced today that there will be no city court session tonight in observance of Veteran's Day.

The next session will be held Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Russian Peace Effort Raked

TOKYO (AP) — Red China said today the Soviet Union tried to end the Viet Nam war early this year "in tacit agreement and close collaboration" with President Johnson.

"Since (the Soviets) are cooperating so closely with the U.S. imperialists in united action, it is, of course, impossible for (Chinese) Marxist-Leninists to join in and take 'united action' with them," the Chinese said.

The Chinese, in an 18,000-word article in the party theoretical journal Red Flag, said the Soviet peace moves started in January when Soviet leaders transmitted to Communist North Viet Nam a U.S. demand that it stop supporting the Viet Cong, stop supplying it with guns and stop attacks on the cities of South Viet Nam.

The article outlined these other Soviet overtures and the responses:

In February, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, en route home from North Viet Nam, stressed in talks with Chinese leaders in Peking "the need to help the United States find a way out of Viet Nam."

"This was firmly rebutted," the Chinese said, and "we expressed the hope that the new leaders of the Soviet Communist party would support the struggle of the Vietnamese people and not make a deal with the United States on the question of Viet Nam."

Kosygin agreed, but "the new leaders of the Communist party of the Soviet Union soon went back on their promise."

On Feb. 15, the day after Kosygin returned to Moscow, the Soviet government officially put before North Viet Nam and China a proposal to convene a new international conference on Indochina without prior conditions.

This amounted to an endorsement of President Johnson's offer for "unconditional negotiations," Peking claimed. It charged that the Soviet leaders have been trying to arrange peace talks without mentioning withdrawal of U. S. forces from Viet Nam.

The Soviet Union then began to insinuate negotiations could be held "if only the United States stopped its bombing of North Viet Nam."

"And sure enough, not long afterwards Johnson came out with the maneuver of 'the temporary suspension of bombing.'"

After their proposals failed, the article continued, the Soviets began to collaborate with India and Yugoslavia — "both lackeys of U.S. imperialism" — as "brokers" on the Viet Nam question.

Administration Shelves Fulbright

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson's approval of a European-Asiatic factfinding tour by Sen. Mike Mansfield has raised new speculation over White House relations with Sen. J. W. Fulbright.

While Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, and four colleagues are assessing relations with European allies and probing conditions in Asia, Fulbright, the Arkansas Democrat who heads the Foreign Relations Committee, is scheduled to attend a minor conference in New Zealand.

Fulbright has contended that the Johnson administration over-reacted when it intervened militarily in the Dominican Republic. He has suggested a new and longer pause in North Viet Nam bombings to encourage the Communists there to negotiate. The White House has said this would not do any good.

Fulbright heads a group scheduled to attend a meeting of British Commonwealth parliamentarians in Wellington, New Zealand, the first week of December.

It was not exactly clear how the Mansfield trip materialized. But it was known that it was not authorized through the Foreign Relations Committee and that Fulbright was surprised by the announcement.

Mansfield has been critical of some aspects of Johnson's Viet Nam policy. But he has supported the President's course despite his original opposition to escalation of the war.

Populous Northeast Struggles To Return To Normal

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's populous Northeast struggled today to return to normal as government agencies sought an answer to the paralyzing power failure.

Businesses and transportation facilities, crippled by the 10-hour blackout that spread across seven states and into Canada Tuesday night, hopefully looked to near normal operations today.

Power conservation is being observed in New York City, hardest hit by the massive technological breakdown. Full power is not expected to be restored for several days.

The Veterans Day holiday is contributing to the return to normal. Schools, government facilities, banks and some businesses are closed today—granting a day's grace to New York's

The closed facilities also will require far less power.

Cause of the historic breakdown remains as dar' as the blackout itself, but st and federal agencies are making intensive investigations.

James A. Lundy, chairman of the New York Public Service Commission, said he was confident the reason for the failure will be uncovered. It apparently originated in Upstate New York.

Uppermost in the minds of government and industry leaders is the prevention of a recurrence. Some warned that it could happen again unless the cause is tracked down and eliminated.

Mayor-elect John V. Lindsay of New York City called Wednesday for better citywide communications to help cope with such emergencies. He also suggested that the city consider creating an independent emergency power system.

In Washington, government and industry experts on power system operations seek in closed sessions today the cause of the power failure through a study of utility operation records.

In Conway, N. H., it took some reassuring to convince 11-year-old Jay Hounsell that he was not to blame for the blackout.

As he walked home he idly batted hydrants and trees with a stick. At precisely 5:28 p.m. he whacked a street light pole -- and all the lights went out.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Thursday, November 11 is Veteran's Day.

SIX WORDS IMPORTANT TO U.S. SECURITY

In 1946, when the U.S. accepted the compulsory jurisdiction of the World Court, it excluded among other matters: "Disputes with regard to matters which are essentially within the jurisdiction of the United States, as determined by the United States." These last six words were added by the then Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Tom Connally, and are known as the Connally Amendment or the Connally Reservation. The purpose of this amendment was to safeguard the vital interests of the United States.

For 17 years, the One Worlders have been trying to repeal the Connally Amendment. Mr. Frank B. Ober, a past president of the Maryland Bar Association, has forcefully pointed out their continuing efforts pose a clear and present danger to our national security.

When the United States Senate voted to limit U. S. submission to the rulings of the U.N. World Court, the chief fear expressed was that the court would assume jurisdiction over such matters as immigration, tariffs, and the Panama Canal.

Today these justified fears have been deepened and widened by the cold war.

For example, Fidel Castro from time to time makes threatening gestures against the U.S. base at Guantanamo. On December 14, 1960, the General Assembly of the U.N. declared in an 89-0 vote that all non-self-governing territories should be given immediate independence. This resolution came from the Afro-Asian bloc of nations, but it was Russian-inspired and Russian-supported. It was a direct threat against all our vital defense bases in such places as Cuba, Puerto Rico, Okinawa, Guam, and the Virgin Islands.

Suppose that Castro should carry out his repeated threat to expropriate the base at Guantanamo. The U.N. World Court, using the December, 1960, resolution as a basis, could decide that Cuba has titular sovereignty over the base and could do with it as Castro wishes. In such a case, the United States would have another hopeless claim for damages to be added to the $1 billion Cuba already owes the U.S. for expropriated property.

In recent years, a number of leaders of the American bar have been agitating to have the Connally Amendment repealed, ignoring the possibilities such a situation would present.

They ignore the fact that there is no real code of international law on which to base decisions by precedent.

Furthermore, they proceed on the theory that World Court judges will maintain judicial objectivity despite political backgrounds. To think that a judge from an Iron Curtain country would disregard the directives of his political leaders is unrealistic. Objectivity is not encouraged in a totalitarian state, and it would never be permitted in a judge.

One judge from the United States sits on the World Court. There are two communist judges; one from Russia, and one from Poland. And not a single communist nation in the world has submitted to the court's compulsory jurisdiction.

The communist concept of the judicial function is different from ours. Consider this statement by the late Andrei Vishinsky, a Russian lawyer as well as a communist diplomat:

"The Court of the Soviet State is an inseparable part of the governmental machinery of the poletarian dictatorship. . . .In content, its activity is identical with the activities of other agencies of administration which have the task of protecting and strengthening the revolutionary order. . . .The program of the Communist Party repudiates the principle of separation of powers."

That is the unchanging view of the communists toward the judiciary. Is it reasonable to believe that a Russian judge or any other communist judge brought up in this tradition would ever be objective in determining matters affecting the security of the United States?

The manner in which justice of the U.N. World Court are chosen is a matter of considerable importance to the United States. They are elected by joint action of the General Assembly and the Security Council of the United Nations. If the U.S. were to commit diplomatic suicide by repealing the Connally Amendment, thus allowing the Court to decide what constitutes internal and international matters, we could count upon a definite attempt to pack the Court with justices inimical to U.S. interests.

Another matter to be considered is the loose language of the U.N. statute which created the Court. However, in this country, certainty in law is of vital importance; our domestic law is constantly being clarified by statutes and court decisions. Courts in this country demand precision in the law for the protection of all.

If certainty in the law is important to individuals then it is doubly important to nations. But there is no such certainty in connection with the World Court. What certainty is to be found, for instance, in the language of Article 38 of the Court Statute which holds that the justices in the absence of a treaty should be guided by; "International custom as a general practice accepted by law," or "principles of law recognized by civilized nations," or "teachings of publicists?"

Whose international customs and general practices should prevail? What is a civilized nation and what is not? The debate could go on for years in the World Court.

Summing up, these would be the principal results of repealing the Connally Reservation:

(1) Our position would be weakened internationally and domestically.

(2) Puppet judges from communist countries and from other countries embracing a monolithic, authoritarian form of government would make a mockery of the decisions f the World Court, whenever ordered to do so by their political superiors.

(3) The influx of new inexperienced nations into the U.N. will make it possible to pack the court with judges antagonistic to our ideals and to our way of life.

(4) Since there are no clear rules of international law, there would be no protection from interference by the World Court in matters previously considered to be domestic.

Most middle aged persons recall how work--any form of honest toil--was venerated by their parents.

Our parents thought work experience was the best training for life. The young boy who learned a trade was thought to have the best possible insurance policy. Even if he entered other work he always had the trade on which to rely if necessary.

Work also was recommended as a means of keeping out of mischief.

Today it is more difficult for the young to find work and the emphasis has shifted to education.

It is rare that a formula for work, keeping out of mischief and learning a trade can be combined to produce happiness but the first teacher of Louis Armstrong has combined all of these elements.

When Louie visited New Orleans, where he grew up in a less than desirable neighborhood, recently the teacher, Peter Davis, was there to express it:

"He never had a frown. He never had time with his jigging, dancing, singing and playing."

The formula worked, too, for Louie.

He is both an entertainer and a symbol of happiness. If he weren't the state department would not have put him on tour around the world.

Satchmo has never been known to frown. He has loosened up some sad looking and hard bitten cats behind the Iron Curtain, causing them to smile and look like happy human beings--at least momentarily.

When the saints come marching in and the last chapter is written in Armstrong's life he still will be smiling.

He may also be sweating and wiping his brow with the flourish of a large white handkerchief.

The perspiration, however, is not to be confused with tears or even unhappy toil because Louie always is happy in his work.

That is happy sweat oozing from his black skin.

There also stands that formula for happy work--jigging, dancing, singing and playing.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYBODY

A NEWSPAPER HAS something for everybody. There are sports stories, financial and business news, women's pages, comics, advice, health, entertainment, education, current news. Every member of the family finds something interesting in the newspaper. Truly it is remarkable that one newspaper can have so many masters.

Not only does the newspaper have something for everybody but people like the things they find in their newspaper, including advertising. That is why they pay to read their newspaper, including the advertising.

POLITICAL FINAGLING REBUKED

A short time ago the Federal Power Commission licensed a group of business - managed private utility companies, which have banded together under the name of Pacific Northwest Power Company, to build High Mountain Sheep Dam on the Snake River.

This is a tremendous project, budgeted at $247 million. The benefits to the region would be enormous. And the FPC decision, seemingly, ended a bitter controversy that has been going on for some six years. The reason for this long and intolerable delay is that public power groups, aided in a latter stage by the Interior Department, want to build the dam on a socialized basis. Now, following the decision, those groups indicate that they will take further delaying action.

Stimulation of the economy and solutions to the persistent unemployment problem are prime national goals. So is stimulation of tax revenue that will balance, to some degree, the tax reductions. A spokesman for the utilities considered has said this, and truer words were never uttered: "High Mountain Sheep is a project which will mean so much to the growth of the region in jobs and payrolls, taxes and their power supplies. Pacific Northwest Power Co. wants to get on with the job.' ' But the advocates of socialized power apparently mean to do whatever they can to see that it cannot get on.

The Federal Power Commission deserves commendation for its decision. And that decision, as the Portland, Oregon, Journal puts it, ". . . ought to be the end of the road in a long and complex public-private power controversy." Beyond that, there is a precedent at stake which overshadows this particular project. It is whether such needed developments, which will make enormous contributions to the well-being of their regions, can be indefinitely delayed and perhaps finally prevented by political finagling.

SOMETHING NEW

One of the characteristics of private enterprise is its proven ability, on occasion after occasion, to achieve what many have believed to be impossible.

England will see a good example of it next spring. A heavily insulated tanker will slip alongside a jetty near London. Aboard will be a cargo of "frozen gas," super-refrigerated to a temperature of minus 258 degrees Fahrenheit. It will be the first of many shipments destined to bring cheaper and more convenient heat and fuel to millions of people overseas.

The freezing of natural gas has been in the project stage for years. There were grave doubts as to its feasibility, though there was no question that, if it could be successfully achieved, the benefits would be enormous -- for instance, it takes only one barrel of storage space for the frozen gas for each 600 barrels of space it occupies as a vapor. One by the one the problems were solved. And a mammoth production project was pioneered by a group of enterprises -- the Union Stock Yard and Transit Company of Chicago, Continental Oil Company and the Royal Dutch Shell Group, working with the Gas Council of Great Britain.

The long-range possibilities are now probabilities. New opportunities are open for gas-hungry countries seeking a more economical fuel that cannot be served by pipelines. And it will make its mark here at home by aiding the U.S. gas industry to liquefy natural gas during offseasons for storage and later revaporize it to meet demands of peak periods.

The old saying -- "There's nothing new under the sun" -- needs revising!

HELPS GREAT OAKS GROW

President Johnson's order that the number of big government limousines used by officials be reduced by about 85 per cent may have raised skeptical eyebrows in some quarters . This will amount to a virtually invisible saving in a $98 billion national budget.

But there is more to this seemingly small matter than that. As the Portland Oregonian puts it, " . . the psychological impact should be good, both on government officials and the taxpayers they are hired to serve. The public may have a little more confidence in the integrity of its federal government if it sees fewer civil servants traveling about like maharajahs in chauffeured Cadillacs. And perhaps government employes may have a better understanding of the needs and wishes of the taxpayers, most of whom also are required by the limitations of their personal budgets to ride in austere conveyances."

It was this idea, no doubt, that led to the President's directive. And from such little acorns, one hopes, may great oaks grow.

THE WORDS MEN LIVE BY--

Patriotism, Loyalty, Self-respect, Decency, Honor, Work

These are the labels of the ideals which built this country, saved the world, still feed the hungry and support the old and sick. These things are the only hope of the future.

Courts may seem to condone treason, labor leaders downgrade hard work, theaters show filth, politicians smirk at dishonor, and too many sneer at self-respect.

But in spite of all these, there are still hundreds of thousands of Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts; thousands who work without pay for Red Cross and Family Service; there is still Junior Achievement; there are churches so crowded they hold two services every Sunday; still Americans who volunteer for dangerous action in the Armed Services; still hundreds of thousands too self-respecting to go on relief so long as they can get any work of any kind; there are still countless boys who get up at 5 in the morning to carry newspapers or shovel snow or run errands; still hundreds of thousands of men and women who do two jobs so they can help buy an education for a son or a home for old parents.

Yes, somehow, in spite of the greedy who want something for nothing, most of America is still the land of the free and the home of the brave. Don't anyone dare try to change it.

KEEP IT VOLUNTARY

Before any presidential election, proposals and promises are made by candidates that purport to care for various groups, generally at the expense of all the people.

Some of the plans are good and some are not, so it is up to citizens and taxpayers to try and sift the wheat from the chaff.

The function of government is to help the unfortunate and the needy, but proposals that put millions of citizens in that class just because they have reached a certain age seem to be going beyond the bounds of reason.

Already taxation absorbs the savings of young people at an alarming rate. Is it necessary to dump a heavier load on them by way of increased social security taxes for government-controlled medical care for persons who don't need it?

The supporters of a federal Medicare plan assume that no alternative exists for the social security tax for financing medical care for the elderly.

Voluntary health insurance plans have been growing at a fantastic rate. Figures recently published show that 60 per cent of the aged had voluntary health insurance in 1962 and that at the rate of increase, coverage can be expected to reach 68 to 75 per cent by 1969.

With existing public aid plans in the medical field, and with the continued growth of voluntary health insurance, if it operates in a free competitive economy, there is every reason to believe that the number of elderly persons needing public medical assistance can be cared for properly without loading the younger generation with billion dollar tax bills for compulsory health insurance payments through social security.

H. L. Hunt Says

PATRIOTISM IS FAITH

Alexis de Tocqueville, after a visit to the United States, was asked what in his opinion made America great. He replied that he had seen much of America, had seen the great railroads, the busy factories, the fertile farms. He was deeply impressed by their importance. But, he believed, the greatness of America lay in the faith of her people. The churches of America, he said, are everywhere, and American was great because America was good.

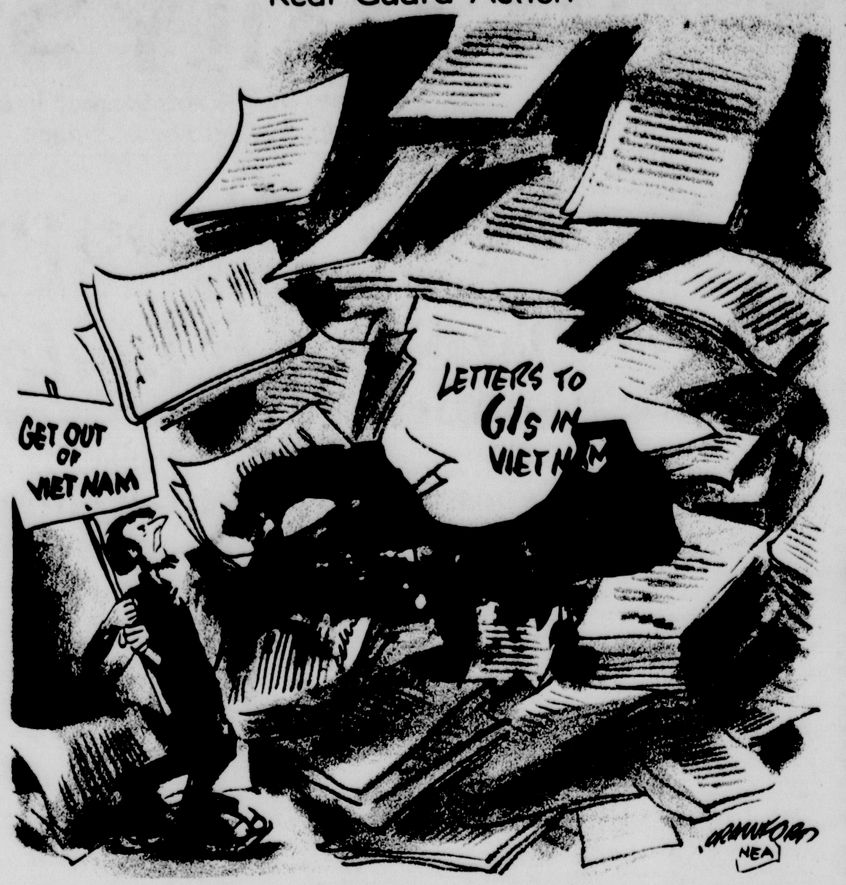

This happened in the nineteenth century. The years since have brought many changes. But they have not changed the truth that America's greatness must grow out of her goodness--out of the faith of her people. A basic factor in the faith of our people is a deep and abiding love for liberty. That is our tradition.

Today liberty is threatened. It is a time above all times when our love for freedom must be accompanied by a determination to save freedom. Vitally needed now is a dedicated eagerness on the part of the Patriots to give of their time, their energy, and their intelligence to working for the cause of liberty.

The conspirators who have dedicated themselves to destroying freedom in the world never let up in their efforts. Patriots must be no less wholehearted in faith, no less energetic in action.

Some say it is too late and use that as an excuse to do nothing. To that the Patriot would reply, "It is too late not to try." Americans, trying together in faith, can win because they are right. HLH

NEW YORK (AP) — General prosperity never knits people as closely together as does general trouble.

That's when they learn "the buddy system."

The overnight blackout here proved this anew. The metropolis wasn't left in total darkness. It was lit by a warm glow.

On ordinary days this titan of cities is made up of eight million crowded individual human islands, most of whom are indifferent to each other and dwell in a protective, shell-like isolation.

If they have private woes, they generally bear them alone.

Each has his own ambition or goal, and sometimes each feels like all the other 7,999,999 people are getting in his way. So they step on each other's toes, and race against each other for taxicabs, parking spaces, department store bargains, theater tickets, and subway, bus or train seats.

The unofficial policy is "devil take the hindmost." If a stranger starts to speak to them on the sidewalk, their first reaction is one of suspicion: "What is this guy trying to get from me?"

It is this attitude that gave rise to the oldest cliche about New York City: "It's a great place to visit, but I sure would hate to live there."

But when general trouble comes, a truce is called here in the routine strife. The prisoners of the concrete and high glass canyons realize how much dependent on each other they really are.

The herd then becomes a real herd. Instead of seeking petty disadvantages, people help each other. Sharing a new discomfort brings them together in a new camaraderie. Grumpiness is replaced by a feeling of genial good will. The complainer is laughed out of face.

It was that way during the famous blizzard of 1888. It was that way during the record two-foot-plus snowfall of 1947. And it was that way during the great blackout of 1965, when most of the lights went out, subways stalled, and even the television sets went blank.

When a power breakdown spread a deepening pall across the metropolis, the commonplace became an unknown. The city turned into one vast friendly neighborhood, lit only by car lights, matches, candles, flashlights that roved like fireflies, and a big full mellow harvest that shone like a blob of butter.

Everybody had an eerie or comic adventure. They climbed up and down inky stairwells. Stranded employes in lofty skyscrapers joked and told stories, played cards by candlelight, bunked down on office couches. Heaven only knows how many stenographers got kissed in darkened corridors by junior executives who never even knew their first names before.

For days people will be telling each other their experiences, feeling a kindling warmth that all feel who have met trouble together. But gradually the warm human glow will evaporate and they will become private islands again as the routine frictions of the commonplace wear them apart.

In a way, it's a shame that only in common danger do we appreciate our mutual need for one another.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- This is the story of an American, born in Russia, whose adopted country gave him such opportunities that he became many times a millionaire, but who is now howling his head off because the government that helped him wants to hold down the price of aluminum.

It's the story of Leo Harvey, head of Harvey Aluminum. With it goes the story of his family which also received great benefits from the United States of America. It's a story not unlike that of the other aluminum companies, most of which were put in business by Uncle Sam, loaned money by him to build their factories, given a guaranteed price, plus government contracts.

Yet they are now squawking because the government which befriended them is selling part of its stockpile to keep aluminum prices down.

Leo Harvey, an energetic Russian immigrant, began to make big money on munitions contracts during the last war. At that time the navy investigated and stopped his brother, Herbert Harvey, from sneaking offsized 20-MM shells past navy inspectors. But the navy didn't prosecute. And the Harvey family went on to more government contracts and bigger profits. The family also went on into politics, cosying up to both political parties and contributing substantially to each.

On the Republican side, the Harveys hired Tom Dewey, twice GOP candidate for president. On the Democratic side, Mrs. Carmine Warschaw, daughter of Leo, has been southern California chairman while her brother Lawrence was once candidate to be Democratic national committeeman from California.

REPUBLICAN BONANZA

However, it was under the Republicans that the Harveys got some of their juiciest help from the generous government which gave them a haven.

In 1955, Tom Dewey sent his law associate, James F. Nickerson, to Washington to persuade Eisenhower officials to give the Harveys a heads-they - win, tails - the - government-loses contract. The Harveys got an agreement to sell aluminum to the government for five years, plus a certificate on tax amortization on their new plant, plus an agreement that a power line would be built from the Dalles, Ore., to Bonneville to bring in cheap government power.

The power line was to cost Uncle Sam $2,200,000. But at the last minute watchful Rep. Clarence Cannon, D-Mo., knocked the item out.

On top of this, the government dug a 15-foot barge channel up the Columbia River to the Harvey Aluminum plant at the Dalles, a channel which chiefly benefits the Harveys.

At that time, the government had a staggering stockpile of 765,000 tons of aluminum. Uncle Sam needed more aluminum like he needed a hole in his head. Despite this, Tom Dewey's law firm had managed to persuade the government to buy 200,000 tons of aluminum from the Harveys to add to the stockpile. Dewey, according to testimony before Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., did this by calling on Sherman Adams, the No. 2 man in the White House, who in turn called Ed Mansure, then head of General Services and in charge of stockpiles. Instructions were given to buy the 200,000 tons of aluminum.

This is the same Harvey aluminum which now complains when the United States government sells the same amount of aluminum which it once purchased from Harvey--200,000 tons -- after Harvey and other members of the aluminum industry had increased prices.

LANDLORD HARVEY

This, however, is only part of the story of the Russian immigrant and his family and how they have benefited from a kindly Uncle Sam.

The Harveys own the Harvey building at 417 S. Hill street, Los Angeles, where up until the spring of this year no minorities were employed and where a strict non-union policy was enforced.

President Johnson is well known for both his championship of minorities and his friendly policy toward labor unions. Nevertheless the Johnson administration rents office space from the Harveys for the Agriculture Department, the GSA, the Department of HEW, Internal Revenue, the Housing and Home Finance agency, Treasury, Post Office department and the Social Security Administration.

This is all rented from the company which last week complained because the government was trying to keep aluminum prices down.

The Harvey family also owns the building at 909 S. Broadway in Los Angeles, where they follow the same policy on minority races and unions. While the federal government rents no office space there, Gov. Pat Brown, a close friend of President Johnson and in sympathy with him on keeping prices down, does rent space for the Colorado River board and the California Division of Water Resources.

The state of California also rents space in the Harvey building on Hill St., for its Department of Rehabilitation, and garages all its cars connected with narcotic cases in that building.

In the Virgin Islands, Harvey Aluminum recently persuaded Secretary of the Interior Udall and Gov. Ralph Paiewonsky to ok the purchase of a large tract of land on St. Croix for bauxite development, despite the opposition of many Virgin Islands residents who wanted to keep that scenic area as a non-industrialized tourist mecca.

The story of some of the other aluminum companies and the concessions they got from a kindly government which they are now criticizing for holding aluminum prices will follow in another column.

Daughters Of Isabella Have Monthly Business Meeting

The November business meeting of the Daughters of Isabella was held Wednesday, Nov. 3, in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Three applications for membership were read and the members voted to accept them.

The quarterly letter from Anna C. Walsh, supreme regent, was read concerning the campaign for new members and a congratulatory note to the officers being installed for the ensuing year. Also a letter from Ann B. Oswald, state regent, was read regarding the members and their families buying U.S. Savings Bonds.

The members were urged to bring their gifts of jewelry, cosmetics, and other things for the patients at the state hospital at Farmington to the December meeting so they can be taken or sent to the hospital before Christmas.

The members voted to have a Christmas party for the members and their husbands. All the members will be contacted at a later date concerning the date, place and time of the party. The committee appointed for this party consists of Della Duclos, chairman; Jeri Lewis and Jo Ann Schweer.

The committee appointed for the December business meeting is Alma York, chairman; Pauline Kaullen, Hazel Watkins and Beulah Leible.

The regent announced the December meeting will be held in the school basement.

The highlight of the meeting was the installation of the new officers for the coming year and the members were honored to have Mrs. Ann Oswald, the state regent of University City, at the meeting.

Also four new members were initiated into the Daughters of Isabella. They are Mary Pobst, Virginia Pobst, Margaret Pobst and Barbara Schuchart.

After the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Judy Hart, Martha Hampton and Mary Schuchart.

Food Prices May Rise This Winter

Housewives may have to cope with mounting grocery bills this winter.

It is the old law of supply and demand. Bad weather, the war in Viet Nam and labor shortages have cut the food supplies available for civilians.

This has been a bad growing year, with tropical storms in the South, rain in the Midwest and an abnormal freeze in the Pacific Northwest.

The military has embarked on a virtual crash program to purchase food for forces overseas, primarily in Viet Nam.

Supplies of most canned foods already are tighter than last year, and canners say the government is paying above market prices that come close to a requisition of supplies.

David V. Whitley of Chicago, newly elected president of the National Association of Frozen Food Packers, said corn, lima beans, green beans and mixed vegetables will be in short supply because of bad crops this year.

Strawberries also are in short supply.

But there is a big crop of peas, and citrus fruits are plentiful.

Meat, poultry and fish have been running 5.3 per cent higher than last year, which is no news to shoppers. Cereals and baked goods have been up 1 per cent.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture says there may be a small decline in meat prices this winter.

Potatoes, a costly addition to meat - and - potatoes menus earlier this year, should be more economical in the month to come.

Alpha Chi Omega To Install New Chapter Nov. 19

Alpha Chi Omega, national social sorority, will install its 103rd collegiate chapter on the campus of William Woods College, Fulton, the weekend of Nov. 19-21.

Founded in 1885 at DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind., Alpha Chi Omega currently has chapters in Missouri at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Washington University, St. Louis, and Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau. Organized alumnae groups in the state are in Kansas City, St. Louis, St. Joseph, Columbia, Cape Girardeau, and Springfield.

Installation of Delta Chi chapter of Alpha Chi Omega will get underway Friday evening, Nov. 19, with a social hour at the Alpha Chi Omega chapter house at the University of Missouri and will include initiation of 32 members on Saturday and a formal installation banquet Saturday evening. The weekend of activities will culminate on Sunday, Nov. 21, with a William Woods College hosted reception on the College campus in Fulton.

Members of the National Council of Alpha Chi Omega who will participate in the installation are National Extension Director Mrs. J. William Burke, Vermillion, S. D., National Alumnae Membership Development Director Mrs. Bryan G. Kollenborn, Des Peres, and National Panhellenic Delegate Mrs. Wilbur G. Payne, Winnetka, Ill.

Other Alpha Chi Omega alumnae participating in the installation are Mrs. Robert F. Wilkinson Jr., Springfield, Mo., general chairman for the installation; Mrs. Weston E. Goodnow, Prairie Village, Kan., province president for Missouri collegiate chapters; Mrs. Arthur T. Woodman, Derby, Kan., district alumnae chairman for Missouri and Kansas; and Mrs. Norman Govoni, Columbia, Mo., reservations chairman.

Approximately 200 collegiate and alumnae members of Alpha Chi Omega from Missouri are expected to participate in the installation events. Interested alumnae may contact Mrs. Wilkinson, 1312 S. National, Springfield.

On the same weekend, installations will also take place for collegiate chapters of Alpha Phi and Chi Omega sororities with the Sunday reception also held in their honor.

Stage Set For The 14th Running Of The Washington, D.C.

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAUREL, Md. (AP) —Laurel race track officials will spend an estimated $250,000 to stage the 14th running of the Washington, D.C., International today. But they gladly would have spent more to save the headaches that have plagued them since they started putting the field together for the 1½-mile grass course event.

John Schapiro, president of the track located midway between Baltimore and Washington, gave the figures after the field had been cut to seven Wednesday by the withdrawal of Hill Rise.

Hill Rise, last to be invited but second choice in the advance line, developed a 103-degree temperature Wednesday morning following a satisfactory workout. Owner George A. Pope Jr. lost no time withdrawing his 4-year-old, who had scored an impressive victory in the Man o'War at Aqueduct his last time out.

The withdrawal of Hill Rise was the latest in the long line of disappointments as Schapiro organized the field. First he had hoped to get Kelso, the world's leading money winner, but the 1964 International winner and five times America's Horse of the Year, suffered an eye injury.

Before and after there were such other setbacks as: Tom Rolfe, foremost American 3-year-old, declined the issue; Ireland's Meadow Court failed to hold the form he showed in winning the Irish Derby; owners of Sea Bird and Reliance, Europe's two best 3-year-olds, advised their colts would not be available; England's Convarmore turned up lame; Italy's Hazeltine was injured in a workout; Russia's Analine, third in 1964, failed to appear, and Venezuela's Calcas came down with colic shortly before he was scheduled to leave Caracas.

The International is a race in which Laurel picks up the entire check for shipping of the horses and the expenses of the owners, trainers, jockeys and other handlers. There is no entry fee.

In counting of the expenses, Schapiro listed first the $150,0000 purse of which $90,000 goes to the winner. He said it cost an average of $10,000 to bring in each horse with his entourage with the remainder of the estimated quarter million dollars going to promotion and expenses for keeping tabs on the eligibles in all of the major horse racing centers of the world.

Roman Brother, who can move into the select group of equine millionaires with victory today, was made the strong 6-5 favorite after Hill Rise's withdrawal. He already has banked $920,203 with $242,520 of it this year —mostly from victories in the Woodward, Manhattan and Jockey Club Gold Cup. The three races were run on the dirt track at Aqueduct.

Diatome, rated behind Sea Bird and Reliance in France's 3-year-old division, took over the runner-up spot in the advance odds at 3-1. He was followed by England's Super Sam at 5-1, Canada's George Royal 6-1, America's Hail to All 8-1, Argentina's Berenjenal 10-1 and France's Carvin 12-1.

The first six horses will share in the prize money ranging from $25,000 for second to $5,000 for fifth and sixth.

Post time is 3:45 p.m., EST. There is no national television.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Sugar Ray Near End Of Road

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson is near the end of the road but the roar of the crowd still makes sweet music in his ears. The fight with young Joey Archer Wednesday night may have been his last stop. The Harlem dandy wants to think it over for a day or two before he makes up his mind.

The Sugar Man retired way back in 1952 and stayed away for two years. After he came back he won and lost the world middleweight title three times. But the skills that earned him the reputation of the best fighter pound-for-pound in all ring history have faded.

His dream of winning the championship for the sixth time must have vanished in thin air after his game effort but decisive defeat by the 27-year old New York Irishman.

It is Archer's turn to scream "we want Dick Tiger." Chances are he'll get that shot at the middleweight crown. Teddy Brenner, the Madison Square Garden matchmaker, wants to make it for March in New York.

Archer knocked down Robinson for a nine-count in the fourth round to the surprise of the Civic Arena crowd of 9,023 that paid a gross gate of $40,913. He rocked the tired body of the faded ex-champion time after time and almost put him away in the 10th round.

All three officials voted for him — referee Buck McTiernan 48-41, judge Ernie Sesto 49-40 and judge George Lupinacci 50-39. The AP card was 48-41.

When the final bell rang the cheers were for Sugar Ray, who claims to be 44 although the record books carry his age at 45. They weren't applauding because they thought Robinson had won.

They were paying a tribute to a gallant stand by an old man who was still trying to knock out the kid with one big punch. He had only one big round, the third.

The truth of the matter is that Robinson's once potent punch has lost its zip. He raked Archer with left hooks and combinations as he punished Randy Turpin, Gene Fullmer, Jake Lamotta, Rocky Graziano, Carmen Basilio and all the others in the good old days.

Nothing happened. Archer shook off the bombs and pecked away with that stiff left jab that forced the old boy to apply ice packs to his cheeks in his dressing room.

"I tried from the first punch to knock him out," said Robinson, a forlorn figure on a bench. "The knockdown was the difference. He caught me off balance with a right hand."

Is this the end?

"You'll have to ask my manager," said Robinson pointing to George Gainford.

"We'll decide in a couple of days," said the sweaty Emperor. Later, in a dark corridor, Gainford nodded his head and said, "Age catches up to everybody."

Around the corner and down the hall, the Archer boys, Joey and his brother, Jimmy, who acts as his manager, were yelling for Tiger. But first, Joey had a kind word for Ray.

"He's still a great champion," said Joey. "He went out like a champ. I can see why they said he was so great. I learned something fighting him."

It was Robinson's 14th fight of the year and his fifth defeat.

Olympic Steeplechase

BRUSSELS, Belgium AP — Gaston Roelants, the Olympic steeplechase champion from Belgium, has accepted invitations to compete in indoor track meets at Los Angeles, Jan. 22 and New York, Jan. 27, it was announced here today.

molested during the special hunt, and no firearms of any type may be taken into the area.

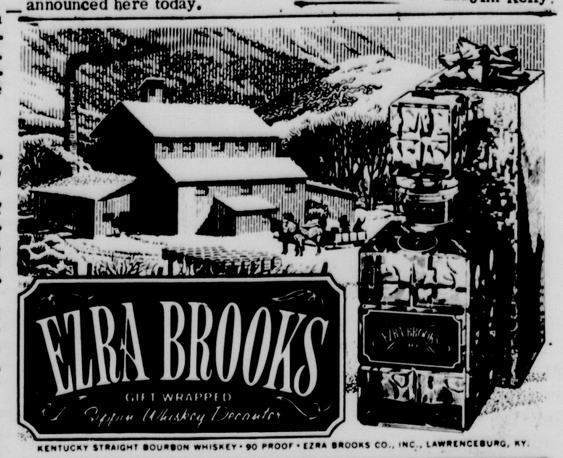

The Missouri firearms deer season will be Nov. 15 through 21.

Archers had killed 122 deer during the first 24 days of the archery deer season, which opened Oct. 1. In the first 24 days of the 1964 season, 110 deer had been taken. Last season's archery total was 316.

Francis Toye, the English novelist, recalls a schoolmaster he once had who developed a reputation for short reports to parents. On one occasion he wrote of a certain boy, "Trying."

The parents were delighted — until the next report came in. This one read, "Very Trying."

Morehouse Over Risco

MOREHOUSE -- The Morehouse Tigers whipped Risco Tuesday night, 41-32. In their opener with Bell City, Morehouse got first game jitters and were defeated, 40-30. There were 12 personal fouls called on Morehouse. Risco came through with 21 fouls. Haley was the ace scorer for Morehouse with 14 total points, next came Crumpecker with 11, Hewitt had 8, Ruedrich had 6, and Elliott had 2.

Risco's top point man was Knight with a total of 13 points. Thomas was next in line with 7, then Duckworth with 6, Bates racked up 4 and Case had 2.

The Morehouse Tigers looked like a team last night as they set back Risco. They should be among the top teams in basketball this year.

Portageville End Season With Piggott

By Don Voelker
Sports Writer

PORTAGEVILLE -- The Portageville Bulldogs will play their last game of the year in Piggott, Arkansas, this Friday night. The Piggott Mohawks skinned Paragould last week, 6-0, and this week they are going to be after the Bulldog's hair.

Portageville is in fine condition this week, however, one key player may be out of action, Fullback, Bruce Henning, who sprained his ankle in last week's game with Hayti. Gordon Stout, offensive guard, has been doing an excellent job this year for the Bulldogs. Stout will take Henning's place in the backfield tomorrow night if Henning is unable to play.

Gordon Stout will probably be up for a college scholarship because of the fine playing he has done this year. Stout weighs in at 178 pounds and he has beaten down a lot of 200 pound boys that have played across from him. He also averages nine to ten individual tackles per game. "I think that he is the best lineman in the conference. He is the best guard I have ever had dealings with since I have been coaching," said Portageville head football coach Bill Nance. Stout is also doing very good in his school work.

Ronnie Hamra has also been doing a good job for the Dogs. He does a fine job running, throwing, and blocking.

Piggott has a strong ball club. They have a 5-2-1 record this year. The two teams that have beaten them were both tops in their conference. Portageville will be out weighed 20 to 25 pounds to a man. Piggott's Pat McCarsen is a 5' 6", 185 pound halfback, and probably the biggest fullback in the conference is Piggott's 270 pound Dan Newton.

The Bulldogs are in high spirits. They are lacking in size but they have a lot of determination and that alone goes a long way.

Of Guns, Waterfowl, And Fish

Firearms ranked last among the eight major causes of accidental deaths in 1964, accounting for only 2,400 of the 105,000 fatalities. Motor vehicles killed 47,700 persons, falls 19,100, fires 7,700, drownings 6,700, all types of poisons 3,600 and railroads 2,600, according to the National Safety Council.

An indication of how effective a firearms registration law or ban would be can be had in the recent disclosure that 5,000 people were injured by fireworks in the nation last year despite the fact that 38 states prohibit the sale of them.

Waterfowl gunning is on the upswing again, sales of federal duck stamps totaling 1,565,860 during the 1964-65 fiscal period, marking the third successive year that sales have increased. The money is used by the U. S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife to provide refuges for migratory birds.

A female Canada goose caught recently in Greenville, Pa., wore a leg band dating back to 1944 when she was liberated in Ontario, Can., making her a real live Mother Goose.

Young mallard ducks can swim as far as a third of a mile as soon as they leave the nest.

Research studies in Freehold, N. J., showed recently that the common house fly can cover a distance of 6.5 miles, also proved that insecticide - resistant flies carry their poisons into areas where no spraying had been done.

Things are not always what they seem. Trained propoises are actually bottlenose dolphins, the white perch is a landlocked sea bass closely related to the striper and smallmouth bass are members of the sunfish family.

New York Knicks

The Wizard of Oz led the New York Knickerbockers through Wonderland again and he's got Harry Gallatin about ready to start talking back to that looking glass.

The Wizard goes under the name of Oscar Robertson and he plays backcourt for the Cincinnati Royals. But he's the Wizard all right. Just ask Gallatin and the rest of the National Basketball Association coaches whose clubs must play the Royals.

Oscar had a routine night against the Knickerbockers Wednesday. He scored 41 points and tacked on 17 assists as the Royals handed New York its 14 straight loss in Wonderland . . . .er Cincinnati 124-119.

The Knicks, who play like a jinxed club in Cincinnati, opened an 11-point lead in the second period but saw it whither away under a surge by Robertson and Co.

Jerry Lucas helped the Big O, scoring 28 points and pulling down 21 rebounds. Dick Barnett led New York with 35. Jerry West and Elgin Baylor combined for 70 points between them as Los Angeles ripped Detriot 138-125 and Baltimore stood off a late St. Louis surge and beat the Hawks 124-117 in the only other NBA games played Wednesday.

Thanks to Postmaster General J. Edward Day, the nickel wins the award for the greatest comeback of the decade.

Bob Fuchs Lopes 72 Yds For TD

Bob Morrissey scored three touchdowns and teammate Bob Fuchs scored one and kicked five extra points Saturday as Chaminade downed Mehlville, 35-19, in a non-league football game.

Chaminade, winning its seventh game in nine outings, broke away to a 21-0 lead before Mehlville scored. Morrissey tallied on runs of four and six yards in the first period, and Fuchs got loose on a 72-yard TD dash in the second period.

Bob Fuchs is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Fuchs, 1011 North Ranney.

MY HEART WEARS APRIL

My heart wears April as a cloud
Wears moonlight - ruffled edges;
The way a hillside wears the fern
On lichen-patterned ledges;
As wild plum wears its Easter white,
The valley wears its river
And would not sigh for newer clothes
Should April last forever.

45 Day Bow Season

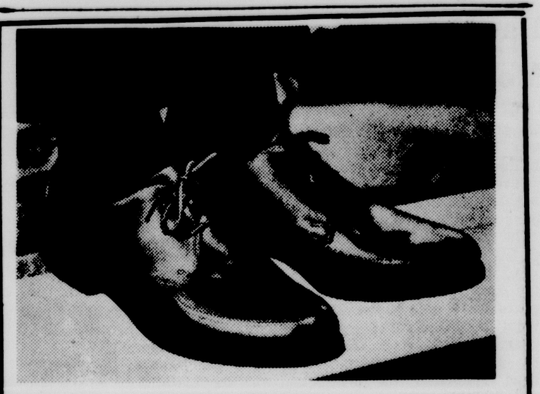

WELDON SPRING -- A special 45-day archery deer season was scheduled to open Nov. 1 at the August A. Busch Memorial Wildlife Area here under sunny skies and with a large herd of deer reported on the area.

Pleasant weather, with temperatures slightly above the seasonal normal, was predicted for opening day of the season, which attracts bowhunters from all parts of Missouri as well as from the St. Louis area.

The harvest during the 1964 special season was 43 deer, which was also the archery total for St. Charles County.

Hunting hours for archers on the Busch Area are 6 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The daily hunting fee on the area of $1 is in addition to the 1965 state archery permit.

All archers hunting the area must check in and out at the area headquarters every day, and all deer killed must be checked at the headquarters. No wildlife except deer may be

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago my boy friend, Dale, asked me if he could dress up in my clothes just for the fun of it. I thought he was joking, but when he showed me the wig he had bought for himself I knew he was serious.

When Dale dressed up and put on make-up he looked like a very pretty girl. I couldn't get over it. He said it would be a great gag to take a walk and see if any fellows made passes at us. I was so curious to find out if he could get away with it that I agreed.

I know this sounds crazy, Ann, but Dale got more whistles than I did -- and he loved it.

Dale is not a homosexual. I know for sure that his sex drives are normal. He just likes to dress up like a girl for kicks. I'd like to marry Dale but this gimmick bothers me. Should I? --STYMIED

Dear Sty: Dale is a transvestite. This does not mean he's homosexual but it is a deviation, nonetheless.

If you want to marry a man who enjoys wearing your clothes and getting passes from men, go ahead. But please urge him to get professional help right away.

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago I gave birth to a premature child. She lived three days. My husband and I were heartbroken.

Almost every day since I came home from the hospital with empty arms I have received a gift (which is really a sales pitch) or a telephone call offering a free sample or free services for the new baby. Each letter and phone call brings added sorrow.

Birth and death are both a matter of public record. Why don't these companies check before sending a gift or making a telephone call inquiring about photographs or books for a child who didn't live?

Please publish this. It could do a world of good.--MRS. C.

Dear Mrs. C.: I'm with you. The outfits that make all those phone calls to get new customers should be able to make a few more phone calls to the hospitals and determine whether the baby lived to go home.

Dear Ann Landers: Thanks a lot for taking our side against Old Creaky Bones who knocked the rock. Sure, our music is different from the music our parents danced to, but almost everything else has changed so why should anyone expect the music and dances to be the same?

My brother and I had a long discussion with our parents about this. They are old, like you--between 45 and 50. We asked what songs they used to sing and dance to. Here are some titles -- and I don't know of any today that are as goofy: "I Scream, You Scream, We All Scream for Ice Cream"; "The Music Goes Round and Round and It Comes Out Here"; "Does the Spearmint Lose It's Flavor on the Bedpost Overnight?"

"My Knock-Kneed, Consumptive Mary Jane"; "Do Wacka Do Wacka Do Wacka Do"; "It Must be Jelly Cause Jam Don't Shake Like That."

The current hits, "Mrs. Brown You Have a Lovely Daughter" and "I Wanna Hold Your Hand" make some sense, at least. Be a pal again and print this.--NORMAL TEEN

Dear Normal: O.K. I'm a pal. (Yeah Yeah Yeah.) But now the parents will be mad. Help!

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Senator Says Food Output Must Double

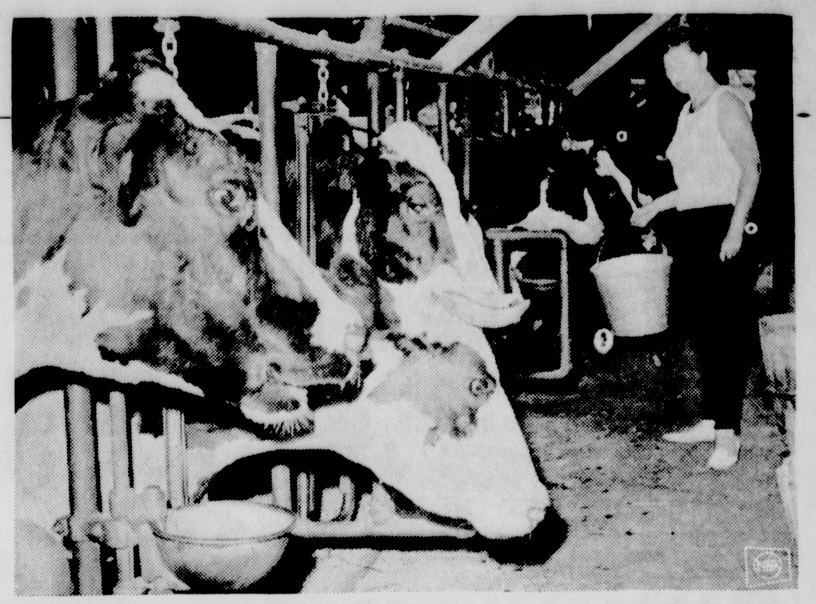

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A world wide famine of incomprehensible magnitude and devastation is inevitable unless the world food output in the next 35 years is doubled, Sen. Frank Carlson, R-Kan., said today.

"People will not continue to starve quietly, and Communist China will have her eye on them," Carlson told the 34th annual meeting of the National Reclamation Association. "She boasts that she will encircle the capitalist world and this could be if more food is not produced to fight the war of hunger.

"If what I have said becomes a prophecy, the chaos that would result could make Viet Nam look like a neighborhood argument."

Carlson's speech was prepared for a luncheon.

Approximately 700 reclamation officials, representing 17 western states and assorted federal agencies are in the second day of a three-day meeting. Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall addressed the convention Wednesday.

MILK FLOWS IN BROOKLYN—Mrs. Sylvia Wank tends some of the 60 dairy cows she and her husband maintain on their half-acre dairy farm deep in the heart of Brooklyn. Surrounded by sheet metal works, parking lots and housing projects, the dairy has been thriving but is being displaced by progress. The New York City Planning Commission wants the Wank land for another housing project.

Carlson, a former governor of Kansas and a leading agricultural spokesman, spoke of "the impending world crisis of mass starvation." He said the crisis is coming about "at such an amazing pace that our national attitude and agricultural policies which, for 30 years, have centered upon ways to deal with crop surpluses, must be abruptly and unmistakably changed.

"It is not generally realized that our nation's surpluses have diminished through the combined effects of land retirements --government subsidies -- and increasing agricultural exports.

"The United States, right now, is experiencing a shortage of dried milk, rice, and everything containing protein --except soybeans, of which we have a carry over of perhaps a hundred million bushels."

Between now and the end of the century, the world population is expected to double, soaring to more than six billion people, Carlson said.

"The implications of the contemporary world situation on the future of America agriculture are numerous . . . we may expect our food surpluses to fall below reserve levels within a relatively short time.

"We may expect a change in the historic American attitude from its concern with crop surpluses and curtailed production, to concern for expansion of production.

"It is not typical for Americans to let a half billion people end their day in anguish of hunger."

Bond Sales Will Speed New Airport

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Kansas City sold $19 million in civic improvement bonds Wednesday, and City Manager Carleton F. Sharpe estimated the money will trigger $90 million worth of construction projects in three years.

As an illustration of how the money will snowball, he cited Mid - Continent International Airport, which is in the initial stages of development about 17 miles northwest of the city.

Wednesday's sale of general obligations included $5.4 million for the airport. Together with a reserve of $2.3 million available, this will assure $6.8 million in federal grants.

When this is all set, the city expects to sell $14.5 million in revenue bonds for building the passenger terminal. Rents collected from the airlines, concessionaires and other users will pay off these bonds.

"For each of our tax dollars invested at the airport, $4 will be provided by other public or private sources," Sharpe said.

He estimated the use of the bond money will bring $8.5 million in private construction, $14 million worth of facilities in a complex of medical institutions on "Hospital Hill" at the south edge of the downtown business district, $3.5 million in new facilities built by the Kansas City school district, $13 million in state expenditures —mostly for expressways —and $10.6 in federal matching funds.

Now! '66 Chevelle Malibu by Chevrolet

'66 Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe (foreground) and new 4-door Malibu Sport Sedan.

Two racy new hardtops

Take your pick of 12 racy-looking new Chevelles in all, including a clean-sculptured new sport coupe with recessed rear window, and—for the first time—a 4-door Chevelle Sport Sedan.

Not only will you find more variety in the '66 Chevelle lineup, but even more of what makes a Chevelle a Chevelle.

Say, for instance, you pick a new Malibu Sport Sedan and specify the new 220-hp V8. You've got yourself quite a machine.

Or pick a Malibu Sport Coupe, equip it with the new Strato-bucket front seats and order the new 275-hp V8. You've got yourself even more machine.

Or maybe you'd like to pick a new black-grilled SS 396 Coupe or Convertible. (Standard engine is a Turbo-Jet 396 V8 with 325 hp. And there's also a 360-hp version you can specify.) Now you've got yourself the most.

Which '66 Chevelle for you? The answer to that covers a lot more ground than we can here. And that's where your Chevrolet dealer comes in.

Unplanned Pregnancies Cause Family Breakdown

By Louise Chase
Women's Medical News Service

Unplanned, undesired pregnancy is one cause of family breakdown in the U. S. This is the view of a Tulane University research team, headed by physician Joseph D. Beasley, which studied almost 150 Negro families living in New Orleans.

The researchers told experts attending the 93rd annual meeting of the American Public Health Association that Unplanned family growth can have "adverse effects on the growth potential of the children already born, and may cause emotional and economic instability which contributes to the breakup of the family."

Why do women of low income fail to plan their families, the researchers wanted to know? Is it because they don't want to? Or is it because they know little or nothing about their own reproductive cycles? Or is it because they are unaware of effective family planning techniques?

The study shows, the team reported, that these women do, indeed, want to plan their families, but are unable to do so largely because they are ignorant of how their bodies work, and are either uninformed or misinformed about contraception.

REPRODUCTION A MYSTERY

Fewer than three out of 10 of the women with only a grade school education "knew the fundamentals of reproductive physiology," while more than half who had gone to high school, and nine out of 10 who had had college training had this information. In sum, 87 percent of the women "did not have a functional knowledge of the ovulatory cycle," according to the researchers. The investigators believe that accurate knowledge in this area leads to "awareness of the possibility of controlling fertility and to the effective use of birth control techniques."

With respect to contraception, the researchers found that one out of three women were not aware of any effective family planning methods. Again, the more education a woman had, the more likely she was to know about birth control methods. Of those with a grade school education, more than seven out of 10 either knew of no method or knew of only one relatively ineffective one. Of women who went to high school, on the other hand, six out of 10 knew of two or more methods, while among the college-educated, more than nine out of 10 knew of an effective method. On the whole, almost three of 10 women knew of no effective family planning methods, according to the researchers.

Do the women care about the number of children they bear? They do, according to these findings, although what they want and what they get are often different.

MORE UNWANTED CHILDREN

According to Dr. Beasley and his colleagues, "whereas only one-third of those with some grade school education wanted four or more children, two-thirds of them already have had four or more pregnancies, and they are still of childbearing age."

Nine out of 10 women told the researchers they believe that couples should have the right to decide for themselves when to stop having children. And 94 percent felt that family planning services should be made available to the medically indigent in New Orleans. Roman Catholic women shared these views with the Protestants interviewed.

Asked whether they want their children to be informed on methods of family planning, nine out of 10 women said they definitely do.

FAMILY PLANNING KNOWLEDGE FAVORED

More than 90 percent of them want their children to have this information before they are married. The rest believe they should know about it at the time they get married or soon after marriage. About the same overwhelmingly majority believe that reproductive biology should be taught in the junior high school.

Dr. Beasley concludes from this and other studies he has made that the motiviation for family planning certainly exists among the poor. The services to meet the need, however, are generally unavailable, he says. He believes that the "inaccessibility of family planning services contributes to family instability."

Kasten Wins Contest For School Post

PERRYVILLE -- The long, drawn out controversary between Oscar P. Kasten and Mrs. Ora N. Guth over the office of Perry County superintendent of schools apparently was settled this week by the Missouri Supreme Court in favor of Mr. Kasten.

Stephen Limbaugh of Cape Girardeau, the attorney for Mr. Kasten, advised his client on Monday:

"I just received a wire from the Clerk of the Supreme Court stating that the decision of the trial court declaring you the winner of the election contest has been affirmed."

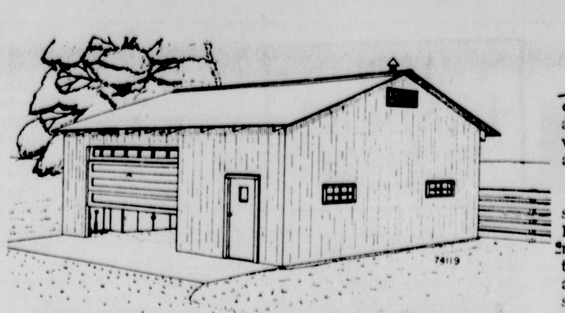

It will be remembered that Kasten, a resident of Uniontown, and Mrs. Guth of Perryville both claimed a victory in the Apr. 2, 1963 election, there being a question concerning the validity of many of Mr. Kasten's write-in votes.

Judge J. O. Swink in Perry county circuit court declared Mrs. Guth the election winner, but a later change of venue to the court of Judge Marshall Craig of Sikeston reversed the decision in favor of Mr. Kasten.

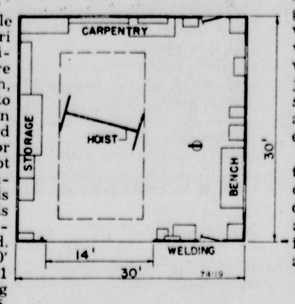

Judge Craig said Kasten was the winner of the election by 10 votes. He officially received 1,147 votes to 1,137 votes for Mrs. Guth.

Since that time, a series of appeals by Mrs. Guth's attorneys, questioning the validity of the votes and later the qualifications of Mr. Kasten, were taken through the courts.

Although Kasten replaced Mrs. Guth in the office of county superintendent, the question of rightful domain was still questionable until the Missouri Supreme Court's latest decision early this week.

A FARM SHOP PLAN available through the University of Missouri department of agricultural engineering, contains advice on where to locate the building, a floor plan, and construction details helpful to the builder. Shown is the location of doors, windows, work areas, and recommended storage areas for tools and equipment. A 14-foot overhead door allows large machines to be repaired inside. Walls are shown as stud or pole. Details showing how to construct and insulate either type are included. The plan is No. 74119, 30' x 30' Farm Shop. ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

by LYNN TWITTY

There has been considerable criticism recently, of the quality of teaching to undergraduate students in the universities and colleges.

Much of this is due to the fairly standard practice of using graduate assistants, who may at times be more interested in receiving an advanced degree, than they are with properly teaching their students. Also many of the regular faculty serve as consultants to industry or government and thus are not only absent from their classes for considerable periods of time but may too lose some interest in the instructional process.

Some of these findings were substantiated by a report drawn up by a faculty committee at Cornell University after a study of this problem.

Student comment, revealed by the report, was that: they had too little contact with the faculty; they said sometimes faculty advisors were indifferent, even hostile to students. They complained about large classes, impersonal testing and grading proceeding bureaucratic administration and "depressing anonymity".

As one of our observations we could add to the above: the pressure by college administration for faculty members to receive advanced degrees and to do research or to publish articles or books could be another factor in distracting a good teacher from his primary responsibility which is just simply - to do a superior job of teaching. Good teaching should be an end in itself and should be so recognized and rewarded.

While undoubtedly advanced graduate study, research, and publishing are, within reason important, they should be emphasized only in that they make the individual concerned a better teacher and not as an end in themselves, if the faculty member is to continue to have teaching responsibilities.

Next to good teaching, we should say that a good school library is possibly the next most important phase of a quality school. A well equipped library not only provides the materials which teachers must have for their own preparation and for assignments to students but also is the scholarly environment which should inspire students to learn on their own and to acquire the vital habit of reading and research.

We note, from the periodic reports submitted to us from Director of Library Services, Fred Huff, that use of our excellent Senior High library by the student body continues to rise at a fairly steady rate, as it should. The same thing is true at the Middle School and we are adding library services at the elementary schools as fast as finances will permit. We are not as well supplied with books and periodicals or other library materials in our elementary schools as we would like. We hope to utilize some of the money which we will receive under the new Elementary and Secondary Act to improve this situation.

Parents can be extremely helpful in encouraging their children to read widely, to use all library services and by providing as much reading material as they can in the home.

A recent newspaper article stated that the Missouri and Kansas Division of Employment Security showed that in the Kansas City area there was a job vacancy for almost every skilled, professional or managerial employee looking for work but there were only 75 vacancies for 6,750 unskilled workers or one for every 90 job seekers. Another newspaper story said there was actually an acute shortage of skilled workers in the Chicago area.

This is tangible evidence that there is a need for programs of vocational education, in which our youth can develop the skills and acquire the knowledge which is necessary if they are to find and keep jobs.

Our Board of Education has, over the past several years, made very considerable improvement in vocational education for the youth of our own and neighboring communities as well as adults from the same areas. This had to be done because we, like most schools, did not offer very much in the way of vocational opportunities for our students. We were at the same time providing a reasonably strong academic program primarily aimed at preparing students for college. We did not need so much improvement in this program. However, the emphasis on vocational education does not in any way mean our board and faculty consider that vocational education should be emphasized at the expense of the academic program. Actually the two cannot be separated as both are essential in a comprehensive school. It is the aim of our board to provide educational opportunities, as nearly adequate as can be done under our circumstances, for every individual in accordance with his needs and ability. For some this means a strong program of academic education pointed particularly toward college preparation, for others it means a reasonable program of academic or general education, at the level of need, plus good vocational training if the individual is unlikely to go to college. For others it means a composite with perhaps more emphasis on either the academic or vocational. We hope to improve our total educational program in every respect. And we feel that any subject which we offer, should be taught with the same emphasis to give every student as much as he can get in relation to his ability. And that a good teacher is just as important in our school and to society whether he is teaching mathematics or electronics; music or welding; English or auto mechanics. The important thing is to provide the opportunity, to give the students the benefit of a conscientious and capable teacher and to provide him with the kind of education he will need to compete in the environment in which he will live.

School will be dismissed for the Thanksgiving vacation at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, November 24, and will be resumed Monday, November 29 at the usual time.

The Christmas holiday will begin at the close of school Thursday, December 23, and classes will be started again Monday, January 3. We give these dates so that parents may plan vacations, medical or dental appointments, etc.

Bridge Nearer Reality

PERRYVILLE -- A new bridge over the Mississippi River between Ste. Genevieve and a point on the Illinois mainland near the old railroad ferry landing, moved a step closer to reality last week.

Five area men were appointed by Gov. Kerner of Illinois to enter into a compact with Missouri for the purpose of building the new bridge. The Illinois members of the Illinois Missouri Bridge commission are L. J. Brupbacker, and Harry Katz, Chester, S. J. Lolan and Meredith Conner, Prairie du Rocher and Louis A. Gwin. The same number of men will be appointed by the governor of Missouri.

Following the appointment of the Missouri members the commission wil hold an organization meeting.

Speculation is that the new bridge will be a combination rail-vehicular bridge and that the approaches to the bridge will be extended to Interstate 55 in Missouri and SA 182 in Illinois. Rail connections will be similar or identical to those in effect when the railroad ferry operated between Ste. Genevieve and Illinois.

Brupbacker is the Missouri Pacific Railroad representative in Chester. S. J. Lolan is manager of the Solvoy Process Co. at Prairie du Rocher.

A cross county highway designed to connect with the new bridge has been recommended by the county plan commission.

The new bridge and highway complex is expected to provide one more of the physical developments which when completed will provide the public facilities necessary for the industrialization of the area.

Bowing to the Majority?

Dr. Kershner

IN violation of its own charter, and after it had been upheld by the World Court, the United States has weakly and unnecessarily backed down from its legal and proper stand that members of the United Nations must pay their assessments or lose their vote in the General Assembly. Ambassador Goldberg has announced that we are bowing to the will of the majority. In other words, we are entrusting our fate to a large number of small nations with only the thinnest veneer of educated individuals, many of them backed by primitive bush people, and allowing them to dictate our policies. Sixty of these small nations combined have fewer people living in them than live in our country. So, our bowing to the will of the majority means surrendering, not even to superior numbers of people, but just to superior numbers of tiny little nations, none of which have as many citizens as the number of persons living in any one of a score of our major cities. How can any right-thinking person believe it is desirable to trust the fate of our great nation of nearly two hundred million souls to the decision of a handful of educated men, representing a few score of tiny so-called nations, most of whose citizens are still primitives?

The hot line between Washington and the Kremlin in Moscow — which the White House says has not been used for any formal communications — costs American taxpayers $155,016 a year in fees to keep it operating. That is in addition to hundreds of thousands of dollars required to pay personnel to man the line around the clock.

Rome And The American Labor Union

By Rev. John E. Coogan, S.J.

QUESTION: From the general course of your remarks you seem to feel that in order to correct the labor union situation, the public "image" of the union must first be corrected. Is that your feeling?

I believe with David McCord Wright, professor of economics of McGill University, that our first task is that of "taking the halo off the unions." Prof. Wright says that "Unions today derive most of their strength from the public image of them as battlers for the underprivileged and agents for the public welfare. This image is a tremendous distortion. What we do not realize is that one work group can exploit another work group just as much as one employer could do so." Prof. Wright here pictures the astounded labor leader as asking whether he has not helped the workers. The Professor replies, "Which workers?" He adds that: "The good things which his group may have obtained may well be derived not nearly so much from the employing corporation as from the inflationary exploitation (however unconscious) of the remainder of the economy." The McGill University professor's solution, then, is that "we face the problem of excessive power, that we deflate our absurdly over-expanded ideas of the net beneficence of unions, and that we ask what can be done about them. Perhaps half the battle will be gained when the public gets over its starry-eyed view of the unions as necessarily altruistic forces for equality and progress, and sees them for what they are—often reactionary agencies of personal privilege."

QUESTION: That would seem to sum up your point of view pretty well. But I have noticed in the course of our interview that you have several times given fragments of a citation from Father James M. Gillis. Would you like to end your discussion with the full quotation, and tell us why you treat Father Gillis and his opinion with so much respect?

Father Gillis was one of the giants of our time. In the sermon at his funeral in 1957, it was said, "God publishes men like Father Gillis in very limited editions. This Paulist priest, preacher, and writer, was a skyscraper on the Catholic horizon, and now that he is gone, for many a day we shall be looking at a lonesome spot against the sky." The speaker of the occasion expressed the opinion that Father Gillis "did perhaps more for the Church in the United States than any other priest in the last quarter of a century." Cardinal Cushing named his Boston information center "The Father Gillis Catholic Center," expressing the opinion that Father Gillis was one of the greatest priests the Archdiocese of Boston ever gave to the Church of God."

What, then, did that magnificient man say of our labor unions? His last word on the subject, spoken a few months before his death, was, "Labor leaders have become quite as tyrannical as the capitalists of years ago, and the people at large have come to condone the sins and crimes of Labor . . . Stranger still,. . . professional Labor which has quite generally come to violate justice and right, does so in the name of philanthropy, humanity, and religion." I would invite all who are interested in restoring the dignity of labor to take their stand on that declaration, prepared to do something about it. The least thing that can be done at once is that we make effective assertion of the principle that "Americans must have the right but not be compelled to join labor unions." Nearly a thousand Catholic priests have recently subscribed to that principle. It deserves the support of us all.

Viet Nam Information Probed

WASHINGTON AP — A study of government information policy in Viet Nam has been ordered by the House Government Operations Committee.

It will be made by Rep. David S. King, D-Utah, a committee member, who said that he is leaving Nov. 26 for a week-long stay in Viet Nam. During that time he will discuss information problems with U. S. military officials, newsmen and Viet Nam people.

"The American people feel a deep uneasiness about the adequacy of the information they are getting from embattled Viet Nam," said King in a statement announcing his trip.

The study follows hearings on U.S. information policy in Viet Nam held in Washington by the committee's government information subcommittee two years ago. The subcommittee issued a report declaring the United States was following a restrictive press policy that "unquestionably contributed to the lack of information about conditions in Viet Nam which created an international crisis."

Crib Deaths Of Babies Common

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) —She knew something was wrong the moment she awoke.

She roused her husband. "It's 8 o'clock," she said, "what about the baby?"

The baby, a healthy three-month-old, had been waking her parents at 6:45 each morning — as regularly as an alarm clock.

The mother had checked the infant at 6 a.m. found her sleeping, and had gone back to bed.

Now, hearing nothing, she checked again. The baby was cold and was not breathing.

Frantically, the mother called the fire department to send a crew with a resuscitator, but the infant could not be revived. The child was pronounced dead a short time later at a hospital.

Dr. Gale Wilson, King County autopsy surgeon, told the parents he saw many such cases every year. The death would be entered as acute pneumonitis. Doctors didn't know what brought it on, but whatever it was it was terribly fast.

Some 15,000 such deaths occur in the United States each year.

In the Seattle area, eight bereaved couples have formed the Washington Association for Sudden Infant Death Study. Thanks in part to their efforts, an ambitious research project is under way to determine what causes what doctors call the sudden death syndrome, but commonly known as "crib deaths."

The association got its start with a card of sympathy. Mrs. Francis R. Jones, a Seattle policeman's wife, sent one to State Sen. and Mrs. Fred H. Dore. Mrs. Jones did not know the Dores, but had read in a newspaper that they had found their youngest child dead in its crib on the same day she and her husband lost a baby in the same way.

Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Dore became acquainted. Then Mrs. Dore heard of another crib death and wrote a note of sympathy to the parents. A few couples got together and held a meeting, with a pediatrician as a speaker.

They learned that pathologists in various parts of the country had been doing research on possible causes of the sudden unexplained deaths.

But most studies were hampered, the parents were told, by being limited to autopsies performed in coroner's offices.

Sen. Dore went to see King County Coroner Leo Sowers and asked him if he was aware of the problem. He was very aware of it, Sowers said. Nine years earlier, he and his wife had lost a child to the sudden death syndrome.

With the help of Dore, a Democrat, and Sowers, a Republican, a bill was put through the 1963 Washington Legislature. It changed the coroner law so that cases of sudden infant death could be referred to the University of Washington Medical School for autopsy.

A $20,000 appropriation was passed and renewed in 1965. After a two-year preliminary study, the university medical school transferred the base of the research project to Children's Orthopedic Hospital and Medical center.

Children's Orthopedic has received a $144,000 three-year grant from the National Institutes of Health for the Study.

Drs. J. Bruce Beckwith and Abraham Bergman, faculty members at the university who are on the staff at the hospital, are conducting it. Sowers has made Dr. Beckwith a deputy coroner.

Earlier in his career, Dr. Beckwith performed 300 autopsies on sudden infant death victims in four years as a pathologist with the Los Angeles County coroner's office. Dr. Bergman, a pediatrician, also has had previous experience with the problem.

They expect it will be at least three years before they have any conclusive results.

"We're satisfied that there is more than one factor," says Dr. Beckwith, "but probably the majority will be found to be due to one cause."

Dr. Bergman has found the syndrome to be very uncommon beneath the age of three weeks, most common between two and three months, uncommon after six months and almost unheard of after one year.

"We feel it is the single most common cause of infant death Outside of the newborn period," says Dr. Bergman. "We know it is happening all over the world. There is research being done on it in various places in the United States, in England and, we understand, in Czechoslovakia.

Decline In Corn Crop

WASHINGTON AP — The Agriculture Department, in a late harvest-time report, estimated this year's production of corn for grain, the major livestock feed, at 4,128,257,000 bushels. This figure is one per cent less than forecast a month ago.

By comparision, the October estimate was a record high of 4,179,187,000 bushels. Last year's crop was 3,548,604,000 and the 1959-63 average was 3,817,311,000.

No change was made in the wheat estimate.

Comedy Idea Clicked

NEW YORK (AP) — An amusing — and mighty familiar — little comedy idea on NBC's Bob Hope Theatre Wednesday night was just the right prescription for some of the tired 30 million people recovering and getting back to normal after Tuesday night's power blackout.

And so was the problem of "The Virginian's" hard luck neighbor and the derring-do of the "I Spy" agents chasing an escaped spy. NBC, in fact, was a comfortable channel on Wednesday night for a smooth sail away from stern reality.

"Mr. Governess," the Hope show comedy, was busy building laughs on the old device of having an especially tall, husky, pipe-smoking man forced to disguise himself as a woman. It worked with Jack Lemmon and Tony Curtis in a hit movie and it worked again Wednesday night with Tom Tryon. It was very, very broad comedy, of course, plus a mixed pair of romances and the anticipated windup — Tom lost his wig.

Throughout the day — particularly in news shows and in a pair of news specials — the TV networks busily tried to clean up the big story of the previous night's big blackout. It covered most of the essential picture and word bases, but came no closer than any other medium to solving the big mystery — the cause of the trouble.

Producers of CBS' "What's My Line?" after considering the matter for two days went back to their original idea of putting a close friend of Dorothy Killgallen's into the late columnist's spot on the show panel next Sunday night. They chose Kitty Carlisle. The other guest on the panel will be Steve Allen, once regular on the show.

Starting next Monday, NBC's Huntley Brinkley news summary will be in color. Just what the addition will bring to its coverage is an interesting question. Both the "Today" and "Tonight" shows are using color and in both cases, it seems to this viewer, it adds little to our appreciation or enjoyment. One just hopes that the news show's editors will not henceforth pick stories on the basis of the quality of color film available.

Johnson Foreign Affair Luck Fragile

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under the law of averages President Johnson's luck in foreign affairs won't last.

In the first year of his full term foreign crises have been relatively few at a time when he was anxious to concentrate on domestic problems and getting his programs through Congress.

Today he arranged a full-scale review of foreign policy with top-level Cabinet officers at his Texas ranch, the first of its kind since his gall bladder operation Oct. 8. He had held such meetings regularly before that.

Nothing indicated this one would be unusual, which is a reminder that except for the Dominican Republic revolt and the continuing war in Viet Nam Johnson has been fairly free of overseas dilemmas, at least critical ones.

There has been a basic difference between the way Johnson and President John F. Kennedy tackled foreign policy. From the very first Kennedy plunged head-first into it, and personally.

In less than three years he made an excellent impression abroad. But Johnson has played foreign policy in a much lower key. One example: In his first year Kennedy made a trip abroad; Johnson has stayed home.

But in the two biggest and most critical problems that confronted them in their first five months Johnson took far more forceful and positive action than Kennedy.

The latter supported the invasion of Fidel Castro's Cuba by Cuban exiles but he failed to back them with U.S. forces and many of them perished on the beaches. It was a disaster. Kennedy took the blame. But he suffered for it.

When the Dominican revolt began Johnson sent 22,000 troops into the republic — to prevent a Communist takeover, he said — and, although this manpower may have been more than was needed, the revolt subsided.

Kennedy, following former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's policy of helping South Viet Nam resist the Viet Cong attempt to conquer it, began a gradual American military build-up. But the Viet Cong continued to progress.

By the time Johnson began his own first full term, South Viet Nam was dwindling into chaos. He poured in American troops, began bombing North Viet Nam and stopped the Viet Cong tide.

But elsewhere for Johnson the world has been relatively quiet. Another lucky point for him is that he hasn't had to cope with anyone so unpredictable or pushy as Kennedy encountered: Russian Premier Khrushchev.

He was an endless problem to Kennedy. Johnson has had none of that, or almost none of it. By the time he took office Khrushchev had quieted down and was finally thrown out. His successors play low key, like Johnson.

As Russia muted its hostility Red China became communism's loud mouth and Johnson's most constant problem. But, luckily for him, China began to suffer rebuffs and setbacks without any apparent direct American action.

Since Johnson's predecessors all the way back to President Franklin D. Roosevelt got engulfed in one crisis after another, this year for Johnson is apt to look like no more than a coffee break before he moves out of the White House.

At the moment — besides the Viet Cong, the North Vietnamese and the Red Chinese — Johnson's greatest irritant seems to be French President Charles de Gaulle who has just asked his people to give him another seven-year term.

When Kennedy journeyed to Europe in his first year, he met De Gaulle, among others. It would not be surprising if Johnson next year, particularly if Congress finishes its work early, made one or more trips abroad.

Sooner or later he will have to get deeper into foreign affairs, if only to give the Western world a far more vital leadership than it has now. Without such leadership the Western alliance, under De Gaulle's heckling, may crumble.

The Epitaph Of America

Edward R. Sneed, Attorney

The tomb stone: "Buried -- in these ashes -- is the once-greatest nation -- of religious, free people in all history--murdered by today's people --who forgot their God, who gave America to them -- forgot the only man - made, slavery-preventing laws in all history, their U. S. Constitution -- forgot that freedom does not perpetuate itself -- forgot that a people who ignore history, are destined to relive it -- lost the pride and joy of their forefathers, in caring for themselves, and their respective, republic, sovereign states -- and listlessly voted their moneys, posessions, rights and freedoms -- into the hands of a new, age-old, ever scheming, socialist - state, centralized, ruthless, ruler group -- who promised security, from the cradle to the grave."

The demise of America was accomplished in 30 odd years--while our people frolicked, voted for it -- and slept. Where are we today?

Our U. S. Constitution has been torn to tatters, by ignoring Article V (the amendment process) and 9 and 10 of our Bill of Rights. All powers of our once - sovereign -- Republic States -- have been usurped by a new, all-powerful, Federal Government. Our once limited Federal Government has now unlimited Federal control of all our people. Our elected State Legislators and Governors, meekly gave away our States' and individual freedoms -- to the new crop of Socialist - State Rulers in Washington --while the people slept.

Our Gold-Standard was destroyed, unconstitutionally in 1934. America was a rich, solvent nation then -- with 40% gold backing up our currency and $27,000,000,000 of Government bonds. Today -- we have $316,000,000,000 of Government bonds -- which are a mortgage upon the people's possessions -- with not once ounce of gold as security -- and America owes to foreign countries, billions of dollars worth of gold -- over every ounce of the little we have left. The world knows it -- but our own people sleep.

And -- now we sleep -- while our elected President pushes through a rubber - stamp majority of our elected Congressman--an unconstitutional bill--that should only be introduced, as an amendment to our Constitution -- as per Article V--for ratification or rejection by three - fourths of our 50 States' Legislatures -- to allow everyone to vote, regardless of literacy -- in those States which refuse to bow down to the King (President) -- and accept the octopus-encircling, Federal, Socialist - State Rule.

Under our Constitution--each sovereign state has the power to request qualifications and examinations of everyone before allowing them to vote. Many, throughout every color, creed or religion should not be allowed to vote.

Several years back, Mr. S. Takdir Alisjahbana -- professor of literature and cultural philosophy from Djakarta, Indonesia -- told the students of our Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri -- "Democracy is not the best form of government to take the world's new nations to the goal of reaching modern standards of government quickly." As a solution, he offered -- "not disenfranchisement (withdrawing the right to vote) but making the right to vote conditional on a certain minimum capacity of understanding of the issues on which the vote is based." Doesn't this make sense to every reader?

This fundamental principle, is one of many, that caused our Forefathers to limit the functions of the Federal government--and reserve the handling of all other problems to each individual state--as a Republic unto itself--each with its own State Legislature of Senators and Representatives--and a Governor.

In the light of the widely publicized deterioration of our educational systems, over the past 40 years -- this writer questions the broad right of everyone with just a sixth grade education to vote.

Will our people continue to do nothing -- say nothing -- and sleep -- until they suddenly find themselves slaves -- under ruthless, Socialist-State tyranny?

JIM BEAIRD, left, Okeechobee district chairman, presented Franklin Struwe, advisor to Explorer post 41, with an honor unit 1965 roundup ribbon. Post 41, sponsored by the Sikeston Kiwanis club, was the first unit in the Southeast Missouri Council to reach its membership goal -- six new Scouts.

Long Days at Sea Make Film Critics

WITH 7TH FLEET OFF VIET NAM (AP)—"Movies are better than nothing," they say cynically in the Navy, but they really aren't sure.

Hardly a man alive can boast of having seen Warner Baxter recently in "Prisoner of Shark Island" or Don Ameche and Andrea Leeds in "Swanee River," except the 4,500 men aboard the carrier Independence. The pictures have been shown a half dozen times.

"We've got movies on this ship that I saw back in Korea," said Lt. Cmdr. Dale Schuster of Seattle, Wash., executive officer of the refrigerator ship Vega as he fingered a platter of warm popcorn and suffered through "The Lion and the Horse," a horse opera.

"For all I know, they may have even shown some of them at Antietam."

The long empty days at sea turn most sailors into astute and caustic movie critics. In trading cans of film to other ships, the projectionists usually append little flyers of prose, scrawled in laundry marking pencil, deriding the contents. As befitting the muggy, torrid climate in the South China Sea, these economiums can be both salty and sizzling.

Thus "no skin" means that the enclosed offering is singularly lacking in feminine acting talent.

"Only the projectionist was around for the last reel," speaks for itself.

"All symbolism, no sex" -- this over a turgid Swedish number that some censor had managed to get his scissors on.

"Movies of this caliber tend to improve the quality of our bridge games," was the way the boys in the wardroom on the destroyer escort Kretchmer torpedoed "Gidget Goes to Rome."

According to Vice Adm. B. J. Semmes Jr., chief of naval personnel, the Navy spends $4 million a year on new movies, but Hollywood's output these days is so slim and the 7th Fleet's appetite so voracious that Loretta Young is making a whole new generation of fans with showings at sea of "The Crusades." It shouldn't be any time at all before Mae Busch is named "Queen of the Fleet" and Vietnamese bar girls begin affecting the bee-stung-lip look.

Whenever ships meet at sea or pass in the night, they try to trade off movies by letting the other ship know, by blinker light or semaphore, since most of the fleet is under radio silence they have to offer. The idea of course is to get a "Tom Jones" for a "Son of Samson" or a "How to Murder Your Wife" for Vincent Price in "The Raven." It doesn't always work out that way.

"Every ship wants to unload its dogs and get 'Lord Jim' or 'Irma la Douce' in return," sighed Ens. Charlie Vollmer of Philadelphia, movie officer on the Kretchmer. "I'm still catching hell for trading off 'Bye, Bye Birdie' for 'Nall of the Roman Empire'."

One garlic opera brought an explosion of riotous laughter to the crowded hangar deck of the helicopter carrier Iwo Jima, when the master of a Grecian slave galleon ordered his mates to shove off by shouting, "Untie the ropes!"

"Hey," said Capt. David Scott, commander of the Iwo Jima, "I think I'll give that order next time we leave San Diego."

Refrigerator and general stores ships have the worst of it. Since they are in the supply business and carry movies for distribution to the fleet, they are required to list what they have on a big blackboard on the bridge and take whatever is given in return.

"We start out from Subic Bay in the Philippines with a hatch full of Academy Award winners and end up with a turkey farm," commented Lt. Cmdr. Donald Beals of Salem, Ore., supply officer on the Vega.

A common complaint on all the ships at sea is that picking the movies is left to the ship's engineers, since they have dominion over the projector, rather than leaving it to the intellectual side of the ship, namely, the bridge.

"The trouble is," sighed Lt. (j.g.) Charles N. Granville III, a Yale man aboard the Kretchmer, "there's really no room in the wardroom at movie time for the young intellectual at sea. The senior officers want Westerns, the ensigns want 'Beach Blanket Bingo' and the crew wants skin."

The grim expression of George Washington on the new five-cent stamp would indicate he has learned what has become of the country since he left office.

Wilson Expects To Pick Up Another Vote Today

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government expects to pick up another vote in a special election today and increase its one-vote majority in Parliament.

Labor party leaders were confident that their candidate, A. James Wellbeloved, 39, would win the House of Commons seat from Erith and Crayford, a Labor stronghold.

The seat became vacant with the death last August of Norman Dodds, who rolled up a majority of almost 9,000 votes over his Conservative opponent in the national elections last year.

The Conservative candidate is David Madel, 27.

THE HAGUE (AP) — Crown Princess Beatrix's marriage to West German commoner Claus von Armsberg was assured of parliamentary approval Wednesday night.

The lower house approved the match 132-9 in the first parliamentary vote on a royal marriage in modern Dutch history. A second vote to make Von Amsberg a Dutch citizen was approved 135-60.

The bills not go to the Senate, where approval is certain. The wedding will take place in March in Amsterdam.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) —Ten to 15 per cent of the patients in Australian hospitals are suffering from illnesses induced by their own doctors, the chairman of the Victoria State Committee of the Royal Australian College of Physicians said today.

Dr. John L. Frew blamed the multitude of tablets dispensed by the National Health Service. He said these tablets often produce undesirable side-effects.

Unemployment Pay Declines

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Unemployment compensation payments fell to $1,572,361 in October, the lowest since September, 1957.

Herman Julien, director of the Employment Security Division, said today the October total was $332,366 less than October a year ago.

In September, 1957, the cost of unemployment compensation payments was $1,310,317.

Initial claims, usually considered an index of new unemployment, numbered 22,134 in October this year.

73 Bushel to Acre Corn Crop

WASHINGTON AP -- The Agriculture Department's crop estimate for Missouri corn is 224,329,000 bushels, or 73 bushels per acre.

Missouri also is expected to yield 84,780,000 bushels of soybeans, 5,670,000 pounds of burley tobacco, and 13,110,000 bushels of sorghum grain.

Pope Identified As Killer of Three

LINCOLN, Neb. AP --Franklin Kjeldgaard, sole survivor of the June 4 Big Springs, Neb., bank holdup, in which three fellow bank employes died, unhesitatingly identified Duane E. Pope, 22, in federal district court Wednesday as the man who fired the shots.

Kjeldgaard, still partially paralyzed from bullets fired into his back and neck as he lay face down on the floor, began his testimony with a firm identification of the Roxbury, Kan., man.

From his wheel chair he looked the length of the counsel table and said, "He's sitting right there" when asked if he recognized the man who had shot him.

It doesn't take long for a woman to get a husband; it only takes a little wile.

25 Toll Of Dead

Twenty-five persons have been killed in accidents this year in Pemiscot county.

Stoddard and New Madrid counties have the second largest number of fatalities with 13 dead each.

Mississippi county has had 12 road fatalities and Scott county eight.

These figures were announced today by troop E of the highway patrol in Poplar Bluff.

The patrol also announced that the largest amount of property damage as result of accidents has occurred in New Madrid county, $169,806.

Pemiscot county is second with $146,920 and Stoddard County is third with $101,145.

Scott county has $94,377 damage for the year and Mississippi has the least amount--$88,155.

Wage-Price Lines At Root Of Row

NEW YORK (AP) — Wage-price guidelines are at the root of the price-increase commotion between the Johnson administration and the aluminum industry.

In the view of the administration, the guidelines are route markers to the "Great Society."

The administration feels that the aluminum industry in announcing a half-cent increase to 25 cents a pound crossed the markers and threatened inflation.

Industry spokesmen say the half-cent increase was needed for research, development and profits.

But, said Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers: "Under the guideposts, such industries — those with productivity increases above average -- should not be raising prices."

Judging from the past examples it may be permissible to cross the lines slightly. Some say this was done in the steel industry wage agreement. But if the administration feels the lines are literally violated, it now appears it intends to blow the whistle.

Guidelines, or areas of permissible movement, exist primarily for wages and prices. They permit price increases to industries whose productivity gains lag behind the average for the economy.

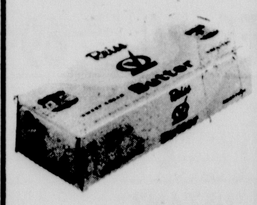

They are but one of several voluntary programs involving businessmen. Industry, for example, has also been asked to restrict voluntarily overseas investments to maintain the stability of the dollar.

These guidelines are not backed by legislation. Rather they are enforced positively by a call to patriotism or the national interest — which no manufacturer of a consumer product can ignore — and negatively by the ominous threat of hard legislation.

In the case of aluminum industry, enforcement of the guidelines was given added impact by the fact that the federal government is the industry's biggest customer and potentially its biggest competitor.

Some labor leaders as well as businessmen have criticized the guidelines as unworkable and inequitable. But most criticism comes from businessmen and bankers, such as David Rockefeller, president of the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York.

"I fear we are in danger," he said, "of backing inadvertently into a managed economy and I am convinced this is not the high road to the good life. The forces of the market place can be blunted by over-regulation."

12 Month Shipping for River Studied

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — Congress is being asked to study the feasibility of a 12-month shipping season on the upper Mississippi River, Rep. John Schmidhauser, D-Iowa, said Wednesday.

Addressing 150 representatives of federal agencies, lines, shipping industry and other interested parties, Schmidhauser said it is hoped Congress will determine "if the tremendous cost of the proposed project will be offset by the dollar value gained in increased shipping."

"We have learned that if the river remained open the year round, barge traffic would be increased from 400 to 700 barges a year," said Bernard Goldstein, a member of the Davenport Chamber of Commerce's transportation committee.

Goldstein said many industries reported in a survey that with a 12-month shipping season "they wouldn't have to stockpile supplies during the winter and thereby their costs would be much less."

James R. Smith, vice president of the Mississippi Valley Association, said the navigation season along the upper river went from 248 days in 1940 to 293 days last year.

Couple Are in Good Condition From Surgery

CHICAGO (AP) — A Wisconsin couple, married for 37 years, had heart surgery together and are reported in "very good condition" today.

Mrs. and Mrs. Alvin Dru'yor of Prairie du Chien, Wis., underwent open-heart surgery Wednesday by Dr. M. S. Mazel. The operation, called a cardiopexy, was to unblock arteries leading to the heart.

Dr. Mazel said the Dru'yors probably will be up and walking today and will be back at work in two or three weeks.

Mrs. Inez Dru'yor, 60, was tabbed for the operation after accompanying her husband, Alvin, 62, to Chicago for a physical examination two weeks ago.

Tests disclosed that she had a heart condition, similar to the one her husband had for seven years, only worse.

Hospital officials said the couple decided to have their surgery the same day to eliminate concern for each other that might possibly cause damage to their hearts.

Dru'yor is president of Travel Mat, Inc., a national paper mat printer.

Could the young but realize how soon they will become mere walking bundles of habits, they would give more heed to their conduct while in the plastic stage.

Wirtz Errors Cost Farmers Shuman Says

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The president of the American Farm Bureau Federation charged Wednesday night that mistakes of U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz cost farmers and consumers millions of dollars this year.

Addressing the Michigan farm Bureau convention, Charles Shuman said Wirtz's failure to provide needed harvest labor left huge amounts of crops to rot in the fields.

Shuman also predicted that the new four-year federal farm law would not last four years because "I don't believe the administration can live with it four years. It's too expensive."

Shuman called for a halt in government intervention in agruculture, saying the best solution is "to gear production to the needs of the market, not the decisions of politicians."

Shuman said the new farm law would cost $5 billion to $6 billion a year and still not accomplish its goals.

He told newsmen he did not fear that, if the government pulled out of agriculture control programs, farm prices would drop.

"There would be some adjustment downward, but also some upward," Shuman said. He charged that U.S. Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman has been dumping surpluses on the market to hold prices down and force farmers to join government programs.

"The one-third of agriculture which is subjected to government control is where all the trouble is," he said.

Law Has Teeth in It

LOS ANGELES AP -- The law has teeth in it, a Los Angeles youth has learned. What's more, they bite.

Sheriff's Deputy William Saunders said he was escorting William Maddox, 19, to Superior Court, where he was to be tried Wednesday on five counts of kidnaping for the purpose of robbery.

En route, Saunders said Maddox tried to grab the handcuff key. Saunders yelled for help. Maddox put his hand over the officer's mouth to prevent him from talking.

In the process, Maddox' fingers inadvertently landed between Saunders' teeth.

The deputy clamped down. Maddox screamed. Reinforcements arrived and Maddox was subdued.

His trial was later postponed until next week.

Arkansas Seeks Man for Slaying

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Lester Eugene Ale, 28-year-old construction worker and fugitive from Wichita, Kan., faces a magistrate court hearing on Dec. 10 on a warrant seeking his removal to nearby Arkansas on a first - degree murder charge.

Chief of Police Adrian said Wednesday night that Ale orally admitted the slaying of William M. O'Field of Kansas, Okla. O'Field gave Ale a lift Monday night and a short time later was killed near Siloam Springs, Ark.

Chief Mecham said Ale did not give any reason for killing O'Field.

Ale walked into the Joplin police station four hours later and told officers he was wanted in Wichita for check forgery. They noted he matched the description O'Field gave of his slayer before he died.

Ale refused to forego the extradition process. The murder charge was filed in Benton County in Arkansas.

Ale is charged with forging and passing a stolen check for $67 at a grocery in Wichita. He was arrested Nov. 1 and was supposed to appear in court Monday.

LBJ to Meet With Erhard

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. AP -- President Johnson will meet with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of West Germany on Dec. 6-8, the Texas White House announced today.

There was no word of where the meeting would take place.

Assistant press secretary Joseph Laitin, pressed by newsmen for the locale of the meeting, refused to go beyond saying "that would be determined later."

He did rule out any meeting in Europe.

Erhard and Johnson met at the LBJ Ranch in December 1963, barely a month after the President took office.

Yogi Expert To Demonstrate

LILBOURN -- A demonstration of the ancient art of yogi fitted to today's body health requirements will be presented by Ed Schetter at the Lilbourn high school next Thursday, beginning at 12:50 p.m.

Schetter has been in the physical fittness field nearly all his life beginning at the age of six when he took part in the strict American Turner Society, an organization known for producing Olympic athletes.

From the age of 14 he toured west of the United States, performing at county and state fairs.

He became interested in yogi while studying in New York. For the next ten years, Schetter, along with his wife, performed professionally in the dance and acrobatic field throughout this country and Canada. He has demonstrated yogi exercises for a national syndicate newspaper series and has been a guest on many television shows on physical education and exercise.

In his program, Schetter gives the history behind yogi, just what it consists of and where it comes from, which clears up many false ideas associated with it. He also demonstrates several yogi exercises, and highlights his program by the performance of many simple exercises.

This program will be presented under the auspices of the Southern School Assemblies Agency.

A suburban Minneapolis father preparing to do some household chores, warned his little daughter that she might hear some four - letter words should he hammer his fingers. "I know one of them," she said.

The father winced.

Pacifist Dies Of His Burns

NEW YORK AP -- A young pacifist has died of burns 33 hours after he doused himself with gasoline and set himself afire in front of the United Nations in a protest against war.

Roger LaPorte, 20, who was burned on 95 per cent of his body, was the third American to died of self-inflicted burns this year in pacifist demonstrations. LaPorte died Wednesday.

Bellevue Hospital's Roman Catholic chaplain, the Rev. Alexander Busuttill, said LaPorte was "clear and expressive as he received the last rites of the Church in which he once sought priesthood.

Counterfeit Bills Show Up

Another counterfeit $20 bill turned up at the Taylor-Ferrell Beauty College and Salon, Inc. It was taken to the Bank of Sikeston, which reported earlier this week that it had received two $20 and two $10 counterfeit bills.

The First National Bank of Sikeston also reported this week that it had received two $20 counterfeit bills.

The bogus currency has been turned over to U. S. Treasury Department officials in St. Louis.

Leader of Berkeley Revolt Communist

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Bettina Aptheker, a leader of the Free Speech Movement that disrupted the University of California Berkeley campus last December, declares she is a Communist.

In a letter to the Daily Californian, a student newspaper, she said: "I have been for a number of years, I am now, and I propose to remain a member of the Communisty party of the United States."

The FSM last December staged a massive campus sitdown as a demand for increased political freedom on the campus. The night of Dec. 2-3 more than 700 persons were arrested and hauled away to jail from the administration building, Sproul Hall.

Mario Savio, then leader of the FSM, demanded the right to recruit members and collect funds anywhere on the campus for off-campus political action. Savio, from New York City, has since left the campus.

Miss Aptheker, who recently married a fellow student, said in her letter Tuesday she had kept her Communist party membership secret until now because acknowledgment would have meant "cooperation with a Redbaiting attack on the FSM by helping to focus attention away from the issues raised by FSM.. . . ."

Mrs. Roberts Dies At Home

CHARLESTON -- Mrs. George Roberts, 45, died yesterday at 3 p.m. at her home. She was born Sept. 29, 1920, daughter of Mrs. W. C. Crow and the late Mr. Crow, She was a lifelong resident.

Major Foreign Affairs Review at Texas Ranch

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. AP -- President Johnson called his top military and diplomatic advisers to the LBJ Ranch today for his first major foreign affairs review since his Oct. 8 surgery.

Summoned for the day-long conference were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Undersecretary of State George W. Ball and McGeorge Bundy, Johnson's special assistant for national security affairs.

Officials said topics would include operations in Viet Nam, the Nov. 17 conference of hemisphere foreign ministers in Rio de Janeiro and the Dec. 6-8 American visit of West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

Johnson spent a quiet, recuperative day Wednesday after staying up late Tuesday to get reports on the Northeast power failure.

BATHTUB's ANCESTRY GOES BACK 3600 YEARS

Have you ever wondered how the tub in your bathroom originated? The first known tub is said to date back at least 3600 years, to the palace of King Minos on the island of Crete.

It was made of painted clay, was shaped very much like today's tub and had terra cotta piping, according to the Plumbing Fixture Mfrs. Assn.

However, today's tubs and other bathroom fixtures would be the envy of the richest kings of ancient times. Enameled cast iron and porcelain-enameled steel are the two most common types, and they, like lavatories and water closets, come in many luscious colors. The most popular are tan, yellow, pink and blue. The availability of matched bathroom fixtures has helped to put bathroom remodeling high on the list of the most wanted home improvements.

To forgive our enemies their virtues -- that is a greater miracle.

Long Area Power Shutdown Unlikely

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Southeast Missouri conceivably could lose all electrical power for a time through failure of a single mechanical device, but past experience here would indicate the chances of it are slim.

Ray W. Call, president of the Missouri Utilities Co., which serves the city and much of the district with power, said today that failure of any one of the three circuit breakers at the Union Electric switching station south of Cape Girardeau could produce the general power interruption.

However, he pointed out that any such power failure would be of relatively short duration.

"I can't conceive of its lasting more than two hours at the most," he commented.

Call also indicated that the potential for such a chain reaction, massive power failure as was experienced in the Northeast United States Tuesday night is not present in this area.

He observed that the problem there was largely one of overload after the initial mechanical failure -- whatever it may have been -- started the chain of events.

He said perhaps one device on a system carrying a large block of power failed, automatically activating the re-routing system built in to the general interlocking power network.

The new demand created by the initial failure might have caused other systems to be overloaded, he said, in a cascading effect until the great area was without power.

Call noted that in this area, power supply capabilities are such that the overloading does not become a problem.

For instance, Missouri Utilities buys all its power from the Union Electric Co., which channels power to its switching station here from three directions --from Joppa, Ill., River Mines in the Lead Belt and from the southwest through the Stoddard County station.

Any one of the three sources --without the other two--is sufficient to meet the Missouri Utilities power needs, Call said.

The greatly interconnected power system, which has been cited as one of the reasons for the scope of Tuesday night's East Coast failure, has advantages in respect to economy and reliability, the president of the company maintained.

Trouble on any of the three systems feeding the switching station here causes the appropriate circuit breaker to open, preventing the spread of the trouble throughout the system.

If the breaker malfunctions --fails to open--the whole system would be without power, he said.

Throughout power systems everywhere are these circuit breakers, designed to automatically isolated power failure wherever it occurs, and to reroute power over other circuits.

The percentage of reliability of these circuit breakers, based on past experiences here, is almost total.

Call said in his experience none of the nearly 100 breakers of the type presently in service --the three at the switching station and others throughout the system--has ever failed.

He noted that the last general power failure in Cape Girardeau in 1946 was due to the explosion of a circuit breaker in a rainstorm, but he said that the equipment was not only obsolete at that time, but was overloaded.

The occurrences that could trigger a general power failure take place regularly, Call said, and the public is never sware of them, except in localized areas.

Such things, he added, are windstorms, lightning and even children playing with kites. They can cause a local interruption, but the circuit breakers isolate the trouble automatically.

Call remarked, however, that with the dependence upon imperfect mechanical devices and fallible humans, the possibility for a general failure does exist.

The general interlocking of power facilities, while it may increase the opportunity for more widespread electrical interruptions, at the same time increases reliability of service, Call commented.

Futhermore, he said, it greatly increases the economy with which power can be furnished to the public.

While it has been noted that a national grid system ties together 97 per cent of the nation for service of power, Call could not conceive of a national power failure.

The state of Missouri also is now tied together, both in respect to the nine private power companies, and the co-operative associations.

Again, Call said he did not believe there is the potential for a statewide failure, mainly because the state is not dependent upon a single outside source for a great bulk of its power, as is the case in some other areas.

Call said that as a result of the East Coast blackout, the power companies will probably want to review some of their operations, particularly maintenance of equipment.

He said Missouri Utilities carries out a regular schedule of maintenance and inspection of its equipment, including the circuit breakers.

The president of the utilities company said the events of Tuesday night also may prompt new directives from the Public Service Commission or the Federal Power Commission.

"And if they find there has been some faulty procedure followed, the directives will be worthwhile," he added.

At Offutt Air Force Base, Neb., before various charity drives were consolidated, it seemed as if everywhere I went there was a box, can or jar soliciting contributions. I decided to join the others in their campaigns and placed a container on my desk with a sign that read: "Contributions for the Children of Israel Accepted Here." The collections were good until one of the steady contributors looked at my desk nameplate and realized who the "Children of Israel" were.

Lions Clubs Telethon to Aid Crippled Nov. 20-21

PADUCAH -- The crippled children of Kentucky, Illinois, Tennesse and Missouri will be aided again this year by the ninth Telethon of Stars, sponsored by the Lion clubs in the channel 6 area.

This program begins at 10 p.m. Nov. 20 and will continue through the night ending at 1 p.m. Nov. 21. The handicapped children themselves will be shown at intervals during the show and their command performance will be the morning of Nov. 21 as usual.

Professional talent from New York will consist of Ed Ames, known as Mingo on the Daniel Boone show; Dorothy Olsen, the singing school teacher; Lainie Kazan, Dolores Hawkins, one of the top vocalists from coast to coast, and other performers making up a 15-hour continuous performance.

Each Lion club throughout the Channel 6 area will accept and record donations for the crippled children. The money donated from each state will be distributed to the handicapped children centers in the state from which it is donated.

The telephone numbers from each city, where the contributions can be made, will be shown frequently on the screen. A large battery of telephones will be operated in Paducah recording the pledges and contributions from the entire area as the clubs call them in so the names of the contributors can be shown on the screen as fast as possible.

Lions club officials state that they expect to collect $75,000 during this telethon and that this amount is needed to assist those children under treatment and that many other children are waiting for physical, speech and occupational therapy who need financial assistance.

Kennedy Tells Soldiers Majority Supports Them

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D - Mass., who returned Wednesday night from a tour of Viet Nam, said he was asked by some servicemen if the anti-war demonstrations reflect the feelings of "most young people in the United States."

He said he had assured them that "the majority of Americans are in support" of Viet Nam's right to self determination.

BOSTON (AP)—Actor Claude Rains spent his 76th birthday Wednesday recuperating from surgery at New England Baptist Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said Rains underwent an abdominal operation Monday to prevent internal bleeding. He was reported in satisfactory condition.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) --Republican National Chairman Ray Bliss, 57, hospitalized five days ago with chest pains and a muscle spasm, was to leave today for his home in Akron, Ohio.

His physician planned a last-minute physical examination as a precautionary measure. Bliss said he has had no further discomfort since leaving the hospital Tuesday.

Bliss became ill last Friday while attending the Western States Republican Conference. Doctors said they found no trace of any heart ailment.

Three Children Orphaned by Father's Death

FAIRFAX, Va. AP -- Three children who lost their mother seven weeks ago in an auto accident were orphaned Wednesday when their father was killed by electric shock while working atop a power pole.

The father, Oscar Y. Fields, 30, died instantly when he touched a live wire carrying 7,000 volts. His wife, Ruby, was killed Sept. 16 when her car collided with a tractor-trailer truck south of Manassas, Va.

Their three children are Eugene, 12, Theresa, 5, and Cecil, 4.

Kansas City May Be Site For Exchange

KANSAS CITY AP -- The Kansas City Star said today the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, which operates post exchanges for U. S. military personnel around the world, may move its headquarters from New York. The paper said Kansas City is one of the places under consideration.

A dispatch from the Star's Washington bureau said a major reorganization of the service would phase out four regional service centers -- at Baltimore, Md., Atlanta, Ga., San Antonio, Tex., and San Francisco.

The single headquarters and support center would employ about 1,100. The headquarters in New York has about 700 employes.

The newspaper said there is a possiblity it will remain in New York, but other cities under consideration are Atlanta, East St. Louis, Ill., and Fort Worth, Tex.

Pakistani Charges Office Stoned

NEW DELHI, India AP -- The Pakistani High Commission in New Delhi charged today that a mob of 200 stoned its office, causing "serious damage," and that Indian police beat three of its officials. A protest note demanded compensation and an official apology.

Paddling Not Assault, Battery

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va. AP -- Five licks with a paddle don't constitute assault and battery, a Wetzel County jury has found.

The jury found Russell Fisher, a northern West Virginia school teacher, innocent of the charge, a misdemeanor.

Mrs. Martha Price brought charges against Fisher after he paddled her son, Wilbur, 10. The boy is a 5th-grade pupil at Smithfield Elementary School.

Fisher, a teacher for 27 years, requested a jury trial in a justice of the peace court here. He told the jury Wednesday that "in order to maintain discipline," he struck the boy five times "on an unmentionable place."

Urges Dropouts Be Put In Service

OKLAHOMA CITY AP -- Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, has suggested that high school dropouts be placed in the armed services.

"They've got to be some place where they can't drop out," he said Wednesday. "We've got to help these young people become team players in our democracy, or we won't have one."

Hershey visited the state Selective Service headquarters and later addressed the city Chamber of Commerce.

He estimated the draft rate will stay at about 36,000 men a month nationally.

590 Miles of Interstate Opened

WASHINGTON AP -- The Commerce Department announced Wednesday that 590-miles of the interstate highway system were opened to traffic from July through September, bringing the total to 20,000.

As of Sept. 30, Kansas had 535 miles open to traffic with 264 miles of interstate designated construction to go, and Missouri had 664 miles open with 445 miles left.

By Edward Collier

Mountain grandeur, wooded beauty, and early-fall skiing fun are in store for motorists who choose to vacation in the Pacific Northwest this autumn.

Driving down from neighboring Seattle, we began a Magic Circle motor jaunt in Tacoma, a flower-endowed city that sits above Puget Sound. Downtown landmark is a 105-foot high totem pole said to be the tallest in the nation, carved from a single tree.

But the city's pride is Point Defiance Park, left much as the pioneers found it—600-plus acres of sylvan beauty lush with huge ferns, shrubs, Douglas firs. There is a salt water bathing beach, picnic areas, woodland trails, flower gardens, Deep Sea Aquarium, Children's Farm Zoo, and reconstructed Old Fort Nisqually, built in 1833 by Hudson's Bay Co. as a trading post and to repel Indians.

The route east follows the Puyallup River, where fishermen bring in big steelhead trout from the icy waters. This is a land of special beauty in the spring and rightly called the "Nation's Bulb Basket", for in the rich, fertile valley is produced a major supply of daffodils, tulips, hyacinths, lilies and iris. Tribute is paid each spring with a Daffodil Festival complete with queen, parade and flower show.

Mount Rainier National Park's wonders seem unending: scenic grandeur, 300 miles of nature trails, sports of all kinds, great glaciers that point out like fingers in all directions, and majestic Mount Rainier itself, aglow in white and brushed by clouds. Paradise Valley, more than 5,000 feet high, is a lush meadow where there is beauty at every turn: Paradise Glacier Ice Caves, whose iridescent reflections create dream-world color images; the two Reflection Lakes whose waters mirror Mt. Rainier; nearby Narada Falls plunging 168 feet into Paradise River Canyon. Skiing here continues through April.

Final stop is at the Longmire Park Headquarters Visitor Center, where a small museum geologically explains the creation of today's glaciers.

Live Grenades in Castoff Articles

SACRAMENTO, Calif. AP -- Goodwill Industries, which repairs castoff clothes, toys and furniture and sells them for charity, found four live World War II Japanese hand grenades in a box from one of its pickup trucks Wednesday. A bomb removal squad from nearby Mather Air Force Base was called to take them away.

Italy's Oldest Catholic Priest Dies

LUCCA, Italy AP -- Msgr. Paolina Chelini, Italy's oldest Roman Catholic priest, died Wednesday night at his home here. He was 105 and had said Mass daily until a few months ago.
The priest was a close friend of composer Giacomo Puccini and helped him in the initial staging of the first act of "Tosca," which takes place in a church and ends with the singing of the "Te Deum."

Bull With Four Eyes Disappears

LOS ANGELES AP -- If you see a Brown Swiss bull with four horns and three eyes, don't call a psychiatrist or an optometrist. It might be Elmer.
Elmer was reported stolen Wednesday from a carnival. His owner, Harvey Williams, 60, told officers the animal was on display earlier Wednesday but that his van and Elmer later disappeared.
Williams said he valued the bull at $25,000.

Union Sends Clinic To South Viet Nam

WASHINGTON AP -- The United Auto Workers Union is sending a fully equipped pediatric clinic and three tons of food and medical supplies to South Viet Nam.

Today in U.S. History

Today is Thursday, Nov. 11, the 315th day of 1965. There are 50 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1918, an armistice was signed and World War I came to an end.

On this date

In 1918, the independence of Poland was proclaimed.

In 1921, the Washington disarmament conference convened.

In 1942, Allied forces won control of Algeria and French Morocco.

In 1942, the Nazis took possession of unoccupied France.

In 1954, in the first observance of Veterans Day, 16,000 persons in New York City became citizens of the United States.

Ten years ago—A Navy bomber crashed into a destroyer during a simulated attack off Southern California, killing five men.

Five years ago—Troops loyal to President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Viet Nam put down a revolt a little more than 24 hours after it began.

One year ago—The new Labor government of Britain presented an emergency budget, calling for increased taxes and broadened welfare benefits.

10 PER CENT OF YOUR HOME INVESTMENT IS IN PLUMBING --TAKE CARE OF IT

Your house isn't just a home -- it's probably the biggest single investment you'll make in a lifetime. And at least 10 percent of that investment is in the plumbing.

Nothing in your home is more vital to your family's health, comfort and convenience. Yet many people who take the best possible care of their automobiles, their landscaped front yards and other cherished possessions simply take their plumbing for granted. In one respect, this isn't surprising. Modern research has produced highly efficient products that are vitually trouble-free and which can take a lot of wear and tear.

However, when you remember that nothing in your home is used more often than the plumbing in your bathroom and kitchen, then an established program of preventive maintenance simply makes good sense.

There's a booklet available from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau that tells you how to take proper care of all the plumbed-in equipment in your home. It also includes a wealth of information on how to make repairs and do dozens of jobs that may safely be done by the competent do-it-yourselfer. Finally, it details the jobs that should be done only by qualified plumbing contractors and their employees, to make sure no cross-connections are inadvertently made between your fresh water supply and your waste disposal lines. The booklet is available for 25 cents from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 East Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

SPACE SNOOPER—The world's most accurate radio telescope now in operation at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory in Green Bank, W.Va., picks up and records extremely faint radio signals reaching earth from outer space. Special industrial brakes controlling rotation of the 2,700-ton antenna make possible the telescope's precision, maintaining aiming accuracy to within 3/1000ths of a degree.

U.S. Tells Troops 'We're Behind You'

NOT THE PROUDEST Veteran's Day symbol is the weathered and faded Flag at American Legion Hall. The pole leans.

Veterans Day Takes On New Significance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veterans Day takes on added significance today as Americans take time to tell their fighting men in Viet Nam, "We're behind you."

In Main Street parades, on speaking platforms in blood drives and among the long rows of white crosses in military cemeteries, the nation pauses to remember, reflect and rededicate.

To the people of Audubon, Iowa, the war in Viet Nam suddenly comes close to home today. Donald D. Haskins, 22, a sailor fatally wounded at Da Nang last month, will be laid to rest.

The American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars in Hamilton, Ohio, put on an "Operation Boost" parade supporting American involvement in Viet Nam. Marchers have been asked to bring personal items to be sent to servicemen there.

Students at Alabama College at Montevallo have scheduled a blood drive for U.S. troops, plus a fund raising campaign to provide a special gift for the American forces. Other activities include a flag raising ceremony and a speech by Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala.

Dave Watson, commander of the VFW post in Muscatine, Iowa, said the hope behind the town's parade is that it "will offset some of the publicity being given to the demonstrations against U.S. policy in Viet Nam." Bremer County, Iowa, veterans are calling their parade a "walk for the men in Viet Nam."

The national headquarters of the American Legion distributed 10 million lapel pin flags for "Operation Show Your Colors." Each pin comes with a card saying "Americans are serving the cause of freedom in Viet Nam. I wear my country's flag to show that I support their efforts."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey laid a wreath for President Johnson on the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery across the Potomac River from the nation's capital.

In prepared remarks, the vice president said: "We are in Viet Nam to keep a commitment established by international treaty. We are there because, once again in history, it must be proved to aggressors that the price of their aggression comes far too high...

"We will remain in Viet Nam until a just and lasting peace can be established there."

Secretary of the Navy Paul H. Nitze, speaking at a Veterans Day ceremony in Welch, W.Va., said in a prepared address that veterans "keenly understand why we will not now abandon the Republic of Viet Nam. Our veterans...entertain no doubt that we will prevail in the cause of freedom."

Nitze said American veterans have "learned in the hardest of all schools that weakness is only an invitation to attack, and that retreat can bring in its wake even more deadly dangers."

The Anchorettes, Wichita State University's Navy women's drill team, who spent the week collecting signatures in support of U.S. servicemen, lead off a Veterans Day parade in Wichita, Kan.

Wichita Mayor William Tarrant has issued a proclamation dubbed "Operation Boost," calling for a moment of silent prayer at 11 a.m. for the success and safety of U.S. military forces everywhere.

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt leads the Veterans Day parade at Frankfort, Ky., then receives a petition in support of U.S. Viet Nam policy. The names were collected at the polls on election day last Tuesday.

Rhodesia Declares Independence

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) —Prime Minister Ian Smith declared Rhodesia independent today, the first such declaration against Britain since the American colonies broke away in 1776.

Britain retaliated swiftly, in effect outlawing Rhodesia. Prime Minister Harold Wilson declared in the House of Commons that Smith and his ministers had been fired—an action which will be ignored in Rhodesia. Wilson asserted his government will have no dealings with the Rhodesian regime.

Wilson expelled Rhodesia from the sterling area, banned exports, including British purchases of Rhodesia's $112 million a year tobacco crop, ended all British aid, suspended trading preferences.

Britain embargoed the shipment of all arms to this central African country, and asked for an urgent meeting of the U.N. Security Council.

Britain's allies, including the United States, and Commonwealth members are expected to join in ignoring the declaration and in imposing economic sanctions.

While Smith still was speaking on the radio, British Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs announced that Smith and all his ministers had been dismissed on orders of Queen Elizabeth for "an unconstitutional act of independence."

With his proclamation of independence, however, Smith had ceased to recognize the powers of the British governor and London has said it will not use force.

Smith and his Cabinet determined to go it alone after months of fruitless negotiations in which the British government demanded guarantees of eventual political power for the colony's 4 million Africans. Smith and his colleagues are insisting on preserving rule by Rhodesia's 225,000 white settlers.

In proclaiming independence, Smith rejected last-minute appeals from both Wilson and Queen Elizabeth II.

Bowman, Retired Mill Official, Dies

DEXTER -- Byron Bowman, 66, a retired executive of the Scott County Milling Company, died today at 7:30 a.m. in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

He was born in Sikeston, Feb. 27, 1899, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bowman.

He was educated in the elementary schools and high school in Sikeston, and attended Westminster College in Fulton, Marion Institute, Marion, Ala., and the U. S. Military Academy in West Point.

He then returned to Sikeston, where he became a salesman for the milling company. Later he became superintendent of mill A in Sikeston.

He became manager of the company's mill at Dexter, moving there in 1960, and retiring three years later because of ill health. He was a member of the Dexter Methodist church.

He married Ruby Evans, Dec. 18, 1934. Survivors are the wife, two daughters, Mrs. Edward Woehlecke, Taylorville, Ill., and Mrs. L. H. Moore, Florissant; two sisters, Mrs. Milem Limbaugh, Sikeston, and Mrs. L. P. Hulick, Menlo Park, Calif.; five brothers, Lyman Bowman, Joe Bowman, Sam Bowman, and Lee R. Bowman, all of Sikeston, and W. C. Bowman Jr., Montgomery, Ala.; and four grandchildren.

The body is at the Welsh Funeral Home in Sikeston.

Byrd Quits Senate

RICHMOND, Va. AP -- Sen. Harry F. Byrd, a strong voice for economy in Washington for the past 30 years and head of Virginia's dominant Democratic state organization, announced his retirement today.

Gov. Albertis S. Harrison Jr. made the disclosure at a hastily called news conference. He said the resignation was effective immediately and that he planned to name an interim successor until the next general election in November 1966.

Harrison gave no intimation of anyone he had in mind to succeed the 78-year-old Democratic chieftain but speculation was that the senator's son, Harry F. Byrd Jr., or Rep. William M. Tuck might be on the list.

Harrison disclosed that a letter from Byrd announcing his resignation was delivered to him at the executive mansion at 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Byrd said in the letter that the rigors of the last Congress had borne more heavily on him and that he found himself tiring easily.

"In looking toward the forthcoming session that starts in January and after consultations with my physicians concerning the pain I have been suffering as a result of arthritis I have reluctantly reached the conclusion that I must give up the heavy responsibilities entrusted to me by the people of Virginia," Byrd's letter said.

"I hereby submit my resignation as a member of the United States Senate to become effective upon receipt of this letter."

The governor praised Byrd for his contribution to the state and the nation, and called him one of our greatest Americans.

Byrd sought to step down from the Senate in 1958 but in the face of a projected Democratic organization split between backers of Tuck and John S. Battle, both former governors, Byrd agreed to run again.

The senior Virginia senator, whose previous rugged health had been exemplified by mountain climbing, had been less active in recent years and had been badly troubled with an arthritic knee.

He was elected to the Virginia Senate 50 years ago this month. He served as Virginia's governor 1926-30.

Byrd was named to the U. S. Senate in 1932.

Three Cancel Aluminum Price Raises

WASHINGTON AP -- Three of the nation's four big aluminum producers backed down today in the face of stern Johnson administration opposition and canceled price increases the government had called inflationary.

The Aluminum Co. of America-No. 1 in the industry -- called it quits Wednesday night by rescinding the increases announced Monday. Reynolds Metals followed two hours later.

Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp., third biggest, joined the procession midmorning today. That firm called the price rises "restorations" and said its action followed "similar cancellations by other major producers."

That left Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., as the one big holdout at the time.

Alcoa's decision to cancel the price increase was announced at a hastily called night press conference by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. He hailed it as "a patriotic act."

The defense secretary also said the government agreed to an immediate resumption of negotiations for the orderly disposal of a surplus of 1.4 million tons of aluminum now held in national stockpiles.

McNamara said he believed the government would be able to limit the amount of aluminum disposed of from the stockpile to less than 200,000 tons and thus "a void disruption" of prices.

Last Saturday when federal officials denounced the price increase, they also announced that the government was considering releasing 200,000 tons from the stockpile in 1966.

On Monday, officials of the Office of Emergency Planning announced they had begun making preparations for the immediate release of 100,000 tons of stockpile aluminum, raising to 300,000 tons the amount of aluminum the government planned to make available.

Nuclear Worker Missing

HEIDELBERG, Germany AP -- The U.S. Army reported today that a nuclear technician based in Germany disappeared on a trip to the United States after delivering classified material to an Army depot in New York State.

The man was identified as CWO Spencer D. Harris Jr. His hometown was not immediately available nor was the site of the depot to which he delivered the material.

The widely circulated newspaper Bild Zeitung said Harris was fully informed on the location and plans for all U.S. nuclear weapons stored in Germany. It said he also had knowledge of nuclear tactics to be used in case of emergency.

Bild Zeitung said American security agents around the world had been alerted to look for the missing man.

The Army said Harris left Germany Aug. 25 and went on leave after delivering his classified material.

Harris was last heard from Sept. 21 when he cabled for an extension of his leave.

The Overseas Weekly, a private newspaper published here for American forces in Europe, reported today that the disappearance of another American soldier, Sgt. 1.C. Glen R. Rohrer, 44, of West Allis, Wis., had set back Army espionage in Europe 5 to 10 years.

Rohrer left his intelligence unit in Frankfurt on Aug. 16. His car was found abandoned near Weiden, on the border between Czechoslovakia and West Germany, and bloodhounds followed his scent to the border.

The Overseas Weekly, quoting high intelligence sources, said Rohrer crossed into Cezhoslovakia with top secret information and the names of hundreds of Western agents and contacts operating in Communist countries. As a result, many operatives have been pulled back into the West, the weekly reported.

Cyclist Dies, Rider Injured In Car Crash

IRONTON, Mo. AP -- Kenneth Michael Mayes, 17, of Ironton, was killed and another person was injured critically Wednesday night in a car-motorbike collision on M 72 about seven miles east of here.

The Highway Patrol said a motorbike driven by Mayes was struck by a car driven by George Winford Tripp, 46, of Ironton.

A passenger on the motorbike, Clardy Evans Newhouse, 7, of Ironton, was hospitalized at St. Louis in critical condition.

On highway 77, four and one-half miles south of Charleston at 8:15 a.m. Wednesday, a 1966 Mercury driven by Irene Brantley, 39, Charleston, skidded and ran into a ditch bank while braking to avoid collision with a truck ahead. She was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, in Sikeston, where she was treated for a back injury, cuts and bruises.

Dry Haul in School Breakin

Three soft drink machines were broken into last night in the number five building at the Airport School. The machines had been emptied of change yesterday at 3 p.m.

Lutheran Pastor Belsheim Heads Red Cross

Rev. Harold Belsheim, Concordia Lutheran church pastor, is the new chairman of Scott County branch of the American Red Cross this year. He succeeds the Rev. F. Edward Watson, former pastor of Hunter Memorial Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Mr. Belsheim announced that a meeting of the Red Cross will be held Monday in the basement of the church at 7 p.m.

The public is invited.

Vietnamese Unit Ambushed

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- A Viet Cong force ambushed a South Vietnamese unit on a main highway west of Saigon today, but 130 of the Communists were killed by combined ground and air action, a U.S. spokesman reported.

The spokesman said American and Vietnamese planes hammered the attacking Viet Cong and killed 100 of them. He had no information on government casualties or other details of the action 5 miles west of Baria.

A large force of U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops pressed an offensive in sandy, rolling coastal terrain 350 miles northeast of Saigon, but results were meager.

Governor Appeals for Foreign Policy Support

ST. LOUIS AP -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes appealed today for widespread public support of the nation's foreign policies.

"The men in Viet Nam have no choice and neither do we," he said in a speech prepared for an American Legion luncheon in observance of Veterans' Day.

"I have said before that I do not believe the voices of those who would turn their backs on nearly 150,000 Americans fighting in Viet Nam represent the thinking of most Missourians or Americans," Hearnes said.

"I am not here today as an expert on foreign policy, but I am certain that we are in Viet Nam for the same reason we were in Africa, England, France, Germany, the Philippines, Okinawa, Wake, Guam and Korea.

"We are engaged in the tragic necessity of war in Viet Nam because those whom we have elected, and others to whom authority has been delegated, believe we should be there in the best interests of our country.

"I do not say-and I am sure they do not say their judgment is infallible, because those you entrust with leadership are mortal too.

"But we are there. We have committed ourselves and there is only one clear cut solution now-- we must fight until we have won."

Marcos Wins InPhilippines

MANILA AP -- Sen. Ferdinand E. Marcos was virtually assured of the Philippine presidency Thursday night.

He had a commanding 530,971-vote lead and intimates of President Diosdado Macapagal privately conceded defeat.

The presidential palace called a press conference for 4 p.m. arousing speculation that the president would bow before the flow of votes.

One of Macapagla's closest political advisers conceded that the Marcos trend appeared irreversible.

Marcos claimed he had won by more than a million votes and told a news conference the result could be changed only by "massive and unthinkable fraud."

Marcos was carrying his vice presidential running mate, Fernando Lopez, along with him by a slim 40,936-vote margin.

Latest unofficial tabulations by the Philippine News Service gave Marcos of the Nacionalista party 2,609,441 votes and Macapagal 2,078,470.

One Emergency

The Missouri Delta Community Hospital had one patient admitted to the emergency room Wednesday: Jerry Michael Jones, Matthews, injured playing basketball.

Ike Described As Comfortable

FT. GORDON, Ga. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was reported in generally satisfactory condition today after a second attack of heart pains but his doctors raised at least a possible specter of "a full blown heart attack."

A medical bulletin from the team of doctors attending the 75-year-old five-star general said:

"It is not uncommon for patients with known coronary disease to experience repeated episodes of chest pains which may or may not progress to a full blown heart attack."

Eisenhower has a record of coronary disease. His major heart attack was in 1955.

His physicians said in a bulletin:

"General Eisenhower spent a good night without further pain or discomfort. He is comfortable this morning and his general condition is satisfactory."

In effect the physicians were renewing what they said Wednesday night after recurring heart pains forced his

The pains Wednesday were "more prolonged and of longer duration" than the mild attack of angina pectoris, or heart pains, which occurred just after midnight Monday night, doctors said.

Announcement of the sudden reversal in the condition of the 75-year-old five-star general came about an hour after the doctors had said he was making a good recovery and might be playing golf again in two weeks.

Late Wednesday night, Capt. Wallace Hitchcock, Ft. Gordon press officer, said Eisenhower had been "comfortable since 6 p.m."

Princess Margaret Gets Old West's Stark Beauty

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Britain's Princess Margaret gets a look at the stark beauty of the old West today—and probably a kitchen refrigerator where an invitation to her wedding once was stored.

The princess and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, arrived Wednesday from Los Angeles for a 4½-day rest to break up their three-week tour of the United States.

No trace of the laryngitis that plagued her in smoggy Los Angeles was present when she made a planeside speech at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base.

Waiting at the plane along with Gov. Sam Goddard were her host, Lewis Douglas, and his wife. Their daughter, Sharman, and Princess Margaret became close friends when Douglas was ambassador to Great Britain in 1948-50.

Douglas invited 200 neighbors, business acquaintances and old friends to a cocktail party Wednesday night at the picturesque Arizona Inn to meet the royal pair.

"She's a darling," said a guest as the princess made the shortest social stop of her trip so far —45 minutes.

As Princess Margaret circulated among the guests, someone splashed a drink on her beige, chiffon dress.

"I got wet, did you?" she said with a smile.

After the party, the Snowdons returned to the Douglas home for a quiet dinner.

So close are the princess and the Douglases that when they did not reply to her wedding invitation, she sent them another cable.

"What happened," said a friend of the Douglases, "was that Lew and his wife were in New York and their Mexican help couldn't read the invitation when it arrived at the ranch.

"The help saw the big, red royal seal on the back and thought it might melt. So they put the invitation in the refrigerator."

The Douglases attended the wedding. They found the first invitation months later, still in the refrigerator.

Three Men Plead Innocent To Robbery-Kidnaping

NEW MADRID -- Three men charged with robbery from a person and the kidnaping of Dale Mott, 28, of Oklahoma City entered pleas of innocent this week in magistrate court as Judge Erle Wright of Portageville presided.

Roger Brooks, Junior Day, and Guyland Dean, all of East Prairie, were ordered held for trial in circuit court. Brooks was held on $500 bond on each count, while Day and Dean were held on $2,500 bonds on each count and subsequently were released.

Improper registration of a motor vehicle brought fines to five persons this week: David West, $23, Dan Chowning Botts, $25, and Donald P. Emrick, Bill McMabon, and Campbell 66 Express, $15 each.

Fines of $15 each for unlicensed operator offenses were assessed against Dewitt Wooten, Robert Lee Parnell, Jackie V. Whitson, and Elmer Ed Evans. Ruth Ella Banks was fined $25 for this offense.

Tom Lawson paid $45 for careless and reckless driving; George Filmore Bennett paid $15 for careless and imprudent driving.

Exceeding legal speed limits brought fines to three: Jimmie Lee Macon, Jr., $40, Theo Eugene Pikey, $20, and David E. Clay, $15.

Others fined for misdemeanors were: Mc M. Truck Service and Cheery Growers, Inc., $110 for no PSC authority; Howard W. Kinsey, $11, no tail light; Roy F. Sherman and Charles R. Raglin, $15 each, overweight on license; Warren W. Towle, $11, expired vehicle license; Murphy Young, $22, disturbing the peace; Michael Lewis Heavener, $40, unlicensed operator and defective brakes; Hedrick Concrete, $220, exceeding legal load limits.

Russian Peace Effort Raked

TOKYO (AP) — Red China said today the Soviet Union tried to end the Viet Nam war early this year "in tacit agreement and close collaboration" with President Johnson.

"Since (the Soviets) are cooperating so closely with the U.S. imperialists in united action, it is, of course, impossible for (Chinese) Marxist-Leninists to join in and take 'united action' with them," the Chinese said.

The Chinese, in an 18,000-word article in the party theoretical journal Red Flag, said the Soviet peace moves started in January when Soviet leaders transmitted to Communist North Viet Nam a U.S. demand that it stop supporting the Viet Cong, stop supplying it with guns and stop attacks on the cities of South Viet Nam.

The article outlined these other Soviet overtures and the responses:

In February, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, en route home from North Viet Nam, stressed in talks with Chinese leaders in Peking "the need to help the United States find a way out of Viet Nam."

"This was firmly rebutted," the Chinese said, and "we expressed the hope that the new leaders of the Soviet Communist party would support the struggle of the Vietnamese people and not make a deal with the United States on the question of Viet Nam."

Kosygin agreed, but "the new leaders of the Communist party of the Soviet Union soon went back on their promise."

On Feb. 15, the day after Kosygin returned to Moscow, the Soviet government officially put before North Viet Nam and China a proposal to convene a new international conference on Indochina without prior conditions.

This amounted to an endorsement of President Johnson's offer for "unconditional negotiations," Peking claimed. It charged that the Soviet leaders have been trying to arrange peace talks without mentioning withdrawal of U.S. forces from Viet Nam.

The Soviet Union then began to insinuate negotiations could be held "if only the United States stopped its bombing of North Viet Nam."

"And sure enough, not long afterwards Johnson came out with the maneuver of 'the temporary suspension of bombing.'"

After their proposals failed, the article continued, the Soviets began to collaborate with India and Yugoslavia — "both lackeys of U.S. imperialism" — as "brokers" on the Viet Nam question.

Administration Shelves Fulbright

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson's approval of a European-Asiatic factfinding tour by Sen. Mike Mansfield has raised new speculation over White House relations with Sen. J. W. Fulbright.

While Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, and four colleagues are assessing relations with European allies and probing conditions in Asia, Fulbright, the Arkansas Democrat who heads the Foreign Relations Committee, is scheduled to attend a minor conference in New Zealand.

Fulbright has contended that the Johnson administration over-reacted when it intervened militarily in the Dominican Republic. He has suggested a new and longer pause in North Viet Nam bombings to encourage the Communists there to negotiate. The White House has said this would not do any good.

Fulbright heads a group scheduled to attend a meeting of British Commonwealth parliamentarians in Wellington, New Zealand, the first week of December.

It was not exactly clear how the Mansfield trip materialized. But it was known that it was not authorized through the Foreign Relations Committee and that Fulbright was surprised by the announcement.

Mansfield has been critical of some aspects of Johnson's Viet Nam policy. But he has supported the President's course despite his original opposition to escalation of the war.

Populous Northeast Struggles To Return To Normal

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's populous Northeast struggled today to return to normal as government agencies sought an answer to the paralyzing power failure.

Businesses and transportation facilities, crippled by the 10-hour blackout that spread across seven states and into Canada Tuesday night, hopefully looked to near normal operations today.

Power conservation is being observed in New York City, hardest hit by the massive technological breakdown. Full power is not expected to be restored for several days.

The Veterans Day holiday is contributing to the return to normal. Schools, government facilities, banks and some businesses are closed today—granting a day's grace to New York's

The closed facilities also will require far less power.

Cause of the historic breakdown remains as dar' as the blackout itself, but s. and federal agencies are making intensive investigations.

James A. Lundy, chairman of the New York Public Service Commission, said he was confident the reason for the failure will be uncovered. It apparently originated in Upstate New York.

Uppermost in the minds of government and industry leaders is the prevention of a recurrence. Some warned that it could happen again unless the cause is tracked down and eliminated.

Mayor-elect John V. Lindsay of New York City called Wednesday for better citywide communications to help cope with such emergencies. He also suggested that the city consider creating an independent emergency power system.

In Washington, government and industry experts on power system operations seek in closed sessions today the cause of the power failure through a study of utility operation records.

In Conway, N. H., it took some reassuring to convince 11-year-old Jay Hounsell that he was not to blame for the blackout.

As he walked home he idly batted hydrants and trees with a stick. At precisely 5:28 p.m. he whacked a street light pole -- and all the lights went out.

SIX WORDS IMPORTANT TO U.S. SECURITY

In 1946, when the U.S. accepted the compulsory jurisdiction of the World Court, it excluded among other matters: "Disputes with regard to matters which are essentially within the jurisdiction of the United States, as determined by the United States." These last six words were added by the then Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Tom Connally, and are known as the Connally Amendment or the Connally Reservation. The purpose of this amendment was to safeguard the vital interests of the United States.

For 17 years, the One Worlders have been trying to repeal the Connally Amendment. Mr. Frank B. Ober, a past president of the Maryland Bar Association, has forcefully pointed out their continuing efforts pose a clear and present danger to our national security.

When the United States Senate voted to limit U. S. submission to the rulings of the U.N. World Court, the chief fear expressed was that the court would assume jurisdiction over such matters as immigration, tariffs, and the Panama Canal.

Today these justified fears have been deepened and widened by the cold war.

For example, Fidel Castro from time to time makes threatening gestures against the U.S. base at Guantanamo. On December 14, 1960, the General Assembly of the U.N. declared in an 89-0 vote that all non-self-governing territories should be given immediate independence. This resolution came from the Afro-Asian bloc of nations, but it was Russian-inspired and Russian-supported. It was a direct threat against all our vital defense bases in such places as Cuba, Puerto Rico, Okinawa, Guam, and the Virgin Islands.

Suppose that Castro should carry out his repeated threat to expropriate the base at Guantanamo. The U.N. World Court, using the December, 1960, resolution as a basis, could decide that Cuba has titular sovereignty over the base and could do with it as Castro wishes. In such a case, the United States would have another hopeless claim for damages to be added to the $1 billion Cuba already owes the U.S. for expropriated property.

In recent years, a number of leaders of the American bar have been agitating to have the Connally Amendment repealed, ignoring the possibilities such a situation would present.

They ignore the fact that there is no real code of international law on which to base decisions by precedent.

Furthermore, they proceed on the theory that World Court judges will maintain judicial objectivity despite political backgrounds. To think that a judge from an Iron Curtain country would disregard the directives of his political leaders is unrealistic. Objectivity is not encouraged in a totalitarian state, and it would never be permitted in a judge.

One judge from the United States sits on the World Court. There are two communist judges; one from Russia, and one from Poland. And not a single communist nation in the world has submitted to the court's compulsory jurisdiction.

The communist concept of the judicial function is different from ours. Consider this statement by the late Andrei Vishinsky, a Russian lawyer as well as a communist diplomat:

"The Court of the Soviet State is an inseparable part of the governmental machinery of the poletarian dictatorship. . . .In content, its activity is identical with the activities of other agencies of administration which have the task of protecting and strengthening the revolutionary order. . . .The program of the Communist Party repudiates the principle of separation of powers."

That is the unchanging view of the communists toward the judiciary. Is it reasonable to believe that a Russian judge or any other communist judge brought up in this tradition would ever be objective in determining matters affecting the security of the United States?

The manner in which justice of the U.N. World Court are chosen is a matter of considerable importance to the United States. They are elected by joint action of the General Assembly and the Security Council of the United Nations. If the U.S. were to commit diplomatic suicide by repealing the Connally Amendment, thus allowing the Court to decide what constitutes internal and international matters, we could count upon a definite attempt to pack the Court with justices inimical to U.S. interests.

Another matter to be considered is the loose language of the U.N. statute which created the Court. However, in this country, certainty in law is of vital importance; our domestic law is constantly being clarified by statutes and court decisions. Courts in this country demand precision in the law for the protection of all.

If certainty in the law is important to individuals then it is doubly important to nations. But there is no such certainty in connection with the World Court. What certainty is to be found, for instance, in the language of Article 38 of the Court Statute which holds that the justices in the absence of a treaty should be guided by; "International custom as a general practice accepted by law," or "principles of law recognized by civilized nations," or "teachings of publicists?"

Whose international customs and general practices should prevail? What is a civilized nation and what is not? The debate could go on for years in the World Court.

Summing up, these would be the principal results of repealing the Connally Reservation:

(1) Our position would be weakened internationally and domestically.

(2) Puppet judges from communist countries and from other countries embracing a monolithic, authoritarian form of government would make a mockery of the decisions f the World Court, whenever ordered to do so by their political superiors.

(3) The influx of new inexperienced nations into the U.N. will make it possible to pack the court with judges antagonistic to our ideals and to our way of life.

(4) Since there are no clear rules of international law, there would be no protection from interference by the World Court in matters previously considered to be domestic.

The six words of the Connally Reservation are about as important to the safety and security of this country as any six words in U.S. history.

Most middle aged persons recall how work--any form of honest toil--was venerated by their parents.

Our parents thought work experience was the best training for life. The young boy who learned a trade was thought to have the best possible insurance policy. Even if he entered other work he always had the trade on which to rely if necessary.

Work also was recommended as a means of keeping out of mischief.

Today it is more difficult for the young to find work and the emphasis has shifted to education.

It is rare that a formula for work, keeping out of mischief and learning a trade can be combined to produce happiness but the first teacher of Louis Armstrong has combined all of these elements.

When Louie visited New Orleans, where he grew up in a less than desirable neighborhood, recently the teacher, Peter Davis, was there to express it:

"He never had a frown. He never had time with his jigging, dancing, singing and playing."

The formula worked, too, for Louie.

He is both an entertainer and a symbol of happiness. If he weren't the state department would not have put him on tour around the world.

Satchmo has never been known to frown. He has loosened up some sad looking and hard bitten cats behind the Iron Curtain, causing them to smile and look like happy human beings--at least momentarily.

When the saints come marching in and the last chapter is written in Armstrong's life he still will be smiling.

He may also be sweating and wiping his brow with the flourish of a large white handkerchief.

The perspiration, however, is not to be confused with tears or even unhappy toil because Louie always is happy in his work.

That is happy sweat oozing from his black skin.

There also stands that formula for happy work--jigging, dancing, singing and playing.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYBODY

A NEWSPAPER HAS something for everybody. There are sports stories, financial and business news, women's pages, comics, advice, health, entertainment, education, current news. Every member of the family finds something interesting in the newspaper. Truly it is remarkable that one newspaper can have so many masters.

Not only does the newspaper have something for everybody but people like the things they find in their newspaper, including advertising. That is why they pay to read their newspaper, including the advertising.

POLITICAL FINAGLING REBUKED

A short time ago the Federal Power Commission licensed a group of business - managed private utility companies, which have banded together under the name of Pacific Northwest Power Company, to build High Mountain Sheep Dam on the Snake River.

This is a tremendous project, budgeted at $247 million. The benefits to the region would be enormous. And the FPC decision, seemingly, ended a bitter controversy that has been going on for some six years. The reason for this long and intolerable delay is that public power groups, aided in a latter stage by the Interior Department, want to build the dam on a socialized basis. Now, following the decision, those groups indicate that they will take further delaying action.

Stimulation of the economy and solutions to the persistent unemployment problem are prime national goals. So is stimulation of tax revenue that will balance, to some degree, the tax reductions. A spokesman for the utilities considered has said this, and truer words were never uttered: "High Mountain Sheep is a project which will mean so much to the growth of the region in jobs and payrolls, taxes and their power supplies. Pacific Northwest Power Co. wants to get on with the job.' ' But the advocates of socialized power apparently mean to do whatever they can to see that it cannot get on.

The Federal Power Commission deserves commendation for its decision. And that decision, as the Portland, Oregon, Journal puts it, ". . . ought to be the end of the road in a long and complex public-private power controversy." Beyond that, there is a precedent at stake which overshadows this particular project. It is whether such needed developments, which will make enormous contributions to the well-being of their regions, can be indefinitely delayed and perhaps finally prevented by political finagling.

SOMETHING NEW

One of the characteristics of private enterprise is its proven ability, on occasion after occasion, to achieve what many have believed to be impossible.

England will see a good example of it next spring. A heavily insulated tanker will slip alongside a jetty near London. Aboard will be a cargo of "frozen gas," super-refrigerated to a temperature of minus 258 degrees Fahrenheit. It will be the first of many shipments destined to bring cheaper and more convenient heat and fuel to millions of people overseas.

The freezing of natural gas has been in the project stage for years. There were grave doubts as to its feasibility, though there was no question that, if it could be successfully achieved, the benefits would be enormous -- for instance, it takes only one barrel of storage space for the frozen gas for each 600 barrels of space it occupies as a vapor. One by the one the problems were solved. And a mammoth production project was pioneered by a group of enterprises -- the Union Stock Yard and Transit Company of Chicago, Continental Oil Company and the Royal Dutch Shell Group, working with the Gas Council of Great Britain.

The long-range possibilities are now probabilities. New opportunities are open for gas-hungry countries seeking a more economical fuel that cannot be served by pipelines. And it will make its mark here at home by aiding the U.S. gas industry to liquefy natural gas during offseasons for storage and later revaporize it to meet demands of peak periods.

The old saying -- "There's nothing new under the sun" -- needs revising!

HELPS GREAT OAKS GROW

President Johnson's order that the number of big government limousines used by officials be reduced by about 85 per cent may have raised skeptical eyebrows in some quarters . This will amount to a virtually invisible saving in a $98 billion national budget.

But there is more to this seemingly small matter than that. As the Portland Oregonian puts it, " . . the psychological impact should be good, both on government officials and the taxpayers they are hired to serve. The public may have a little more confidence in the integrity of its federal government if it sees fewer civil servants traveling about like maharajahs in chauffeured Cadillacs. And perhaps government employes may have a better understanding of the needs and wishes of the taxpayers, most of whom also are required by the limitations of their personal budgets to ride in austere conveyances."

It was this idea, no doubt, that led to the President's directive. And from such little acorns, one hopes, may great oaks grow.

THE WORDS MEN LIVE BY--

Patriotism, Loyalty, Self-respect, Decency, Honor, Work

These are the labels of the ideals which built this country, saved the world, still feed the hungry and support the old and sick. These things are the only hope of the future.

Courts may seem to condone treason, labor leaders downgrade hard work, theaters show filth, politicians smirk at dishonor, and too many sneer at self-respect.

But in spite of all these, there are still hundreds of thousands of Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts; thousands who work without pay for Red Cross and Family Service; there is still Junior Achievement; there are churches so crowded they hold two services every Sunday; still Americans who volunteer for dangerous action in the Armed Services; still hundreds of thousands too self-respecting to go on relief so long as they can get any work of any kind; there are still countless boys who get up at 5 in the morning to carry newspapers or shovel snow or run errands; still hundreds of thousands of men and women who do two jobs so they can help buy an education for a son or a home for old parents.

Yes, somehow, in spite of the greedy who want something for nothing, most of America is still the land of the free and the home of the brave. Don't anyone dare try to change it.

KEEP IT VOLUNTARY

Before any presidential election, proposals and promises are made by candidates that purport to care for various groups, generally at the expense of all the people.

Some of the plans are good and some are not, so it is up to citizens and taxpayers to try and sift the wheat from the chaff.

The function of government is to help the unfortunate and the needy, but proposals that put millions of citizens in that class just because they have reached a certain age seem to be going beyond the bounds of reason.

Already taxation absorbs the savings of young people at an alarming rate. Is it necessary to dump a heavier load on them by way of increased social security taxes for government-controlled medical care for persons who don't need it?

The supporters of a federal Medicare plan assume that no alternative exists for the social security tax for financing medical care for the elderly.

Voluntary health insurance plans have been growing at a fantastic rate. Figures recently published show that 60 per cent of the aged had voluntary health insurance in 1962 and that at the rate of increase, coverage can be expected to reach 68 to 75 per cent by 1969.

With existing public aid plans in the medical field, and with the continued growth of voluntary health insurance, if it operates in a free competitive economy, there is every reason to believe that the number of elderly persons needing public medical assistance can be cared for properly without loading the younger generation with billion dollar tax bills for compulsory health insurance payments through social security.

H. L. Hunt Says

PATRIOTISM IS FAITH

Alexis de Tocqueville, after a visit to the United States, was asked what in his opinion made America great. He replied that he had seen much of America, had seen the great railroads, the busy factories, the fertile farms. He was deeply impressed by their importance. But, he believed, the greatness of America lay in the faith of her people. The churches of America, he said, are everywhere, and American was great because America was good.

This happened in the nineteenth century. The years since have brought many changes. But they have not changed the truth that America's greatness must grow out of her goodness--out of the faith of her people. A basic factor in the faith of our people is a deep and abiding love for liberty. That is our tradition.

Today liberty is threatened. It is a time above all times when our love for freedom must be accompanied by a determination to save freedom. Vitally needed now is a dedicated eagerness on the part of the Patriots to give of their time, their energy, and their intelligence to working for the cause of liberty.

The conspirators who have dedicated themselves to destroying freedom in the world never let up in their efforts. Patriots must be no less wholehearted in faith, no less energetic in action.

Some say it is too late and use that as an excuse to do nothing. To that the Patriot would reply, "It is too late not to try." Americans, trying together in faith, can win because they are right. HLH

NEW YORK (AP) — General prosperity never knits people as closely together as does general trouble.

That's when they learn "the buddy system."

The overnight blackout here proved this anew. The metropolis wasn't left in total darkness. It was lit by a warm glow.

On ordinary days this titan of cities is made up of eight million crowded individual human islands, most of whom are indifferent to each other and dwell in a protective, shell-like isolation.

If they have private woes, they generally bear them alone.

Each has his own ambition or goal, and sometimes each feels like all the other 7,999,999 people are getting in his way. So they step on each other's toes, and race against each other for taxicabs, parking spaces, department store bargains, theater tickets, and subway, bus or train seats.

The unofficial policy is "devil take the hindmost." If a stranger starts to speak to them on the sidewalk, their first reaction is one of suspicion: "What is this guy trying to get from me?"

It is this attitude that gave rise to the oldest cliche about New York City: "It's a great place to visit, but I sure would hate to live there."

But when general trouble comes, a truce is called here in the routine strife. The prisoners of the concrete and high glass canyons realize how much dependent on each other they really are.

The herd then becomes a real herd. Instead of seeking petty disadvantages, people help each other. Sharing a new discomfort brings them together in a new camaraderie. Grumpiness is replaced by a feeling of genial good will. The complainer is laughed out of face.

It was that way during the famous blizzard of 1888. It was that way during the record two-foot-plus snowfall of 1947. And it was that way during the great blackout of 1965, when most of the lights went out, subways stalled, and even the television sets went blank.

When a power breakdown spread a deepening pall across the metropolis, the commonplace became an unknown. The city turned into one vast friendly neighborhood, lit only by car lights, matches, candles, flashlights that roved like fireflies, and a big full mellow harvest that shone like a blob of butter.

Everybody had an eerie or comic adventure. They climbed up and down inky stairwells. Stranded employes in lofty skyscrapers joked and told stories, played cards by candlelight, bunked down on office couches. Heaven only knows how many stenographers got kissed in darkened corridors by junior executives who never even knew their first names before.

For days people will be telling each other their experiences, feeling a kindling warmth that all feel who have met trouble together. But gradually the warm human glow will evaporate and they will become private islands again as the routine frictions of the commonplace wear them apart.

In a way, it's a shame that only in common danger do we appreciate our mutual need for one another.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- This is the story of an American, born in Russia, whose adopted country gave him such opportunities that he became many times a millionaire, but who is now howling his head off because the government that helped him wants to hold down the price of aluminum.

It's the story of Leo Harvey, head of Harvey Aluminum. With it goes the story of his family which also received great benefits from the United States of America. It's a story not unlike that of the other aluminum companies, most of which were put in business by Uncle Sam, loaned money by him to build their factories, given a guaranteed price, plus government contracts.

Yet they are now squawking because the government which befriended them is selling part of its stockpile to keep aluminum prices down.

Leo Harvey, an energetic Russian immigrant, began to make big money on munitions contracts during the last war. At that time the navy investigated and stopped his brother, Herbert Harvey, from sneaking off-sized 20-MM shells past navy inspectors. But the navy didn't prosecute. And the Harvey family went on to more government contracts and bigger profits. The family also went on into politics, cosying up to both political parties and contributing substantially to each.

On the Republican side, the Harveys hired Tom Dewey, twice GOP candidate for president. On the Democratic side, Mrs. Carmine Warschaw, daughter of Leo, has been southern California chairman while her brother Lawrence was once candidate to be Democratic national committeeman from California.

REPUBLICAN BONANZA

However, it was under the Republicans that the Harveys got some of their juiciest help from the generous government which gave them a haven.

In 1955, Tom Dewey sent his law associate, James F. Nickerson, to Washington to persuade Eisenhower officials to give the Harveys a heads-they - win, tails - the - government-loses contract. The Harveys got an agreement to sell aluminum to the government for five years, plus a certificate on tax amortization on their new plant, plus an agreement that a power line would be built from the Dalles, Ore., to Bonneville to bring in cheap government power.

The power line was to cost Uncle Sam $2,200,000. But at the last minute watchful Rep. Clarence Cannon, D-Mo., knocked the item out.

On top of this, the government dug a 15-foot barge channel up the Columbia River to the Harvey Aluminum plant at the Dalles, a channel which chiefly benefits the Harveys.

At that time, the government had a staggering stockpile of 765,000 tons of aluminum. Uncle Sam needed more aluminum like he needed a hole in his head. Despite this, Tom Dewey's law firm had managed to persuade the government to buy 200,000 tons of aluminum from the Harveys to add to the stockpile. Dewey, according to testimony before Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., did this by calling on Sherman Adams, the No. 2 man in the White House, who in turn called Ed Mansure, then head of General Services and in charge of stockpiles. Instructions were given to buy the 200,000 tons of aluminum.

This is the same Harvey aluminum which now complains when the United States government sells the same amount of aluminum which it once purchased from Harvey--200,000 tons -- after Harvey and other members of the aluminum industry had increased prices.

LANDLORD HARVEY

This, however, is only part of the story of the Russian immigrant and his family and how they have benefited from a kindly Uncle Sam.

The Harveys own the Harvey building at 417 S. Hill street, Los Angeles, where up until the spring of this year no minorities were employed and where a strict non-union policy was enforced.

President Johnson is well known for both his championship of minorities and his friendly policy toward labor unions. Nevertheless the Johnson administration rents office space from the Harveys for the Agriculture Department, the GSA, the Department of HEW, Internal Revenue, the Housing and Home Finance agency, Treasury, Post Office department and the Social Security Administration.

This is all rented from the company which last week complained because the government was trying to keep aluminum prices down.

The Harvey family also owns the building at 909 S. Broadway in Los Angeles, where they follow the same policy on minority races and unions. While the federal government rents no office space there, Gov. Pat Brown, a close friend of President Johnson and in sympathy with him on keeping prices down, does rent space for the Colorado River board and the California Division of Water Resources.

The state of California also rents space in the Harvey building on Hill St., for its Department of Rehabilitation, and garages all its cars connected with narcotic cases in that building.

In the Virgin Islands, Harvey Aluminum recently persuaded Secretary of the Interior Udall and Gov. Ralph Paiewonsky to ok the purchase of a large tract of land on St. Croix for bauxite development, despite the opposition of many Virgin Islands residents who wanted to keep that scenic area as a non-industrialized tourist mecca.

The story of some of the other aluminum companies and the concessions they got from a kindly government which they are now criticizing for holding aluminum prices will follow in another column.

Alpha Chi Omega To Install New Chapter Nov. 19

Alpha Chi Omega, national social sorority, will install its 103rd collegiate chapter on the campus of William Woods College, Fulton, the weekend of Nov. 19-21.

Founded in 1885 at DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind., Alpha Chi Omega currently has chapters in Missouri at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Washington University, St. Louis, and Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau. Organized alumnae groups in the state are in Kansas City, St. Louis, St. Joseph, Columbia, Cape Girardeau, and Springfield.

Installation of Delta Chi chapter of Alpha Chi Omega will get underway Friday evening, Nov. 19, with a social hour at the Alpha Chi Omega chapter house at the University of Missouri and will include initiation of 32 members on Saturday and a formal installation banquet Saturday evening. The weekend of activities will culminate on Sunday, Nov. 21, with a William Woods College hosted reception on the College campus in Fulton.

Members of the National Council of Alpha Chi Omega who will participate in the installation are National Extension Director Mrs. J. William Burke, Vermillion, S. D., National Alumnae Membership Development Director Mrs. Bryan G. Kollenborn, Des Peres, and National Panhellenic Delegate Mrs. Wilbur G. Payne, Winnetka, Ill.

Other Alpha Chi Omega alumnae participating in the installation are Mrs. Robert F. Wilkinson Jr., Springfield, Mo., general chairman for the installation; Mrs. Weston E. Goodnow, Prairie Village, Kan., province president for Missouri collegiate chapters; Mrs. Arthur T. Woodman, Derby, Kan., district alumnae chairman for Missouri and Kansas; and Mrs. Norman Govoni, Columbia, Mo., reservations chairman.

Approximately 200 collegiate and alumnae members of Alpha Chi Omega from Missouri are expected to participate in the installation events. Interested alumnae may contact Mrs. Wilkinson, 1312 S. National, Springfield.

On the same weekend, installations will also take place for collegiate chapters of Alpha Phi and Chi Omega sororities with the Sunday reception also held in their honor.

Working on their Christmas decorations and gifts to be sold at the annual bazaar are members of the Women's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist Church. Among those present at the workshop held yesterday in the church dining room were, clockwise from lower left corner, Miss Abbie Lee Morrison, working on a peanut wreath; Mrs. Gussie Oliver, working on a door decoration; an unidentified member of the group; Miss Maragret Seabaugh, who is working on a hanging decoration and Mrs. Hal Robertson, who completes a door decoration. The bazaar will be Nov. 23 in the church dining room.

Bethany Class Meets With Mrs. Jones

The Bethany Class of First Baptist Church held the first meeting of the church year in the home of Mrs. Kenneth Jones with ten members and one visitor, Evelyn Kinsey, present.

New officers were installed by the class teacher, Mrs. Avelle Williams in a simple but impressive ceremony. She closed the installation by leading the group in prayer.

The business meeting was conducted by the new president, Mrs. Mildred Lasater. The first project of the year was discussed. It will be providing Thanksgiving baskets for needy families.

The new yearbooks were presented to the class members.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned and the hostesses, Mrs. Jones and Marilyn Kinsey, served refreshments.

Mrs. Clay Is Hostess To Council Meeting

The Woman's Missionary Council number one of the First Assembly of God Church met at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Mattie Clay, route one, Essex, for the regular monthly meeting.

The meeting was called to order by President Evelyn Palmer. Mrs. T. A. McDonough gave the opening prayer.

A short business session was held.

Refreshment of sandwiches, cake, coffee and soft drinks were served by the hostess.

A devotional service was held and was closed with prayer by Mattie Clay.

Those present were Mrs. Evelyn Palmer, Mrs. Grace Willis, Mrs. T. A. McDonough, Mrs. Lorene Brown, Mrs. Mary Brown, Mrs. Betty Goodin, Mrs. Alma Standridge, Mrs. Lottie Minnie, Mrs. Anna Husher, Mrs. Ellien Coleman, Mrs. Mattie Jackson.

Mrs. Leona Helms, Mrs. Mabel Chism, Mrs. Lula Bell, Mrs. Nigel Andres and Mrs Norma Marshall.

Daughters Of Isabella Have Monthly Business Meeting

The November business meeting of the Daughters of Isabella was held Wednesday, Nov. 3, in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Three applications for membership were read and the members voted to accept them.

The quarterly letter from Anna C. Walsh, supreme regent, was read concerning the campaign for new members and a congratulatory note to the officers being installed for the ensuing year. Also a letter from Ann B. Oswald, state regent, was read regarding the members and their families buying U.S. Savings Bonds.

The members were urged to bring their gifts of jewelry, cosmetics, and other things for the patients at the state hospital at Farmington to the December meeting so they can be taken or sent to the hospital before Christmas.

The members voted to have a Christmas party for the members and their husbands. All the members will be contacted at a later date concerning the date, place and time of the party. The committee appointed for this party consists of Della Duclos, chairman; Jeri Lewis and Jo Ann Schweer.

The committee appointed for the December business meeting is Alma York, chairman; Pauline Kaullen, Hazel Watkins and Beulah Leible.

The regent announced the December meeting will be held in the school basement.

The highlight of the meeting was the installation of the new officers for the coming year and the members were honored to have Mrs. Ann Oswald, the state regent of University City, at the meeting.

Also four new members were initiated into the Daughters of Isabella. They are Mary Pobst, Virginia Pobst, Margaret Pobst and Barbara Schuchart.

After the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Judy Hart, Martha Hampton and Mary Schuchart.

THE WOMEN'S SOCIETY of Christian Service of First Methodist Church had their bazaar workshop yesterday in the church dining room. Mrs. Lucille Miller, left, and Mrs. Louise Allen work on house decorations made of net. These articles along with food and needlework will be sold at the bazaar on Nov. 23.

Food Prices May Rise This Winter

Housewives may have to cope with mounting grocery bills this winter.

It is the old law of supply and demand. Bad weather, the war in Viet Nam and labor shortages have cut the food supplies available for civilians.

This has been a bad growing year, with tropical storms in the South, rain in the Midwest and an abnormal freeze in the Pacific Northwest.

The military has embarked on a virtual crash program to purchase food for forces overseas, primarily in Viet Nam.

Supplies of most canned foods already are tighter than last year, and canners say the government is paying above market prices that come close to a requisition of supplies.

David V. Whitley of Chicago, newly elected president of the National Association of Frozen Food Packers, said corn, lima beans, green beans and mixed vegetables will be in short supply because of bad crops this year.

Strawberries also are in short supply.

But there is a big crop of peas, and citrus fruits are plentiful.

Meat, poultry and fish have been running 5.3 per cent higher than last year, which is no news to shoppers. Cereals and baked goods have been up 1 per cent.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture says there may be a small decline in meat prices this winter.

Potatoes, a costly addition to meat - and - potatoes menus earlier this year, should be more economical in the month to come.

Stage Set For The 14th Running Of The Washington, D.C.

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAUREL, Md. (AP) —Laurel race track officials will spend an estimated $250,000 to stage the 14th running of the Washington, D.C., International today. But they gladly would have spent more to save the headaches that have plagued them since they started putting the field together for the 1½-mile grass course event.

John Schapiro, president of the track located midway between Baltimore and Washington, gave the figures after the field had been cut to seven Wednesday by the withdrawal of Hill Rise.

Hill Rise, last to be invited but second choice in the advance line, developed a 103-degree temperature Wednesday morning following a satisfactory workout. Owner George A. Pope Jr. lost no time withdrawing his 4-year-old, who had scored an impressive victory in the Man o'War at Aqueduct his last time out.

The withdrawal of Hill Rise was the latest in the long line of disappointments as Schapiro organized the field. First he had hoped to get Kelso, the world's leading money winner, but the 1964 International winner and five times America's Horse of the Year, suffered an eye injury.

Before and after there were such other setbacks as: Tom Rolfe, foremost American 3-year-old, declined the issue; Ireland's Meadow Court failed to hold the form he showed in winning the Irish Derby; owners of Sea Bird and Reliance, Europe's two best 3-year-olds, advised their colts would not be available; England's Convarmore turned up lame; Italy's Hazeltine was injured in a workout; Russia's Analine, third in 1964, failed to appear, and Venezuela's Calcas came down with colic shortly before he was scheduled to leave Caracas.

The International is a race in which Laurel picks up the entire check for shipping of the horses and the expenses of the owners, trainers, jockeys and other handlers. There is no entry fee.

In counting of the expenses, Schapiro listed first the $150,0000 purse of which $90,000 goes to the winner. He said it cost an average of $10,000 to bring in each horse with his entourage with the remainder of the estimated quarter million dollars going to promotion and expenses for keeping tabs on the eligibles in all of the major horse racing centers of the world.

Roman Brother, who can move into the select group of equine millionaires with victory today, was made the strong 6-5 favorite after Hill Rise's withdrawal. He already has banked $920,203 with $242,520 of it this year —mostly from victories in the Woodward, Manhattan and Jockey Club Gold Cup. The three races were run on the dirt track at Aqueduct.

Diatome, rated behind Sea Bird and Reliance in France's 3-year-old division, took over the runner-up spot in the advance odds at 3-1. He was followed by England's Super Sam at 5-1, Canada's George Royal 6-1, America's Hail to All 8-1, Argentina's Berenjenal 10-1 and France's Carvin 12-1.

The first six horses will share in the prize money ranging from $25,000 for second to $5,000 for fifth and sixth.

Post time is 3:45 p.m., EST. There is no national television.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Morehouse Over Risco

MOREHOUSE -- The Morehouse Tigers whipped Risco Tuesday night, 41-32. In their opener with Bell City, Morehouse got first game jitters and were defeated, 40-30. There were 12 personal fouls called on Morehouse. Risco came through with 21 fouls. Haley was the ace scorer for Morehouse with 14 total points, next came Crumpecker with 11, Hewitt had 8, Ruedrich had 6, and Elliott had 2.

Risco's top point man was Knight with a total of 13 points. Thomas was next in line with 7, then Duckworth with 6, Bates racked up 4 and Case had 2.

The Morehouse Tigers looked like a team last night as they set back Risco. They should be among the top teams in basketball this year.

Portageville End Season With Piggott

By Don Voelker
Sports Writer

PORTAGEVILLE -- The Portageville Bulldogs will play their last game of the year in Piggott, Arkansas, this Friday night. The Piggott Mohawks skinned Paragould last week, 6-0, and this week they are going to be after the Bulldog's hair.

Portageville is in fine condition this week, however, one key player may be out of action, Fullback, Bruce Henning, who sprained his ankle in last week's game with Hayti. Gordon Stout, offensive guard, has been doing an excellent job this year for the Bulldogs. Stout will take Henning's place in the backfield tomorrow night if Henning is unable to play.

Gordon Stout will probably be up for a college scholarship because of the fine playing he has done this year. Stout weighs in at 178 pounds and he has beaten down a lot of 200 pound boys that have played across from him. He also averages nine to ten individual tackles per game. "I think that he is the best lineman in the conference. He is the best guard I have ever had dealings with since I have been coaching," said Portageville head football coach Bill Nance. Stout is also doing very good in his school work.

Ronnie Hamra has also been doing a good job for the Dogs. He does a fine job running, throwing, and blocking.

Piggott has a strong ball club. They have a 5-2-1 record this year. The two teams that have beaten them were both tops in their conference. Portageville will be out weighed 20 to 25 pounds to a man. Piggott's Pat McCarsen is a 5' 6", 185 pound halfback, and probably the biggest fullback in the conference is Piggott's 270 pound Dan Newton.

The Bulldogs are in high spirits. They are lacking in size but they have a lot of determination and that alone goes a long way.

Of Guns, Waterfowl, And Fish

Firearms ranked last among the eight major causes of accidental deaths in 1964, accounting for only 2,400 of the 105,000 fatalities. Motor vehicles killed 47,700 persons, falls 19,100, fires 7,700, drownings 6,700, all types of poisons 3,600 and railroads 2,600, according to the National Safety Council.

An indication of how effective a firearms registration law or ban would be can be had in the recent disclosure that 5,000 people were injured by fireworks in the nation last year despite the fact that 38 states prohibit the sale of them.

Waterfowl gunning is on the upswing again, sales of federal duck stamps totaling 1,565,860 during the 1964-65 fiscal period, marking the third successive year that sales have increased. The money is used by the U. S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife to provide refuges for migratory birds.

A female Canada goose caught recently in Greenville, Pa., wore a leg band dating back to 1944 when she was liberated in Ontario, Can., making her a real live Mother Goose.

Young mallard ducks can swim as far as a third of a mile as soon as they leave the nest.

Research studies in Freehold, N. J., showed recently that the common house fly can cover a distance of 6.5 miles, also proved that insecticide - resistant flies carry their poisons into areas where no spraying had been done.

Things are not always what they seem. Trained propoises are actually bottlenose dolphins, the white perch is a landlocked sea bass closely related to the striper and smallmouth bass are members of the sunfish family.

New York Knicks

The Wizard of Oz led the New York Knickerbockers through Wonderland again and he's got Harry Gallatin about ready to start talking back to that looking glass.

The Wizard goes under the name of Oscar Robertson and he plays backcourt for the Cincinnati Royals. But he's the Wizard all right. Just ask Gallatin and the rest of the National Basketball Association coaches whose clubs must play the Royals.

Oscar had a routine night against the Knickerbockers Wednesday. He scored 41 points and tacked on 17 assists as the Royals handed New York its 14 straight loss in Wonderland . . . .er Cincinnati 124-119.

The Knicks, who play like a jinxed club in Cincinnati, opened an 11-point lead in the second period but saw it whither away under a surge by Robertson and Co.

Jerry Lucas helped the Big O, scoring 28 points and pulling down 21 rebounds. Dick Barnett led New York with 35.

Jerry West and Elgin Baylor combined for 70 points between them as Los Angeles ripped Detriot 138-125 and Baltimore stood off a late St. Louis surge and beat the Hawks 124-117 in the only other NBA games played Wednesday.

Thanks to Postmaster General J. Edward Day, the nickel wins the award for the greatest comeback of the decade.

Sugar Ray Near End Of Road

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson is near the end of the road but the roar of the crowd still makes sweet music in his ears. The fight with young Joey Archer Wednesday night may have been his last stop. The Harlem dandy wants to think it over for a day or two before he makes up his mind.

The Sugar Man retired way back in 1952 and stayed away for two years. After he came back he won and lost the world middleweight title three times. But the skills that earned him the reputation of the best fighter pound-for-pound in all ring history have faded.

His dream of winning the championship for the sixth time must have vanished in thin air after his game effort but decisive defeat by the 27-year old New York Irishman.

It is Archer's turn to scream "we want Dick Tiger." Chances are he'll get that shot at the middleweight crown. Teddy Brenner, the Madison Square Garden matchmaker, wants to make it for March in New York.

Archer knocked down Robinson for a nine-count in the fourth round to the surprise of the Civic Arena crowd of 9,023 that paid a gross gate of $40,913. He rocked the tired body of the faded ex-champion time after time and almost put him away in the 10th round.

All three officials voted for him — referee Buck McTiernan 48-41, judge Ernie Sesto 49-40 and judge George Lupinacci 50-39. The AP card was 48-41.

When the final bell rang the cheers were for Sugar Ray, who claims to be 44 although the record books carry his age at 45. They weren't applauding because they thought Robinson had won.

They were paying a tribute to a gallant stand by an old man who was still trying to knock out the kid with one big punch. He had only one big round, the third.

The truth of the matter is that Robinson's once potent punch has lost its zip. He raked Archer with left hooks and combinations as he punished Randy Turpin, Gene Fullmer, Jake Lamotta, Rocky Graziano, Carmen Basilio and all the others in the good old days.

Nothing happened. Archer shook off the bombs and pecked away with that stiff left jab that forced the old boy to apply ice packs to his cheeks in his dressing room.

"I tried from the first punch to knock him out," said Robinson, a forlorn figure on a bench. "The knockdown was the difference. He caught me off balance with a right hand."

Is this the end?

"You'll have to ask my manager," said Robinson pointing to George Gainford.

"We'll decide in a couple of days," said the sweaty Emperor. Later, in a dark corridor, Gainford nodded his head and said, "Age catches up to everybody."

Around the corner and down the hall, the Archer boys, Joey and his brother, Jimmy, who acts as his manager, were yelling for Tiger. But first, Joey had a kind word for Ray.

"He's still a great champion," said Joey. "He went out like a champ. I can see why they said he was so great. I learned something fighting him."

It was Robinson's 14th fight of the year and his fifth defeat.

Bob Fuchs Lopes 72 Yds For TD

Bob Morrissey scored three touchdowns and teammate Bob Fuchs scored one and kicked five extra points Saturday as Chaminade downed Mehlville, 35-19, in a non-league football game.

Chaminade, winning its seventh game in nine outings, broke away to a 21-0 lead before Mehlville scored. Morrissey tallied on runs of four and six yards in the first period, and Fuchs got loose on a 72-yard TD dash in the second period.

Bob Fuchs is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Fuchs, 1011 North Ranney.

MY HEART WEARS APRIL

My heart wears April as a cloud
Wears moonlight - ruffled edges;
The way a hillside wears the fern
On lichen-patterned ledges;
As wild plum wears its Easter white,
The valley wears its river
And would not sigh for newer clothes
Should April last forever.

45 Day Bow Season

WELDON SPRING -- A special 45-day archery deer season was scheduled to open Nov. 1 at the August A. Busch Memorial Wildlife Area here under sunny skies and with a large herd of deer reported on the area.

Pleasant weather, with temperatures slightly above the seasonal normal, was predicted for opening day of the season, which attracts bowhunters from all parts of Missouri as well as from the St. Louis area.

The harvest during the 1964 special season was 43 deer, which was also the archery total for St. Charles County.

Hunting hours for archers on the Busch Area are 6 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The daily hunting fee on the area of $1 is in addition to the 1965 state archery permit.

All archers hunting the area must check in and out at the area headquarters every day, and all deer killed must be checked at the headquarters. No wildlife except deer may be molested during the special hunt, and no firearms of any type may be taken into the area.

The Missouri firearms deer season will be Nov. 15 through 21.

Archers had killed 122 deer during the first 24 days of the archery deer season, which opened Oct. 1. In the first 24 days of the 1964 season, 110 deer had been taken. Last season's archery total was 316.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago my boy friend, Dale, asked me if he could dress up in my clothes just for the fun of it. I thought he was joking, but when he showed me the wig he had bought for himself I knew he was serious.

When Dale dressed up and put on make-up he looked like a very pretty girl. I couldn't get over it. He said it would be a great gag to take a walk and see if any fellows made passes at us. I was so curious to find out if he could get away with it that I agreed.

I know this sounds crazy, Ann, but Dale got more whistles than I did -- and he loved it.

Dale is not a homosexual. I know for sure that his sex drives are normal. He just likes to dress up like a girl for kicks. I'd like to marry Dale but this gimmick bothers me. Should I? --STYMIED

Dear Sty: Dale is a transvestite. This does not mean he's homosexual but it is a deviation, nonetheless.

If you want to marry a man who enjoys wearing your clothes and getting passes from men, go ahead. But please urge him to get professional help right away.

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago I gave birth to a premature child. She lived three days. My husband and I were heartbroken.

Almost every day since I came home from the hospital with empty arms I have received a gift (which is really a sales pitch) or a telephone call offering a free sample or free services for the new baby. Each letter and phone call brings added sorrow.

Birth and death are both a matter of public record. Why don't these companies check before sending a gift or making a telephone call inquiring about photographs or books for a child who didn't live?

Please publish this. It could do a world of good.--MRS. C.

Dear Mrs. C.: I'm with you. The outfits that make all those phone calls to get new customers should be able to make a few more phone calls to the hospitals and determine whether the baby lived to go home.

Dear Ann Landers: Thanks a lot for taking our side against Old Creaky Bones who knocked the rock. Sure, our music is different from the music our parents danced to, but almost everything else has changed so why should anyone expect the music and dances to be the same?

My brother and I had a long discussion with our parents about this. They are old, like you--between 45 and 50. We asked what songs they used to sing and dance to. Here are some titles -- and I don't know of any today that are as goofy:

"I Scream, You Scream, We All Scream for Ice Cream";

"The Music Goes Round and Round and It Comes Out Here";

"Does the Spearmint Lose It's Flavor on the Bedpost Overnight?"

"My Knock-Kneed, Consumptive Mary Jane"; "Do Wacka Do Wacka Do Wacka Do"; "It Must be Jelly Cause Jam Don't Shake Like That."

The current hits, "Mrs. Brown You Have a Lovely Daughter" and "I Wanna Hold Your Hand" make some sense, at least. Be a pal again and print this.--NORMAL TEEN

Dear Normal: O.K. I'm a pal. (Yeah Yeah Yeah.) But now the parents will be mad. Help!

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"I was in Washington recently," claims comedian Stu Allen, "and thought I might go into politics. I talked to one of the big men there, and he asked me what I could do. I said, 'Nothing,' and he said, 'Wonderful. Then we won't have to break you in.'" ---Parade

During the course Winders received instruction in the operation of Army airfields and in the maintenance of Army aircraft.

Winders entered the Army last July and completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

The 18-year-old soldier was graduated from Sikeston High School in 1965.

Senator Says Food Output Must Double

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A world wide famine of incomprehensible magnitude and devastation is inevitable unless the world food output in the next 35 years is doubled, Sen. Frank Carlson, R-Kan., said today.

"People will not continue to starve quietly, and Communist China will have her eye on them," Carlson told the 34th annual meeting of the National Reclamation Association. "She boasts that she will encircle the capitalist world and this could be if more food is not produced to fight the war of hunger.

"If what I have said becomes a prophecy, the chaos that would result could make Viet Nam look like a neighborhood argument."

Carlson's speech was prepared for a luncheon.

Approximately 700 reclamation officials, representing 17 western states and assorted federal agencies are in the second day of a three-day meeting. Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall addressed the convention Wednesday.

MILK FLOWS IN BROOKLYN—Mrs. Sylvia Wank tends some of the 60 dairy cows she and her husband maintain on their half-acre dairy farm deep in the heart of Brooklyn. Surrounded by sheet metal works, parking lots and housing projects, the dairy has been thriving but is being displaced by progress. The New York City Planning Commission wants the Wank land for another housing project.

Carlson, a former governor of Kansas and a leading agricultural spokesman, spoke of "the impending world crisis of mass starvation." He said the crisis is coming about "at such an amazing pace that our national attitude and agricultural policies which, for 30 years, have centered upon ways to deal with crop surpluses, must be abruptly and unmistakably changed.

"It is not generally realized that our nation's surpluses have diminished through the combined effects of land retirements --government subsidies -- and increasing agricultural exports.

"The United States, right now, is experiencing a shortage of dried milk, rice, and everything containing protein --except soybeans, of which we have a carry over of perhaps a hundred million bushels."

Between now and the end of the century, the world population is expected to double, soaring to more than six billion people, Carlson said.

"The implications of the contemporary world situation on the future of America agriculture are numerous . . . we may expect our food surpluses to fall below reserve levels within a relatively short time.

"We may expect a change in the historic American attitude from its concern with crop surpluses and curtailed production, to concern for expansion of production.

"It is not typical for Americans to let a half billion people end their day in anguish of hunger."

Bond Sales Will Speed New Airport

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Kansas City sold $19 million in civic improvement bonds Wednesday, and City Manager Carleton F. Sharpe estimated the money will trigger $90 million worth of construction projects in three years.

As an illustration of how the money will snowball, he cited Mid - Continent International Airport, which is in the initial stages of development about 17 miles northwest of the city.

Wednesday's sale of general obligations included $5.4 million for the airport. Together with a reserve of $2.3 million available, this will assure $6.8 million in federal grants.

When this is all set, the city expects to sell $14.5 million in revenue bonds for building the passenger terminal. Rents collected from the airlines, concessionaires and other users will pay off these bonds.

"For each of our tax dollars invested at the airport, $4 will be provided by other public or private sources," Sharpe said.

He estimated the use of the bond money will bring $8.5 million in private construction, $14 million worth of facilities in a complex of medical institutions on "Hospital Hill" at the south edge of the downtown business district, $3.5 million in new facilities built by the Kansas City school district, $13 million in state expenditures —mostly for expressways —and $10.6 in federal matching funds.

Now! '66 Chevelle Malibu by Chevrolet

'66 Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe (foreground) and new 4-door Malibu Sport Sedan.

Two racy new hardtops

Take your pick of 12 racy-looking new Chevelles in all, including a clean-sculptured new sport coupe with recessed rear window, and—for the first time—a 4-door Chevelle Sport Sedan.

Not only will you find more variety in the '66 Chevelle lineup, but even more of what makes a Chevelle a Chevelle.

Say, for instance, you pick a new Malibu Sport Sedan and specify the new 220-hp V8. You've got yourself quite a machine.

Or pick a Malibu Sport Coupe, equip it with the new Strato-bucket front seats and order the new 275-hp V8. You've got yourself even more machine.

Or maybe you'd like to pick a new black-grilled SS 396 Coupe or Convertible. (Standard engine is a Turbo-Jet 396 V8 with 325 hp. And there's also a 360-hp version you can specify.) Now you've got yourself the most.

Which '66 Chevelle for you? The answer to that covers a lot more ground than we can here. And that's where your Chevrolet dealer comes in.

Unplanned Pregnancies Cause Family Breakdown

By Louise Chase
Women's Medical News Service

Unplanned, undesired pregnancy is one cause of family breakdown in the U. S. This is the view of a Tulane University research team, headed by physician Joseph D. Beasley, which studied almost 150 Negro families living in New Orleans.

The researchers told experts attending the 93rd annual meeting of the American Public Health Association that Unplanned family growth can have "adverse effects on the growth potential of the children already born, and may cause emotional and economic instability which contributes to the breakup of the family."

Why do women of low income fail to plan their families, the researchers wanted to know? Is it because they don't want to? Or is it because they know little or nothing about their own reproductive cycles? Or is it because they are unaware of effective family planning techniques?

The study shows, the team reported, that these women do, indeed, want to plan their families, but are unable to do so largely because they are ignorant of how their bodies work, and are either uninformed or misinformed about contraception.

REPRODUCTION A MYSTERY

Fewer than three out of 10 of the women with only a grade school education "knew the fundamentals of reproductive physiology," while more than half who had gone to high school, and nine out of 10 who had had college training had this information. In sum, 87 percent of the women "did not have a functional knowledge of the ovulatory cycle," according to the researchers. The investigators believe that accurate knowledge in this area leads to "awareness of the possibility of controlling fertility and to the effective use of birth control techniques."

With respect to contraception, the researchers found that one out of three women were not aware of any effective family planning methods. Again, the more education a woman had, the more likely she was to know about birth control methods. Of those with a grade school education, more than seven out of 10 either knew of no method or knew of only one relatively ineffective one. Of women who went to high school, on the other hand, six out of 10 knew of two or more methods, while among the college-educated, more than nine out of 10 knew of an effective method. On the whole, almost three of 10 women knew of no effective family planning methods, according to the researchers.

Do the women care about the number of children they bear? They do, according to these findings, although what they want and what they get are often different.

MORE UNWANTED CHILDREN

According to Dr. Beasley and his colleagues, "whereas only one-third of those with some grade school education wanted four or more children, two-thirds of them already have had four or more pregnancies, and they are still of childbearing age."

Nine out of 10 women told the researchers they believe that couples should have the right to decide for themselves when to stop having children. And 94 percent felt that family planning services should be made available to the medically indigent in New Orleans. Roman Catholic women shared these views with the Protestants interviewed.

Asked whether they want their children to be informed on methods of family planning, nine out of 10 women said they definitely do.

FAMILY PLANNING KNOWLEDGE FAVORED

More than 90 percent of them want their children to have this information before they are married. The rest believe they should know about it at the time they get married or soon after marriage. About the same overwhelmingly majority believe that reproductive biology should be taught in the junior high school.

Dr. Beasley concludes from this and other studies he has made that the motiviation for family planning certainly exists among the poor. The services to meet the need, however, are generally unavailable, he says. He believes that the "inaccessibility of family planning services contributes to family instability."

Kasten Wins Contest For School Post

PERRYVILLE -- The long, drawn out controversary between Oscar P. Kasten and Mrs. Ora N. Guth over the office of Perry County superintendent of schools apparently was settled this week by the Missouri Supreme Court in favor of Mr. Kasten.

Stephen Limbaugh of Cape Girardeau, the attorney for Mr. Kasten, advised his client on Monday:

"I just received a wire from the Clerk of the Supreme Court stating that the decision of the trial court declaring you the winner of the election contest has been affirmed."

It will be remembered that Kasten, a resident of Uniontown, and Mrs. Guth of Perryville both claimed a victory in the Apr. 2, 1963 election, there being a question concerning the validity of many of Mr. Kasten's write-in votes.

Judge J. O. Swink in Perry county circuit court declared Mrs. Guth the election winner, but a later change of venue to the court of Judge Marshall Craig of Sikeston reversed the decision in favor of Mr. Kasten.

Judge Craig said Kasten was the winner of the election by 10 votes. He officially received 1,147 votes to 1,137 votes for Mrs. Guth.

Since that time, a series of appeals by Mrs. Guth's attorneys, questioning the validity of the votes and later the qualifications of Mr. Kasten, were taken through the courts.

Although Kasten replaced Mrs. Guth in the office of county superintendent, the question of rightful domain was still questionable until the Missouri Supreme Court's latest decision early this week.

Caution Urged At Four Points

There are four highway points in Southeast Missouri which should be approached with caution by motorists.

There is new construction south and in Dexter and near Bloomfield on route 25.

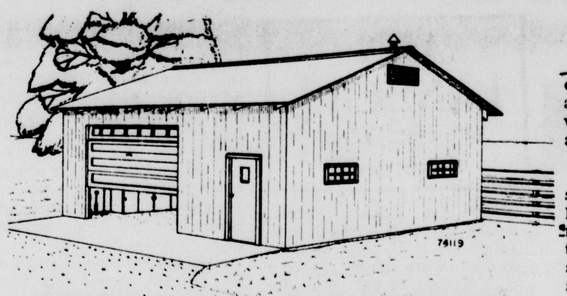

On route 77 in Mississippi County there is construction being done near route 105.

There is occasional one-way traffic in East Prairie to route 77 on route 80.

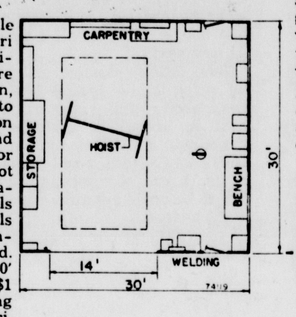

In New Madrid county the road is closed from Parma to Risco. A detour is in effect.

ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

by LYNN TWITTY

There has been considerable criticism recently, of the quality of teaching to undergraduate students in the universities and colleges.

Much of this is due to the fairly standard practice of using graduate assistants, who may at times be more interested in receiving an advanced degree, than they are with properly teaching their students. Also many of the regular faculty serve as consultants to industry or government and thus are not only absent from their classes for considerable periods of time but may too lose some interest in the instructional process.

Some of these findings were substantiated by a report drawn up by a faculty committee at Cornell University after a study of this problem.

Student comment, revealed by the report, was that; they had too little contact with the faculty; they said sometimes faculty advisors were indifferent, even hostile to students. They complained about large classes, impersonal testing and grading proceeding bureaucratic administration and "depressing anonymity".

As one of our observations we could add to the above; the pressure by college administration for faculty members to receive advanced degrees and to do research or to publish articles or books could be another factor in distracting a good teacher from his primary responsibility which is just simply - to do a superior job of teaching. Good teaching should be an end in itself and should be so recognized and rewarded.

While undoubtedly advanced graduate study, research, and publishing are, within reason important, they should be emphasized only in that they make the individual concerned a better teacher and not as an end in themselves, if the faculty member is to continue to have teaching responsibilities.

Next to good teaching, we should say that a good school library is possibly the next most important phase of a quality school. A well equipped library not only provides the materials which teachers must have for their own preparation and for assignments to students but also is the scholarly environment which should inspire students to learn on their own and to acquire the vital habit of reading and research.

We note, from the periodic reports submitted to us from Director of Library Services, Fred Huff, that use of our excellent Senior High library by the student body continues to rise at a fairly steady rate, as it should. The same thing is true at the Middle School and we are adding library services at the elementary schools as fast as finances will permit. We are not as well supplied with books and periodicals or other library materials in our elementary schools as we would like. We hope to utilize some of the money which we will receive under the new Elementary and Secondary Act to improve this situation.

Parents can be extremely helpful in encouraging their children to read widely, to use all library services and by providing as much reading material as they can in the home.

A recent newspaper article stated that the Missouri and Kansas Division of Employment Security showed that in the Kansas City area there was a job vacancy for almost every skilled, professional or managerial employee looking for work but there were only 75 vacancies for 6,750 unskilled workers or one for every 90 job seekers. Another newspaper story said there was actually an acute shortage of skilled workers in the Chicago area.

This is tangible evidence that there is a need for programs of vocational education, in which our youth can develop the skills and acquire the knowledge which is necessary if they are to find and keep a job.

Our Board of Education has, over the past several years, made very considerable improvement in vocational education for the youth of our own and neighboring communities as well as adults from the same areas. This had to be done because we, like most schools, did not offer very much in the way of vocational opportunities for our students. We were at the same time providing a reasonably strong academic program primarily aimed at preparing students for college. We did not need so much improvement in this program. However, the emphasis on vocational education does not in any way mean our board and faculty consider that vocational education should be emphasized at the expense of the academic program. Actually the two cannot be separated as both are essential in a comprehensive school. It is the aim of our board to provide educational opportunities, as nearly adequate as can be done under our circumstances, for every individual in accordance with his needs and ability. For some this means a strong program of academic education pointed particularly toward college preparation, for others it means a reasonable program of academic or general education, at the level of need, plus good vocational training if the individual is unlikely to go to college. For others it means a composite with perhaps more emphasis on either the academic or vocational. We hope to improve our total educational program in every respect. And we feel that any subject which we offer, should be taught with the same emphasis to give every student as much as he can get in relation to his ability. And that a good teacher is just as important in our school and to society whether he is teaching mathematics or electronics; music or welding; English or auto mechanics. The important thing is to provide the opportunity, to give the students the benefit of a conscientious and capable teacher and to provide him with the kind of education he will need to compete in the environment in which he will live.

School will be dismissed for the Thanksgiving vacation at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, November 24, and will be resumed Monday, November 29 at the usual time.

The Christmas holiday will begin at the close of school Thursday, December 23, and classes will be started again Monday, January 3. We give these dates so that parents may plan vacations, medical or dental appointments, etc.

Bridge Nearer Reality

PERRYVILLE -- A new bridge over the Mississippi River between Ste. Genevieve and a point on the Illinois mainland near the old railroad ferry landing, moved a step closer to reality last week.

Five area men were appointed by Gov. Kerner of Illinois to enter into a compact with Missouri for the purpose of building the new bridge. The Illinois members of the Illinois Missouri Bridge commission are L. J. Brupbacker, and Harry Katz, Chester, S. J. Lolan and Meredith Conner, Prairie du Rocher and Louis A. Gwin. The same number of men will be appointed by the governor of Missouri.

Following the appointment of the Missouri members the commission wil hold an organization meeting.

Speculation is that the new bridge will be a combination rail-vehicular bridge and that the approaches to the bridge will be extended to Interstate 55 in Missouri and SA 182 in Illinois. Rail connections will be similar or identical to those in effect when the railroad ferry operated between Ste. Genevieve and Illinois.

Brupbacker is the Missouri Pacific Railroad representative in Chester. S. J. Lolan is manager of the Solvoy Process Co. at Prairie du Rocher.

A cross county highway designed to connect with the new bridge has been recommended by the county plan commission.

The new bridge and highway complex is expected to provide one more of the physical developments which when completed will provide the public facilities necessary for the industrialization of the area.

Bowing to the Majority?

Dr. Kershner

IN violation of its own charter, and after it had been upheld by the World Court, the United States has weakly and unnecessarily backed down from its legal and proper stand that members of the United Nations must pay their assessments or lose their vote in the General Assembly. Ambassador Goldberg has announced that we are bowing to the will of the majority. In other words, we are entrusting our fate to a large number of small nations with only the thinnest veneer of educated individuals, many of them backed by primitive bush people, and allowing them to dictate our policies. Sixty of these small nations combined have fewer people living in them than live in our country. So, our bowing to the will of the majority means surrendering, not even to superior numbers of people, but just to superior numbers of tiny little nations, none of which have as many citizens as the number of persons living in any one of a score of our major cities. How can any right-thinking person believe it is desirable to trust the fate of our great nation of nearly two hundred million souls to the decision of a handful of educated men, representing a few score of tiny so-called nations, most of whose citizens are still primitives?

The hot line between Washington and the Kremlin in Moscow — which the White House says has not been used for any formal communications — costs American taxpayers $155,016 a year in fees to keep it operating. That is in addition to hundreds of thousands of dollars required to pay personnel to man the line around the clock.

Rome And The American Labor Union

By Rev. John E. Coogan, S.J.

QUESTION: From the general course of your remarks you seem to feel that in order to correct the labor union situation, the public "image" of the union must first be corrected. Is that your feeling?

I believe with David McCord Wright, professor of economics of McGill University, that our first task is that of "taking the halo off the unions." Prof. Wright says that "Unions today derive most of their strength from the public image of them as battlers for the underprivileged and agents for the public welfare. This image is a tremendous distortion. What we do not realize is that one work group can exploit another work group just as much as one employer could do so." Prof. Wright here pictures the astounded labor leader as asking whether he has not helped the workers. The Professor replies, "Which workers?" He adds that: "The good things which his group may have obtained may well be derived not nearly so much from the employing corporation as from the inflationary exploitation (however unconscious) of the remainder of the economy." The McGill University professor's solution, then, is that "we face the problem of excessive power, that we deflate our absurdly over-expanded ideas of the net beneficence of unions, and that we ask what can be done about them. Perhaps half the battle will be gained when the public gets over its starry-eyed view of the unions as necessarily altruistic forces for equality and progress, and sees them for what they are—often reactionary agencies of personal privilege."

QUESTION: That would seem to sum up your point of view pretty well. But I have noticed in the course of our interview that you have several times given fragments of a citation from Father James M. Gillis. Would you like to end your discussion with the full quotation, and tell us why you treat Father Gillis and his opinion with so much respect?

Father Gillis was one of the giants of our time. In the sermon at his funeral in 1957, it was said, "God publishes men like Father Gillis in very limited editions. This Paulist priest, preacher, and writer, was a skyscraper on the Catholic horizon, and now that he is gone, for many a day we shall be looking at a lonesome spot against the sky." The speaker of the occasion expressed the opinion that Father Gillis "did perhaps more for the Church in the United States than any other priest in the last quarter of a century." Cardinal Cushing named his Boston information center "The Father Gillis Catholic Center," expressing the opinion that Father Gillis was one of the greatest priests the Archdiocese of Boston ever gave to the Church of God."

What, then, did that magnificent man say of our labor unions? His last word on the subject, spoken a few months before his death, was, "Labor leaders have become quite as tyrannical as the capitalists of years ago, and the people at large have come to condone the sins and crimes of Labor . . . Stranger still,. . . professional Labor which has quite generally come to violate justice and right, does so in the name of philanthropy, humanity, and religion." I would invite all who are interested in restoring the dignity of labor to take their stand on that declaration, prepared to do something about it. The least thing that can be done at once is that we make effective assertion of the principle that "Americans must have the right but not be compelled to join labor unions." Nearly a thousand Catholic priests have recently subscribed to that principle. It deserves the support of us all.

Viet Nam Information Probed

WASHINGTON AP — A study of government information policy in Viet Nam has been ordered by the House Government Operations Committee.

It will be made by Rep. David S. King, D-Utah, a committee member, who said that he is leaving Nov. 26 for a week-long stay in Viet Nam. During that time he will discuss information problems with U. S. military officials, newsmen and Viet Nam people.

"The American people feel a deep uneasiness about the adequacy of the information they are getting from embattled Viet Nam," said King in a statement announcing his trip.

The study follows hearings on U.S. information policy in Viet Nam held in Washington by the committee's government information subcommittee two years ago. The subcommittee issued a report declaring the United States was following a restrictive press policy that "unquestionably contributed to the lack of information about conditions in Viet Nam which created an international crisis."

Crib Deaths Of Babies Common

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) —She knew something was wrong the moment she awoke.

She roused her husband. "It's 8 o'clock," she said, "what about the baby?"

The baby, a healthy three-month-old, had been waking her parents at 6:45 each morning — as regularly as an alarm clock.

The mother had checked the infant at 6 a.m. found her sleeping, and had gone back to bed.

Now, hearing nothing, she checked again. The baby was cold and was not breathing.

Frantically, the mother called the fire department to send a crew with a resuscitator, but the infant could not be revived. The child was pronounced dead a short time later at a hospital.

Dr. Gale Wilson, King County autopsy surgeon, told the parents he saw many such cases every year. The death would be entered as acute pneumonitis. Doctors didn't know what brought it on, but whatever it was it was terribly fast.

Some 15,000 such deaths occur in the United States each year.

In the Seattle area, eight bereaved couples have formed the Washington Association for Sudden Infant Death Study. Thanks in part to their efforts, an ambitious research project is under way to determine what causes what doctors call the sudden death syndrome, but commonly known as "crib deaths."

The association got its start with a card of sympathy. Mrs. Francis R. Jones, a Seattle policeman's wife, sent one to State Sen. and Mrs. Fred H. Dore. Mrs. Jones did not know the Dores, but had read in a newspaper that they had found their youngest child dead in its crib on the same day she and her husband lost a baby in the same way.

Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Dore became acquainted. Then Mrs. Dore heard of another crib death and wrote a note of sympathy to the parents. A few couples got together and held a meeting, with a pediatrician as a speaker.

They learned that pathologists in various parts of the country had been doing research on possible causes of the sudden unexplained deaths.

But most studies were hampered, the parents were told, by being limited to autopsies performed in coroner's offices.

Sen. Dore went to see King County Coroner Leo Sowers and asked him if he was aware of the problem. He was very aware of it, Sowers said. Nine years earlier, he and his wife had lost a child to the sudden death syndrome.

With the help of Dore, a Democrat, and Sowers, a Republican, a bill was put through the 1963 Washington Legislature. It changed the coroner law so that cases of sudden infant death could be referred to the University of Washington Medical School for autopsy.

A $20,000 appropriation was passed and renewed in 1965. After a two-year preliminary study, the university medical school transferred the base of the research project to Children's Orthopedic Hospital and Medical center.

Children's Orthopedic has received a $144,000 three-year grant from the National Institutes of Health for the Study.

Drs. J. Bruce Beckwith and Abraham Bergman, faculty members at the university who are on the staff at the hospital, are conducting it. Sowers has made Dr. Beckwith a deputy coroner.

Earlier in his career, Dr. Beckwith performed 300 autopsies on sudden infant death victims in four years as a pathologist with the Los Angeles County coroner's office. Dr. Bergman, a pediatrician, also has had previous experience with the problem.

They expect it will be at least three years before they have any conclusive results.

"We're satisfied that there is more than one factor," says Dr. Beckwith, "but probably the majority will be found to be due to one cause."

Dr. Bergman has found the syndrome to be very uncommon beneath the age of three weeks, most common between two and three months, uncommon after six months and almost unheard of after one year.

"We feel it is the single most common cause of infant death Outside of the newborn period," says Dr. Bergman. "We know it is happening all over the world. There is research being done on it in various places in the United States, in England and, we understand, in Czechoslovakia.

Decline In Corn Crop

WASHINGTON AP — The Agriculture Department, in a late harvest-time report, estimated this year's production of corn for grain, the major livestock feed, at 4,128,257,000 bushels. This figure is one per cent less than forecast a month ago.

By comparision, the October estimate was a record high of 4,179,187,000 bushels. Last year's crop was 3,548,604,000 and the 1959-63 average was 3,817,311,000.

No change was made in the wheat estimate.

Comedy Idea Clicked

NEW YORK (AP) — An amusing — and mighty familiar — little comedy idea on NBC's Bob Hope Theatre Wednesday night was just the right prescription for some of the tired 30 million people recovering and getting back to normal after Tuesday night's power blackout.

And so was the problem of "The Virginian's" hard luck neighbor and the derring-do of the "I Spy" agents chasing an escaped spy. NBC, in fact, was a comfortable channel on Wednesday night for a smooth sail away from stern reality.

"Mr. Governess," the Hope show comedy, was busy building laughs on the old device of having an especially tall, husky, pipe-smoking man forced to disguise himself as a woman. It worked with Jack Lemmon and Tony Curtis in a hit movie and it worked again Wednesday night with Tom Tryon. It was very, very broad comedy, of course, plus a mixed pair of romances and the anticipated windup — Tom lost his wig.

Throughout the day — particularly in news shows and in a pair of news specials — the TV networks busily tried to clean up the big story of the previous night's big blackout. It covered most of the essential picture and word bases, but came no closer than any other medium to solving the big mystery — the cause of the trouble.

Producers of CBS' "What's My Line?" after considering the matter for two days went back to their original idea of putting a close friend of Dorothy Kilgallen's into the late columnist's spot on the show panel next Sunday night. They chose Kitty Carlisle. The other guest on the panel will be Steve Allen, once regular on the show.

Starting next Monday, NBC's Huntley Brinkley news summary will be in color. Just what the addition will bring to its coverage is an interesting question. Both the "Today" and "Tonight" shows are using color and in both cases, it seems to this viewer, it adds little to our appreciation or enjoyment. One just hopes that the news show's editors will not henceforth pick stories on the basis of the quality of color film available.

Johnson Foreign Affair Luck Fragile

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under the law of averages President Johnson's luck in foreign affairs won't last.

In the first year of his full term foreign crises have been relatively few at a time when he was anxious to concentrate on domestic problems and getting his programs through Congress.

Today he arranged a full-scale review of foreign policy with top-level Cabinet officers at his Texas ranch, the first of its kind since his gall bladder operation Oct. 8. He had held such meetings regularly before that.

Nothing indicated this one would be unusual, which is a reminder that except for the Dominican Republic revolt and the continuing war in Viet Nam Johnson has been fairly free of overseas dilemmas, at least critical ones.

There has been a basic difference between the way Johnson and President John F. Kennedy tackled foreign policy. From the very first Kennedy plunged head-first into it, and personally.

In less than three years he made an excellent impression abroad. But Johnson has played foreign policy in a much lower key. One example: In his first year Kennedy made a trip abroad; Johnson has stayed home.

But in the two biggest and most critical problems that confronted them in their first five months Johnson took far more forceful and positive action than Kennedy.

The latter supported the invasion of Fidel Castro's Cuba by Cuban exiles but he failed to back them with U.S. forces and many of them perished on the beaches. It was a disaster. Kennedy took the blame. But he suffered for it.

When the Dominican revolt began Johnson sent 22,000 troops into the republic — to prevent a Communist takeover, he said — and, although this manpower may have been more than was needed, the revolt subsided.

Kennedy, following former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's policy of helping South Viet Nam resist the Viet Cong attempt to conquer it, began a gradual American military build-up. But the Viet Cong continued to progress.

By the time Johnson began his own first full term, South Viet Nam was dwindling into chaos. He poured in American troops, began bombing North Viet Nam and stopped the Viet Cong tide.

But elsewhere for Johnson the world has been relatively quiet. Another lucky point for him is that he hasn't had to cope with anyone so unpredictable or pushy as Kennedy encountered: Russian Premier Khrushchev.

He was an endless problem to Kennedy. Johnson has had none of that, or almost none of it. By the time he took office Khrushchev had quieted down and was finally thrown out. His successors play low key, like Johnson.

As Russia muted its hostility Red China became communism's loud mouth and Johnson's most constant problem. But, luckily for him, China began to suffer rebuffs and setbacks without any apparent direct American action.

Since Johnson's predecessors all the way back to President Franklin D. Roosevelt got engulfed in one crisis after another, this year for Johnson is apt to look like no more than a coffee break before he moves out of the White House.

At the moment — besides the Viet Cong, the North Vietnamese and the Red Chinese — Johnson's greatest irritant seems to be French President Charles de Gaulle who has just asked his people to give him another seven-year term.

When Kennedy journeyed to Europe in his first year, he met De Gaulle, among others. It would not be surprising if Johnson next year, particularly if Congress finishes its work early, made one or more trips abroad.

Sooner or later he will have to get deeper into foreign affairs, if only to give the Western world a far more vital leadership than it has now. Without such leadership the Western alliance, under De Gaulle's heckling, may crumble.

The Epitaph Of America

Edward R. Sneed, Attorney

The tomb stone: "Buried -- in these ashes -- is the once-greatest nation -- of religious, free people in all history--murdered by today's people --who forgot their God, who gave America to them -- forgot the only man - made, slavery-preventing laws in all history, their U. S. Constitution -- forgot that freedom does not perpetuate itself -- forgot that a people who ignore history, are destined to relive it -- lost the pride and joy of their forefathers, in caring for themselves, and their respective, republic, sovereign states -- and listlessly voted their moneys, posessions, rights and freedoms -- into the hands of a new, age-old, ever scheming, socialist - state, centralized, ruthless, ruler group -- who promised security, from the cradle to the grave."

The demise of America was accomplished in 30 odd years--while our people frolicked, voted for it -- and slept. Where are we today?

Our U. S. Constitution has been torn to tatters, by ignoring Article V (the amendment process) and 9 and 10 of our Bill of Rights. All powers of our once - sovereign -- Republic States -- have been usurped by a new, all-powerful, Federal Government. Our once limited Federal Government has now unlimited Federal control of all our people. Our elected State Legislators and Governors, meekly gave away our States' and individual freedoms -- to the new crop of Socialist - State Rulers in Washington --while the people slept.

Our Gold-Standard was destroyed, unconstitutionally in 1934. America was a rich, solvent nation then -- with 40% gold backing up our currency and $27,000,000,000 of Government bonds. Today -- we have $316,000,000,000 of Government bonds -- which are a mortgage upon the people's possessions -- with not once ounce of gold as security -- and America owes to foreign countries, billions of dollars worth of gold -- over every ounce of the little we have left. The world knows it -- but our own people sleep.

And -- now we sleep -- while our elected President pushes through a rubber - stamp majority of our elected Congressman--an unconstitutional bill--that should only be introduced, as an amendment to our Constitution -- as per Article V--for ratification or rejection by three - fourths of our 50 States' Legislatures -- to allow everyone to vote, regardless of literacy -- in those States which refuse to bow down to the King (President) -- and accept the octopus-encircling, Federal, Socialist - State Rule.

Under our Constitution--each sovereign state has the power to request qualifications and examinations of everyone before allowing them to vote. Many, throughout every color, creed or religion should not be allowed to vote.

Several years back, Mr. S. Takdir Alisjahbana -- professor of literature and cultural philosophy from Djakarta, Indonesia -- told the students of our Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri -- "Democracy is not the best form of government to take the world's new nations to the goal of reaching modern standards of government quickly." As a solution, he offered -- "not disenfranchisement (withdrawing the right to vote) but making the right to vote conditional on a certain minimum capacity of understanding of the issues on which the vote is based." Doesn't this make sense to every reader?

This fundamental principle, is one of many, that caused our Forefathers to limit the functions of the Federal government--and reserve the handling of all other problems to each individual state--as a Republic unto itself--each with its own State Legislature of Senators and Representatives--and a Governor.

In the light of the widely publicized deterioration of our educational systems, over the past 40 years -- this writer questions the broad right of everyone with just a sixth grade education to vote.

Will our people continue to do nothing -- say nothing -- and sleep -- until they suddenly find themselves slaves -- under ruthless, Socialist-State tyranny?

JIM BEAIRD, left, Okeechobee district chairman, presented Franklin Struwe, advisor to Explorer post 41, with an honor unit 1965 roundup ribbon. Post 41, sponsored by the Sikeston Kiwanis club, was the first unit in the Southeast Missouri Council to reach its membership goal -- six new Scouts.

Long Days at Sea Make Film Critics

WITH 7TH FLEET OFF VIET NAM (AP)—"Movies are better than nothing," they say cynically in the Navy, but they really aren't sure.

Hardly a man alive can boast of having seen Warner Baxter recently in "Prisoner of Shark Island" or Don Ameche and Andrea Leeds in "Swanee River," except the 4,500 men aboard the carrier Independence. The pictures have been shown a half dozen times.

"We've got movies on this ship that I saw back in Korea," said Lt. Cmdr. Dale Schuster of Seattle, Wash., executive officer of the refrigerator ship Vega as he fingered a platter of warm popcorn and suffered through "The Lion and the Horse," a horse opera.

"For all I know, they may have even shown some of them at Antietam."

The long empty days at sea turn most sailors into astute and caustic movie critics. In trading cans of film to other ships, the projectionists usually append little flyers of prose, scrawled in laundry marking pencil, deriding the contents. As befitting the muggy, torrid climate in the South China Sea, these economiums can be both salty and sizzling.

Thus "no skin" means that the enclosed offering is singularly lacking in feminine acting talent.

"Only the projectionist was around for the last reel," speaks for itself.

"All symbolism, no sex" — this over a turgid Swedish number that some censor had managed to get his scissors on.

"Movies of this caliber tend to improve the quality of our bridge games," was the way the boys in the wardroom on the destroyer escort Kretchmer torpedoed "Gidget Goes to Rome."

According to Vice Adm. B. J. Semmes Jr., chief of naval personnel, the Navy spends $4 million a year on new movies, but Hollywood's output these days is so slim and the 7th Fleet's appetite so voracious that Loretta Young is making a whole new generation of fans with showings at sea of "The Crusades." It shouldn't be any time at all before Mae Busch is named "Queen of the Fleet" and Vietnamese bar girls begin affecting the bee-stung-lip look.

Whenever ships meet at sea or pass in the night, they try to trade off movies by letting the other ship know, by blinker light or semaphore, since most of the fleet is under radio silence they have to offer. The idea of course is to get a "Tom Jones" for a "Son of Samson" or a "How to Murder Your Wife" for Vincent Price in "The Raven." It doesn't always work out that way.

"Every ship wants to unload its dogs and get 'Lord Jim' or 'Irma la Douce' in return," sighed Ens. Charlie Vollmer of Philadelphia, movie officer on the Kretchmer. "I'm still catching hell for trading off 'Bye, Bye Birdie' for 'Nall of the Roman Empire'."

One garlic opera brought an explosion of riotous laughter to the crowded hangar deck of the helicopter carrier Iwo Jima, when the master of a Grecian slave galleon ordered his mates to shove off by shouting, "Untie the ropes!"

"Hey," said Capt. David Scott, commander of the Iwo Jima, "I think I'll give that order next time we leave San Diego."

Refrigerator and general stores ships have the worst of it. Since they are in the supply business and carry movies for distribution to the fleet, they are required to list what they have on a big blackboard on the bridge and take whatever is given in return.

"We start out from Subic Bay in the Philippines with a hatch full of Academy Award winners and end up with a turkey farm," commented Lt. Cmdr. Donald Beals of Salem, Ore., supply officer on the Vega.

A common complaint on all the ships at sea is that picking the movies is left to the ship's engineers, since they have dominion over the projector, rather than leaving it to the intellectual side of the ship, namely, the bridge.

"The trouble is," sighed Lt. (j.g.) Charles N. Granville III, a Yale man aboard the Kretchmer, "there's really no room in the wardroom at movie time for the young intellectual at sea. The senior officers want Westerns, the ensigns want 'Beach Blanket Bingo' and the crew wants skin."

The grim expression of George Washington on the new five-cent stamp would indicate he has learned what has become of the country since he left office.

Around The World

Wilson Expects To Pick Up Another Vote Today

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government expects to pick up another vote in a special election today and increase its one-vote majority in Parliament.

Labor party leaders were confident that their candidate, A. James Wellbeloved, 39, would win the House of Commons seat from Erith and Crayford, a Labor stronghold.

The seat became vacant with the death last August of Norman Dodds, who rolled up a majority of almost 9,000 votes over his Conservative opponent in the national elections last year.

The Conservative candidate is David Madel, 27.

THE HAGUE (AP) — Crown Princess Beatrix's marriage to West German commoner Claus von Armsberg was assured of parliamentary approval Wednesday night.

The lower house approved the match 132-9 in the first parliamentary vote on a royal marriage in modern Dutch history. A second vote to make Von Amsberg a Dutch citizen was approved 135-60.

The bills not go to the Senate, where approval is certain. The wedding will take place in March in Amsterdam.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) —Ten to 15 per cent of the patients in Australian hospitals are suffering from illnesses induced by their own doctors, the chairman of the Victoria State Committee of the Royal Australian College of Physicians said today.

Dr. John L. Frew blamed the multitude of tablets dispensed by the National Health Service. He said these tablets often produce undesirable side-effects.

Unemployment Pay Declines

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Unemployment compensation payments fell to $1,572,361 in October, the lowest since September, 1957.

Herman Julien, director of the Employment Security Division, said today the October total was $332,366 less than October a year ago.

In September, 1957, the cost of unemployment compensation payments was $1,310,317.

Initial claims, usually considered an index of new unemployment, numbered 22,134 in October this year.

73 Bushel to Acre Corn Crop

WASHINGTON AP -- The Agriculture Department's crop estimate for Missouri corn is 224,329,000 bushels, or 73 bushels per acre.

Missouri also is expected to yield 84,780,000 bushels of soybeans, 5,670,000 pounds of burley tobacco, and 13,110,000 bushels of sorghum grain.

Pope Identified As Killer of Three

LINCOLN, Neb. AP --Franklin Kjeldgaard, sole survivor of the June 4 Big Springs, Neb., bank holdup, in which three fellow bank employes died, unhesitatingly identified Duane E. Pope, 22, in federal district court Wednesday as the man who fired the shots.

Kjeldgaard, still partially paralyzed from bullets fired into his back and neck as he lay face down on the floor, began his testimony with a firm identification of the Roxbury, Kan., man.

From his wheel chair he looked the length of the counsel table and said, "He's sitting right there" when asked if he recognized the man who had shot him.

It doesn't take long for a woman to get a husband; it only takes a little wile.

25 Toll Of Dead

Twenty-five persons have been killed in accidents this year in Pemiscot county.

Stoddard and New Madrid counties have the second largest number of fatalities with 13 dead each.

Mississippi county has had 12 road fatalities and Scott county eight.

These figures were announced today by troop E of the highway patrol in Poplar Bluff.

The patrol also announced that the largest amount of property damage as result of accidents has occurred in New Madrid county, $169,806.

Pemiscot county is second with $146,920 and Stoddard County is third with $101,145.

Scott county has $94,377 damage for the year and Mississippi has the least amount--$88,155.

Wage-Price Lines At Root Of Row

NEW YORK (AP) — Wage-price guidelines are at the root of the price-increase commotion between the Johnson administration and the aluminum industry.

In the view of the administration, the guidelines are route markers to the "Great Society."

The administration feels that the aluminum industry in announcing a half-cent increase to 25 cents a pound crossed the markers and threatened inflation.

Industry spokesmen say the half-cent increase was needed for research, development and profits.

But, said Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers: "Under the guideposts, such industries — those with productivity increases above average — should not be raising prices."

Judging from the past examples it may be permissible to cross the lines slightly. Some say this was done in the steel industry wage agreement. But if the administration feels the lines are literally violated, it now appears it intends to blow the whistle.

Guidelines, or areas of permissible movement, exist primarily for wages and prices. They permit price increases to industries whose productivity gains lag behind the average for the economy.

They are but one of several voluntary programs involving businessmen. Industry, for example, has also been asked to restrict voluntarily overseas investments to maintain the stability of the dollar.

These guidelines are not backed by legislation. Rather they are enforced positively by a call to patriotism or the national interest — which no manufacturer of a consumer product can ignore — and negatively by the ominous threat of hard legislation.

In the case of aluminum industry, enforcement of the guidelines was given added impact by the fact that the federal government is the industry's biggest customer and potentially its biggest competitor.

Some labor leaders as well as businessmen have criticized the guidelines as unworkable and inequitable. But most criticism comes from businessmen and bankers, such as David Rockefeller, president of the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York.

"I fear we are in danger," he said, "of backing inadvertently into a managed economy and I am convinced this is not the high road to the good life. The forces of the market place can be blunted by over-regulation."

Canalou News

CANALOU -- Mr. and Mrs. Lee Joe Campbell, David and Paul were weekend guests of their daughter and sister, Mrs. Kenneth Stahl, and family of St. Louis. They visited Mrs. Albert Parks and Mrs. Zula Ogle of Florissant.

12 Month Shipping for River Studied

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — Congress is being asked to study the feasibility of a 12-month shipping season on the upper Mississippi River, Rep. John Schmidhauser, D-Iowa, said Wednesday.

Addressing 150 representatives of federal agencies, lines, shipping industry and other interested parties, Schmidhauser said it is hoped Congress will determine "if the tremendous cost of the proposed project will be offset by the dollar value gained in increased shipping."

"We have learned that if the river remained open the year round, barge traffic would be increased from 400 to 700 barges a year," said Bernard Goldstein, a member of the Davenport Chamber of Commerce's transportation committee.

Goldstein said many industries reported in a survey that with a 12-month shipping season "they wouldn't have to stockpile supplies during the winter and thereby their costs would be much less."

James R. Smith, vice president of the Mississippi Valley Association, said the navigation season along the upper river went from 248 days in 1940 to 293 days last year.

Couple Are in Good Condition From Surgery

CHICAGO (AP) — A Wisconsin couple, married for 37 years, had heart surgery together and are reported in "very good condition" today.

Mrs. and Mrs. Alvin Dru'yor of Prairie du Chien, Wis., underwent open-heart surgery Wednesday by Dr. M. S. Mazel. The operation, called a cardiopexy, was to unblock arteries leading to the heart.

Dr. Mazel said the Dru'yors probably will be up and walking today and will be back at work in two or three weeks.

Mrs. Inez Dru'yor, 60, was tabbed for the operation after accompanying her husband, Alvin, 62, to Chicago for a physical examination two weeks ago.

Tests disclosed that she had a heart condition, similar to the one her husband had for seven years, only worse.

Hospital officials said the couple decided to have their surgery the same day to eliminate concern for each other that might possibly cause damage to their hearts.

Dru'yor is president of Travel Mat, Inc., a national paper mat printer.

Could the young but realize how soon they will become mere walking bundles of habits, they would give more heed to their conduct while in the plastic stage.

Wirtz Errors Cost Farmers Shuman Says

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The president of the American Farm Bureau Federation charged Wednesday night that mistakes of U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz cost farmers and consumers millions of dollars this year.

Addressing the Michigan farm Bureau convention, Charles Shuman said Wirtz's failure to provide needed harvest labor left huge amounts of crops to rot in the fields.

Shuman also predicted that the new four-year federal farm law would not last four years because "I don't believe the administration can live with it four years. It's too expensive."

Shuman called for a halt in government intervention in agriculture, saying the best solution is "to gear production to the needs of the market, not the decisions of politicians."

Shuman said the new farm law would cost $5 billion to $6 billion a year and still not accomplish its goals.

He told newsmen he did not fear that, if the government pulled out of agriculture control programs, farm prices would drop.

"There would be some adjustment downward, but also some upward," Shuman said. He charged that U.S. Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman has been dumping surpluses on the market to hold prices down and force farmers to join government programs.

"The one-third of agriculture which is subjected to government control is where all the trouble is," he said.

Law Has Teeth in It

LOS ANGELES AP -- The law has teeth in it, a Los Angeles youth has learned. What's more, they bite.

Sheriff's Deputy William Saunders said he was escorting William Maddox, 19, to Superior Court, where he was to be tried Wednesday on five counts of kidnaping for the purpose of robbery.

En route, Saunders said Maddox tried to grab the handcuff key. Saunders yelled for help. Maddox put his hand over the officer's mouth to prevent him from talking.

In the process, Maddox' fingers inadvertently landed between Saunders' teeth.

The deputy clamped down. Maddox screamed. Reinforcements arrived and Maddox was subdued.

His trial was later postponed until next week.

Arkansas Seeks Man for Slaying

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Lester Eugene Ale, 28-year-old construction worker and fugitive from Wichita, Kan., faces a magistrate court hearing on Dec. 10 on a warrant seeking his removal to nearby Arkansas on a first - degree murder charge.

Chief of Police Adrian said Wednesday night that Ale orally admitted the slaying of William M. OField of Kansas, Okla. O'Field gave Ale a lift Monday night and a short time later was killed near Siloam Springs, Ark.

Chief Mecham said Ale did not give any reason for killing O'Field.

Ale walked into the Joplin police station four hours later and told officers he was wanted in Wichita for check forgery. They noted he matched the description O'Field gave of his slayer before he died.

Ale refused to forego the extradition process. The murder charge was filed in Benton County in Arkansas.

Ale is charged with forging and passing a stolen check for $67 at a grocery in Wichita. He was arrested Nov. 1 and was supposed to appear in court Monday.

LBJ to Meet With Erhard

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. AP -- President Johnson will meet with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of West Germany on Dec. 6-8, the Texas White House announced today.

There was no word of where the meeting would take place.

Assistant press secretary Joseph Laitin, pressed by newsmen for the locale of the meeting, refused to go beyond saying "that would be determined later."

He did rule out any meeting in Europe.

Erhard and Johnson met at the LBJ Ranch in December 1963, barely a month after the President took office.

Yogi Expert To Demonstrate

LILBOURN -- A demonstration of the ancient art of yogi fitted to today's body health requirements will be presented by Ed Schetter at the Lilbourn high school next Thursday, beginning at 12:50 p.m.

Schetter has been in the physical fittness field nearly all his life beginning at the age of six when he took part in the strict American Turner Society, an organization known for producing Olympic athletes.

From the age of 14 he toured west of the United States, performing at county and state fairs.

He became interested in yogi while studying in New York. For the next ten years, Schetter, along with his wife, performed professionally in the dance and acrobatic field throughout this country and Canada. He has demonstrated yogi exercises for a national syndicate newspaper series and has been a guest on many television shows on physical education and exercise.

In his program, Schetter gives the history behind yogi, just what it consists of and where it comes from, which clears up many false ideas associated with it. He also demonstrates several yogi exercises, and highlights his program by the performance of many simple exercises.

This program will be presented under the auspices of the Southern School Assemblies Agency.

Pacifist Dies Of His Burns

NEW YORK AP -- A young pacifist has died of burns 33 hours after he doused himself with gasoline and set himself afire in front of the United Nations in a protest against war.

Roger LaPorte, 20, who was burned on 95 per cent of his body, was the third American to died of self-inflicted burns this year in pacifist demonstrations. LaPorte died Wednesday.

Bellevue Hospital's Roman Catholic chaplain, the Rev. Alexander Busuttill, said LaPorte was "clear and expressive as he received the last rites of the Church in which he once sought priesthood.

Counterfeit Bills Show Up

Another counterfeit $20 bill turned up at the Taylor-Ferrell Beauty College and Salon, Inc. It was taken to the Bank of Sikeston, which reported earlier this week that it had received two $20 and two $10 counterfeit bills.

The First National Bank of Sikeston also reported this week that it had received two $20 counterfeit bills.

The bogus currency has been turned over to U. S. Treasury Department officials in St. Louis.

Leader of Berkeley Revolt Communist

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Bettina Aptheker, a leader of the Free Speech Movement that disrupted the University of California Berkeley campus last December, declares she is a Communist.

In a letter to the Daily Californian, a student newspaper, she said: "I have been for a number of years, I am now, and I propose to remain a member of the Communisty party of the United States."

The FSM last December staged a massive campus sitdown as a demand for increased political freedom on the campus. The night of Dec. 2-3 more than 700 persons were arrested and hauled away to jail from the administration building, Sproul Hall.

Mario Savio, then leader of the FSM, demanded the right to recruit members and collect funds anywhere on the campus for off-campus political action. Savio, from New York City, has since left the campus.

Miss Aptheker, who recently married a fellow student, said in her letter Tuesday she had kept her Communist party membership secret until now because acknowledgment would have meant "cooperation with a Redbaiting attack on the FSM by helping to focus attention away from the issues raised by FSM.. . . . ."

BATHTUB's ANCESTRY GOES BACK 3600 YEARS

Have you ever wondered how the tub in your bathroom originated? The first known tub is said to date back at least 3600 years, to the palace of King Minos on the island of Crete.

It was made of painted clay, was shaped very much like today's tub and had terra cotta piping, according to the Plumbing Fixture Mfrs. Assn.

However, today's tubs and other bathroom fixtures would be the envy of the richest kings of ancient times. Enameled cast iron and porcelain-enameled steel are the two most common types, and they, like lavatories and water closets, come in many luscious colors. The most popular are tan, yellow, pink and blue. The availability of matched bathroom fixtures has helped to put bathroom remodeling high on the list of the most wanted home improvements.

To forgive our enemies their virtues -- that is a greater miracle.

Long Area Power Shutdown Unlikely

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Southeast Missouri conceivably could lose all electrical power for a time through failure of a single mechanical device, but past experience here would indicate the chances of it are slim.

Ray W. Call, president of the Missouri Utilities Co., which serves the city and much of the district with power, said today that failure of any one of the three circuit breakers at the Union Electric switching station south of Cape Girardeau could produce the general power interruption.

However, he pointed out that any such power failure would be of relatively short duration.

"I can't conceive of its lasting more than two hours at the most," he commented.

Call also indicated that the potential for such a chain reaction, massive power failure as was experienced in the Northeast United States Tuesday night is not present in this area.

He observed that the problem there was largely one of overload after the initial mechanical failure -- whatever it may have been -- started the chain of events.

He said perhaps one device on a system carrying a large block of power failed, automatically activating the re-routing system built in to the general interlocking power network.

The new demand created by the initial failure might have caused other systems to be overloaded, he said, in a cascading effect until the great area was without power.

Call noted that in this area, power supply capabilities are such that the overloading does not become a problem.

For instance, Missouri Utilities buys all its power from the Union Electric Co., which channels power to its switching station here from three directions --from Joppa, Ill., River Mines in the Lead Belt and from the southwest through the Stoddard County station.

Any one of the three sources --without the other two--is sufficient to meet the Missouri Utilities power needs, Call said.

The greatly interconnected power system, which has been cited as one of the reasons for the scope of Tuesday night's East Coast failure, has advantages in respect to economy and reliability, the president of the company maintained.

Trouble on any of the three systems feeding the switching station here causes the appropriate circuit breaker to open, preventing the spread of the trouble throughout the system.

If the breaker malfunctions --fails to open--the whole system would be without power, he said.

Throughout power systems everywhere are these circuit breakers, designed to automatically isolate power failure wherever it occurs, and to reroute power over other circuits.

The percentage of reliability of these circuit breakers, based on past experiences here, is almost total.

Call said in his experience none of the nearly 100 breakers of the type presently in service --the three at the switching station and others throughout the system--has ever failed.

He noted that the last general power failure in Cape Girardeau in 1946 was due to the explosion of a circuit breaker in a rainstorm, but he said that the equipment was not only obsolete at that time, but was overloaded.

The occurrences that could trigger a general power failure take place regularly, Call said, and the public is never aware of them, except in localized areas.

Such things, he added, are windstorms, lightning and even children playing with kites. They can cause a local interruption, but the circuit breakers isolate the trouble automatically.

Call remarked, however, that with the dependence upon imperfect mechanical devices and fallible humans, the possibility for a general failure does exist.

The general interlocking of power facilities, while it may increase the opportunity for more widespread electrical interruptions, at the same time increases reliability of service, Call commented.

Futhermore, he said, it greatly increases the economy with which power can be furnished to the public.

While it has been noted that a national grid system ties together 97 per cent of the nation for service of power, Call could not conceive of a national power failure.

The state of Missouri also is now tied together, both in respect to the nine private power companies, and the co-operative associations.

Again, Call said he did not believe there is the potential for a statewide failure, mainly because the state is not dependent upon a single outside source for a great bulk of its power, as is the case in some other areas.

Call said that as a result of the East Coast blackout, the power companies will probably want to review some of their operations, particularly maintenance of equipment.

He said Missouri Utilities carries out a regular schedule of maintenance and inspection of its equipment, including the circuit breakers.

The president of the utilities company said the events of Tuesday night also may prompt new directives from the Public Service Commission or the Federal Power Commission.

"And if they find there has been some faulty procedure followed, the directives will be worthwhile," he added.

At Offutt Air Force Base, Neb., before various charity drives were consolidated, it seemed as if everywhere I went there was a box, can or jar soliciting contributions. I decided to join the others in their campaigns and placed a container on my desk with a sign that read: "Contributions for the Children of Israel Accepted Here." The collections were good until one of the steady contributors looked at my desk nameplate and realized who the "Children of Israel" were.

Lions Clubs Telethon to Aid Crippled Nov. 20-21

PADUCAH -- The crippled children of Kentucky, Illinois, Tennesse and Missouri will be aided again this year by the ninth Telethon of Stars, sponsored by the Lion clubs in the channel 6 area.

This program begins at 10 p.m. Nov. 20 and will continue through the night ending at 1 p.m. Nov. 21. The handicapped children themselves will be shown at intervals during the show and their command performance will be the morning of Nov. 21 as usual.

Professional talent from New York will consist of Ed Ames, known as Mingo on the Daniel Boone show; Dorothy Olsen, the singing school teacher; Lainie Kazan, Dolores Hawkins, one of the top vocalists from coast to coast, and other performers making up a 15-hour continuous performance.

Each Lion club throughout the Channel 6 area will accept and record donations for the crippled children. The money donated from each state will be distributed to the handicapped children centers in the state from which it is donated.

The telephone numbers from each city, where the contributions can be made, will be shown frequently on the screen. A large battery of telephones will be operated in Paducah recording the pledges and contributions from the entire area as the clubs call them in so the names of the contributors can be shown on the screen as fast as possible.

Lions club officials state that they expect to collect $75,000 during this telethon and that this amount is needed to assist those children under treatment and that many other children are waiting for physical, speech and occupational therapy who need financial assistance.

Kennedy Tells Soldiers Majority Supports Them

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D - Mass., who returned Wednesday night from a tour of Viet Nam, said he was asked by some servicemen if the anti-war demonstrations reflect the feelings of "most young people in the United States."

He said he had assured them that "the majority of Americans are in support" of Viet Nam's right to self determination.

BOSTON (AP)—Actor Claude Rains spent his 76th birthday Wednesday recuperating from surgery at New England Baptist Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said Rains underwent an abdominal operation Monday to prevent internal bleeding. He was reported in satisfactory condition.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) --Republican National Chairman Ray Bliss, 57, hospitalized five days ago with chest pains and a muscle spasm, was to leave today for his home in Akron, Ohio.

His physician planned a last-minute physical examination as a precautionary measure. Bliss said he has had no further discomfort since leaving the hospital Tuesday.

Bliss became ill last Friday while attending the Western States Republican Conference. Doctors said they found no trace of any heart ailment.

Three Children Orphaned by Father's Death

FAIRFAX, Va. AP -- Three children who lost their mother seven weeks ago in an auto accident were orphaned Wednesday when their father was killed by electric shock while working atop a power pole.

The father, Oscar Y. Fields, 30, died instantly when he touched a live wire carrying 7,000 volts. His wife, Ruby, was killed Sept. 16 when her car collided with a tractor-trailer truck south of Manassas, Va.

Their three children are Eugene, 12, Theresa, 5, and Cecil, 4.

Kansas City May Be Site ForExchange

KANSAS CITY AP -- The Kansas City Star said today the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, which operates post exchanges for U. S. military personnel around the world, may move its headquarters from New York. The paper said Kansas City is one of the places under consideration.

A dispatch from the Star's Washington bureau said a major reorganization of the service would phase out four regional service centers -- at Baltimore, Md., Atlanta, Ga., San Antonio, Tex., and San Francisco.

The single headquarters and support center would employ about 1,100. The headquarters in New York has about 700 employes.

The newspaper said there is a possiblity it will remain in New York, but other cities under consideration are Atlanta, East St. Louis, Ill., and Fort Worth, Tex.

Pakistani Charges Office Stoned

NEW DELHI, India AP -- The Pakistani High Commission in New Delhi charged today that a mob of 200 stoned its office, causing "serious damage," and that Indian police beat three of its officials. A protest note demanded compensation and an official apology.

Paddling Not Assault, Battery

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va. AP -- Five licks with a paddle don't constitute assault and battery, a Wetzel County jury has found.

The jury found Russell Fisher, a northern West Virginia school teacher, innocent of the charge, a misdemeanor.

Mrs. Martha Price brought charges against Fisher after he paddled her son, Wilbur, 10. The boy is a 5th-grade pupil at Smithfield Elementary School.

Fisher, a teacher for 27 years, requested a jury trial in a justice of the peace court here. He told the jury Wednesday that "in order to maintain discipline," he struck the boy five times "on an unmentionable place."

Urges Dropouts Be Put In Service

OKLAHOMA CITY AP -- Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, has suggested that high school dropouts be placed in the armed services.

"They've got to be some place where they can't drop out," he said Wednesday. "We've got to help these young people become team players in our democracy, or we won't have one."

Hershey visited the state Selective Service headquarters and later addressed the city Chamber of Commerce.

He estimated the draft rate will stay at about 36,000 men a month nationally.

590 Miles of Interstate Opened

WASHINGTON AP -- The Commerce Department announced Wednesday that 590-miles of the interstate highway system were opened to traffic from July through September, bringing the total to 20,000.

As of Sept. 30, Kansas had 535 miles open to traffic with 264 miles of interstate designated construction to go, and Missouri had 664 miles open with 445 miles left.

By Edward Collier

Mountain grandeur, wooded beauty, and early-fall skiing fun are in store for motorists who choose to vacation in the Pacific Northwest this autumn.

Driving down from neighboring Seattle, we began a Magic Circle motor jaunt in Tacoma, a flower-endowed city that sits above Puget Sound. Downtown landmark is a 105-foot high totem pole said to be the tallest in the nation, carved from a single tree.

But the city's pride is Point Defiance Park, left much as the pioneers found it—600-plus acres of sylvan beauty lush with huge ferns, shrubs, Douglas firs. There is a salt water bathing beach, picnic areas, woodland trails, flower gardens, Deep Sea Aquarium, Children's Farm Zoo, and reconstructed Old Fort Nisqually, built in 1833 by Hudson's Bay Co. as a trading post and to repel Indians.

The route east follows the Puyallup River, where fishermen bring in big steelhead trout from the icy waters. This is a land of special beauty in the spring and rightly called the "Nation's Bulb Basket", for in the rich, fertile valley is produced a major supply of daffodils, tulips, hyacinths, lilies and iris. Tribute is paid each spring with a Daffodil Festival complete with queen, parade and flower show.

Mount Rainier National Park's wonders seem unending: scenic grandeur, 300 miles of nature trails, sports of all kinds, great glaciers that point out like fingers in all directions, and majestic Mount Rainier itself, aglow in white and brushed by clouds. Paradise Valley, more than 5,000 feet high, is a lush meadow where there is beauty at every turn: Paradise Glacier Ice Caves, whose iridescent reflections create dream-world color images; the two Reflection Lakes whose waters mirror Mt. Rainier; nearby Narada Falls plunging 168 feet into Paradise River Canyon. Skiing here continues through April.

Final stop is at the Longmire Park Headquarters Visitor Center, where a small museum geologically explains the creation of today's glaciers.

Live Grenades in Castoff Articles

SACRAMENTO, Calif. AP -- Goodwill Industries, which repairs castoff clothes, toys and furniture and sells them for charity, found four live World War II Japanese hand grenades in a box from one of its pickup trucks Wednesday. A bomb removal squad from nearby Mather Air Force Base was called to take them away.

Italy's Oldest Catholic Priest Dies

LUCCA, Italy AP -- Msgr. Paolina Chelini, Italy's oldest Roman Catholic priest, died Wednesday night at his home here. He was 105 and had said Mass daily until a few months ago.
The priest was a close friend of composer Giacomo Puccini and helped him in the initial staging of the first act of "Tosca," which takes place in a church and ends with the singing of the "Te Deum."

Bull With Four Eyes Disappears

LOS ANGELES AP -- If you see a Brown Swiss bull with four horns and three eyes, don't call a psychiatrist or an optometrist. It might be Elmer.

Elmer was reported stolen Wednesday from a carnival. His owner, Harvey Williams, 60, told officers the animal was on display earlier Wednesday but that his van and Elmer later disappeared.
Williams said he valued the bull at $25,000.

Union Sends Clinic To South Viet Nam

WASHINGTON AP -- The United Auto Workers Union is sending a fully equipped pediatric clinic and three tons of food and medical supplies to South Viet Nam.

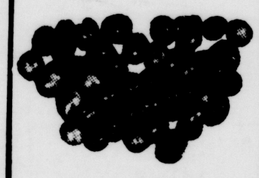

Walter Reuther, president of the AFL-CIO union, said the $250,000 shipment will allow South Vietnamese trade unions to establish a children's clinic.

Today in U.S. History

Today is Thursday, Nov. 11, the 315th day of 1965. There are 50 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1918, an armistice was signed and World War I came to an end.

On this date

In 1918, the independence of Poland was proclaimed.

In 1921, the Washington disarmament conference convened.

In 1942, Allied forces won control of Algeria and French Morocco.

In 1942, the Nazis took possession of unoccupied France.

In 1954, in the first observance of Veterans Day, 16,000 persons in New York City became citizens of the United States.

Ten years ago—A Navy bomber crashed into a destroyer during a simulated attack off Southern California, killing five men.

Five years ago—Troops loyal to President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Viet Nam put down a revolt a little more than 24 hours after it began.

One year ago—The new Labor government of Britain presented an emergency budget, calling for increased taxes and broadened welfare benefits.

10 PER CENT OF YOUR HOME INVESTMENT IS IN PLUMBING --TAKE CARE OF IT

Your house isn't just a home — it's probably the biggest single investment you'll make in a lifetime. And at least 10 percent of that investment is in the plumbing.

Nothing in your home is more vital to your family's health, comfort and convenience. Yet many people who take the best possible care of their automobiles, their landscaped front yards and other cherished possessions simply take their plumbing for granted. In one respect, this isn't surprising. Modern research has produced highly efficient products that are vitually trouble-free and which can take a lot of wear and tear.

However, when you remember that nothing in your home is used more often than the plumbing in your bathroom and kitchen, then an established program of preventive maintenance simply makes good sense.

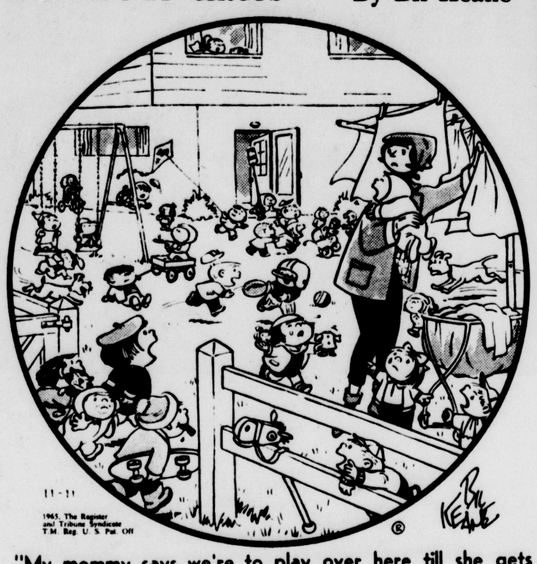

There's a booklet available from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau that tells you how to take proper care of all the plumbed-in equipment in your home. It also includes a wealth of information on how to make repairs and do dozens of jobs that may safely be done by the competent do-it-yourselfer. Finally, it details the jobs that should be done only by qualified plumbing contractors and their employees, to make sure no cross-connections are inadvertently made between your fresh water supply and your waste disposal lines. The booklet is available for 25 cents from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 East Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

SPACE SNOOPER—The world's most accurate radio telescope now in operation at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory in Green Bank, W.Va., picks up and records extremely faint radio signals reaching earth from outer space. Special industrial brakes controlling rotation of the 2,700-ton antenna make possible the telescope's precision, maintaining aiming accuracy to within 3/1000ths of a degree.
